Strikers Defy Military Law On Picketing

Minneapolis Prepares for Fresh Outbreaks of Violence.

Drivers Are Angered by Governor's Refusal to Halt Traffic.

Minneapolis, July 31 (U.P.).—"Let's see if the soldier boys have the nerve to shoot us down!"

That was the angry shout today of William S. Brown, president of the striking truck drivers' union in Minneapolis, as indications pointed to fresh outbreaks of violence on the labor front.

The strikers, angered by Gov. Floyd B. Olson's blunt refusal to discontinue all truck traffic for a period of 48 hours, defied the military "dictatorship" that has been in force since last Thursday and renewed picketing on the largest scale since martial law was declared.

As the workers moved out over the city, bent upon halting trucks, Brown protested that the troops are "breaking the strike" by allowing more and more commercial traffic on the streets.

New Crisis Expected.

The defiant gesture of the 6,000 drivers and their leaders was viewed ominously in all quarters. A new crisis in the 15-day old strike was anticipated at any moment, in view of the adamant stand of Adjt. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh and his State troops.

The strikers had called upon Gov. Olson to keep trucks off the streets for 48 hours pending a reorganization of the military permit system. On the heels of the governor's refusal came a modification of this permit system, announced by Gen. Walsh.

All grocery trucks, both wholesale and retail, will be allowed to operate on permit to replenish the dwindling supplies of canned goods, staples and other necessities. This modification brings under the militia permit system the largest remaining class of trucks not already allowed to operate, except for the transfer trucks.

Union leaders called the strikers into secret session and called for a new and even more forceful drive to tie up transportation regardless of National Guard action.

Militia Gets Orders.

As the strikers scattered to their posts and patrols, officers of the militia instructed their men to continue enforcing military orders against picketing.

The new crisis approached as Federal mediators conferred with employers over the suggested plan for a settlement. The plan is understood to represent a new concession to the employers.

Renewal of picketing caused an automobile accident in which one man was killed and four injured. Three of the injured were National Guardsmen.

Sixteen pickets were arrested at once by troopers and held for trial by court-martial.

Despite this determined opposi-

Seven Millions To Mrs. Willys

Cash Settlement Auto Man Made on Divorced Wife Revealed.

Miami, Fla., July 31 (AP).—Mrs. John N. Willys, of Canandaigua, N. Y., who yesterday was granted a divorce here from the 60-year-old automobile manufacturer and former United States Ambassador to Poland, received a cash and property settlement amounting to $7,650,000, it was learned authoritatively today.

Shortly after the divorce decree was granted, Willys was married here to Mrs. Florence E. Dolan, of Fieldston, N. Y.

Although papers in the divorce action were sealed, it was learned the settlement includes the Willys estate at Oyster Bay, Long Island. A daughter, Mrs. Virginia de Landa, of Paris, was also provided for under a separate trust fund. The first Mrs. Willys is expected to join her daughter in Paris next month.

Millers Defy France On Wheat Price Fixing

Paris, July 31 (AP).—The millers of France today openly defied the government's efforts to regulate the price of wheat. In a letter to Premier Gaston Doumergue, the National Association of Millers said it will refuse to abide by the law which fixes the price of harvested wheat at $2.35 a bushel and the coming crop at $1.95.

"All millers," said the letter, "are discouraged and exasperated and have, one after another, been forced to break the law. Such artificial conditions can not last, therefore we publicly declare the price of wheat free."

Royal Couple Fly to Sweden.

Lone Bandit Holds Up Capitol Hill Postoffice

In a daring daylight robbery, a lone bandit yesterday held up a clerk in the postoffice of the new House of Representatives Office Building and escaped with a pay roll and postal receipts totaling about $500.

Donald Stuckey, the lame, spectacled little clerk, was alone in the office, which is little more than a partition off the main corridor of the building, through which visitors and employes were passing constantly. Two Capitol policemen were on duty 30 feet away.

Foes of Farm Program Hit By Tugwell

Attacks on New Deal Crop and Relief Plans Laid to Reactionaries.

Attacks on the Administration's farm program were laid at the door of "reactionary obscurantists" by Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell in a radio address last night over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

He charged that these obstructors of enlightenment and progress have "seized on the great natural calamity of a drought in the entire Northern Hemisphere as a means of destroying or discrediting the will of the American people, as expressed in Congress, for the betterment of agriculture."

To those officials in charge of the farm program, said the youthful junior Cabinet officer, whom some observers have characterized as being "parlor pink," there is something both infantile and wicked in the eagerness of these so-called obstructionists to make political issues of the drought.

Mr. Tugwell made his address here while Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was circling the South and

Madrid Bares Red Plot On Eve of Celebration

Madrid, July 31 (U.P.).—Official circles revealed tonight the discovery of extensive revolutionary plans prepared by extremists in connection with "Red Day" celebrations tomorrow throughout Spain.

It was claimed that the danger of these plans, however, has been diminished by the government's equally extensive preparations to meet threats of violence. Officials said only minor incidents were expected, possibly in Madrid and Bilbao, but the capital was uneasy tonight after weeks of comparative calm.

Profits Gain Is Reported By U. S. Steel

Earnings Heavier Than at Any Time in 4 Years; Pay Rolls Jump.

New York, July 31 (AP).—The United States Steel Corporation today reported earnings for the three months ended June 30 larger than for any quarterly period since the last quarter of 1930.

The directors made no increase in its quarterly disbursement on the cumulative preferred shares, however. Another payment of 50 cents was ordered, as had been done in each of the preceding six quarters, leaving cumulative arrearages of $8.75 a share.

Total earnings, after ordinary manufacturing expenses, amounted to $21,082,389, compared with $6,578,731 in the preceding quarter.

Pay Rolls Increased.

Pay rolls increased sharply, compared with a year ago, amounting to $65,094,000 for the quarter, compared with only $33,468,000 in the same period of last year. The increase in wages effective April 1 boosted average hourly earnings for employes of all subsidiaries other than transportation companies to 71.2 cents, from 65.5 cents. This in-

Prof. Rogers to Study Indian Silver System

Shanghai, July 31 (AP).—Prof. James Harvey Rogers, financial adviser to President Roosevelt, left China today for India to pursue his study of the use of silver in Oriental monetary systems. Prof. Rogers made a thorough investigation of the silver question in China.

He was in Tokyo for about a week, interviewing bankers and officials and ascertaining how the Japanese-managed currency works. The professor is making his journey to India on orders of the United States Treasury Department.

Navy Flight Hops for Juneau.

Pope to Quit Vatican for Rest, Breaking 65-Year Precedent

Vatican City, July 31 (AP).—Pope Pius late this week will break a precedent of 65 years' standing by leaving the Vatican for a summer vacation at Castle Gandolfo, it was disclosed today by church authorities.

The summer residence of the head of the church is nigh in the Alban hills near Rome. It has not been occupied by a Pope since 1869.

There was a flurry of activity at the Vatican as preperations were under way to transfer the papal court to the cool, hillside retreat. Attendants and prelates worked busily through one of the hottest days of the summer for the pontiff's departure, announced for Friday or Saturday.

There were persistent reports in semiofficial circles, however, that the Pope may slip out of Vatican City quietly after sundown tomorrow. The Pope, it was said, wishes to escape the pomp and ceremony that was a feature of moves to the summer palace in the olden days.

Pope Pius seemed determined to finish all matters pressing for his attention. Today he received two American prelates, the Argentine Ambassador to the Holy See, a group of Italian-American boys and ten American Athletic Institute directors. There was other important business, and part of the day he devoted to perusal of the detailed reports on the Austrian situation.

Long's Foes Ask U. S. to Halt Senator

Vote Registrar's Office Still Under Control of Guardsmen.

New Orleans, July 31 (AP).—Hundreds of National Guardsmen were mobilized at Jackson Barracks, south of the city, late today, as city administration leaders appealed to Washington for aid in lifting the iron hand of United States Senator Huey P. Long from the city of New Orleans, engaged in a bitter factional fight with the Louisiana political dictator.

Almost simultaneously with city appeals to Federal authorities, based on charges that the militia had been illegally used by the State administration, under dominance of Senator Long, in the seizure of the city voting registration office, a general mobilization of all companies of the New Orleans National Guard got under way.

Twelve companies, consisting of approximately 750 men, including infantry, artillery and cavalry, were called to the militia headquarters.

Voting Office Held.

No information was immediately available on what use would be made of the augmented force.

After breaking into the registrar of voters' office last night, Louisiana militiamen continued to hold the office by force of arms during the day.

The appeal to Washington was announced by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, bitter political foe of Gov. O. K. Allen and Senator Long. He termed the Governor's declaration of partial martial law illegal and asked Adj. Gen. James F. McKinley, of the United States Army, to investigate use of the militia in a factional political dispute.

At the same time, two Walmsley-indorsed candidates for the two New Orleans Congressional seats at stake in the approaching primary, requested Speaker of the House Rainey to make an inquiry into conditions attending the campaign, charging the Long machine with attempting to steal two seats in the United States Congress.

Walmsley charged "it is apparent they want to scratch names from the registration books under the protection of the militia."

The New Orleans States said examination of some of the books this morning showed wholesale scratching of names of women residents of the old restricted district in lower New Orleans.

Defiance was hurled back and forth betwen the two rival political camps of Mayor Walmsley and Senator Long, one entrenched in a police-filled city hall and the other headquartered near the top floor

6 Bags Ready To Start Race

Balloon Pilots Watching Cloudy Skies; Contest Twice Delayed.

Birmingham, Ala., July 31 (AP).—Twice delayed, pilots of six balloons entered in the National races today watched low hanging clouds as the starting hour tonight approached.

The race, from which three will emerge as entries in the international races for the Gordon Bennett Trophy at Warsaw, Poland, on September 23, originally was set to start Saturday night. A 24-hour postponement was followed by a 48-hour delay due to almost continuous rain.

In addition to a place in the international race, the winner will be awarded the Litchfield Trophy and a purse of $750; second place gets a purse of $500; third $300, and fourth $200.

Army balloon No. 1, piloted by Capt. Bill Floyd and Lieut. R. R. Gillespie, will lead the parade into the air, casting off anchors at 8:30 p. m., with the other five entries following at 5-minute intervals.

One Dead in Epidemic Of Typhoid With Circus

Detroit, July 31 (AP).—One death was recorded today among employes of the Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus, taken to a hospital here as the result of a typhoid fever epidemic. The victim was Sylvester Bussaro, of Long Island, N. Y., a property man.

Forty-four of the patients were reported by the Detroit board of health to have developed definite typhoid symptoms. Thirty others, reported yesterday ready for release, still were in the hospital.

Girl Strikers Routed With Tear Gas; 9 Hurt

York, Pa., July 31 (AP).—When 40 girl strikers at the Phylberne Shirt Mill attempted to prevent the unloading of material at the plant today, they were dispersed by police who loosed tear gas. Nine of the girls were taken to a hospital. Several were struck and injured by wadding from tear gas shells.

95,662 Put On U. S. Jobs By New Deal

20,000 Workers Added to Federal Pay Roll in Capital.

Total Sets Peace-Time High and Is Due to Be Increased.

Expanding Governmental activities under the New Deal have added nearly 100,000 persons to the Federal pay roll.

Figures released by the Civil Service Commission yesterday showed an increase of 95,662 persons on the Governmental job list. In Washington the total of permanent and temporary Government workers, as of June 30, was 87,196, an increase of 20,000.

Employes in the executive branch of the Government, both inside and outside of the National Capital, totaled 661,094—a peace-time high. This was an increase of 2,000 in a month.

At the start of the Roosevelt Administration there were 563,487 persons in the executive departments.

These figures do not include those employed in the legislative, judicial or military branches of the Government.

More Jobs in Prospect.

Two thousand additional workers were taken into the executive service in June, including 1,425 in Washington. Indications are several hundred more will find jobs during July and August with organization of the Federal Housing Corporation, the new Communications Commission, expansion of drought relief and other emergency activities.

The Navy Department, now in the midst of a huge building program, accounted for the larger part of the increase here. An analysis of the figures shows the Navy added 658 new workers. The Home Owners Loan Corporation ranked second in new employes with 289 new permanent workers and 19 in the temporary classification.

Most of the newcomers into Government service have entered the service of the Public Works Administration, Tennessee Valley Authority, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Agriculture Department, and emergency conservation work. While strict standards have been established by a number of the agencies, especially PWA, most of the jobs are being filled outside the Civil Service.

20,000 Added Here.

At the close of the World War the total of executive employes was 917,760. But by July, 1920, this number had dropped to 691,116. This figure is only 30,000 more than the total now on Government rolls.

By far the greater number of Government workers are outside the District of Columbia. As of June 30, there were 573,898 on the job outside this city as compared with the 87,196 employed in the crowded Government buildings here.

Twenty thousand, or a little more than one-fifth, of the total employed since Roosevelt took office, have found work in Washington. The increase has been reflected in a growing demand for living quarters throughout the city.

The aggregate net annual pay roll for all Government employes in the executive branch was $91,540,000.

The Postoffice Department employes 265,070, by far the largest number. The War Department is next with 60,087, Navy third with 57,492, Treasury, 49,831, and Agriculture, 33,298.

Mrs. Caraway's Son May Recover

Mother at Side of Boy Thrown From Horse.

Dyersburg, Tenn., July 31 (AP).—Bobbie Caraway, 18, was dangerously ill tonight, but his mother, United States Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, was at his bedside, and there was hope for his recovery.

At the hospital, surgeons said he had suffered a serious injury above the right temple—apparently a skull fracture—as a result of a fall from a horse at Newbern, Tenn., last night.

He was still unconscious early tonight, but Senator Caraway said his general condition was better and there were indications he was coming out of the coma.

Bobbie, who has had two years at the United States Military Academy at West Point, was thrown from his horse when the mount stumbled. Mrs. Caraway today said that the horse had a loose shoe.

New Race Discovered In New Guinea Interior

Fort Moresby, New Guinea, July 31 (AP).—The Melanesian Mission has reported the discovery of a new race of people on this island. They were found living in a wide fertile valley in a district formerly regarded as a mountainous waste, beneath the lofty peak of Mount Hagen, near the Papuan border.

The race fights with long wooden pikes, uses stone axes, builds square houses and has a system of garden irrigation. The civilization is described as being far in advance of the peoples bordering on their valley.

Hindenburg Sinking; Hitler Calls Cabinet

Press Prohibited From Speculating on Successor as Government Declares That "All That Has Been Taken Care Of."

Berlin, July 31 (AP).—President Paul von Hindenburg, sturdy idol of the German people, lay under the constant care of physicians today, and the public was warned by an official of his palace here that it may "fear the worst."

The propaganda ministry ordered the German press not to speculate on the successor in event of his death, informing journalists "all that has been taken care of."

Medical bulletins from the bedside of the 86-year-old field marshal in Neudeck, his East Prussian estate, were not greatly alarming in tone, but the fact that formal bulletins are coming frequently, the palace official pointed out, "indicates his condition must be regarded as critical."

Later the official German news agency said no bulletins would be issued during the night, as the president's condition was somewhat improved.

The physicians made no predictions as to how much longer the rugged constitution of the old soldier can hold out against a bladder ailment and a prostate gland trouble, together with other complications of age.

The nation Von Hindenburg led in the World War and which he guided during troubled days later, learned with extreme sorrow and earnest hope that four famous physicians are attending the "grand old man."

Prayers were said in every German community that he might be

Dollfuss Fall Was Plotted By Heimwehr

Winkler Reveals Putsch by Nazis Upset Plan of Home Guard.

Vienna, July 31.—Franz Winkler, former vice chancellor under the late Engelbert Dollfuss, revealed to an interviewer tonight that a radical plan to overthrow Dollfuss' dictatorship already had been worked out by the Fascist Heimwehr when the Nazi putsch Wednesday upset all reckonings.

Winkler at present is remaining outside Austria "somewhere, in Czechoslovakia," keeping his exact whereabouts secret pending further developments. He was mentioned on the Nazi putsch cabinet list as possible minister of agriculture under Anton Rintelen, who was to have been chancellor.

Winkler vigirously denied that he had been approached by the putschist or knew of their plans.

"I knew of course that plans were being made by Nazis in various sections of the country to overthrow the government, but any one who had his eyes open could see that," he said.

"However, I also knew that a much more radical plan to overthrow the Dollfuss dictatorship had been worked out by the Heimwehr (Austrian Fascist Home Guard). I knew very well that Heimwehr leaders ha dsubmitted plans to Nazi leaders to this effect. As a matter of fc, they had many secret meetings together.

"If Rintelen should recover from his wounds he will have lots to say in this connection. In due time I will appear myself on the witness stand with regard to the mater. t

"Wednesday's pusch was a very foolish interruption of a ripening of the fruit which meant the natural death of the Dollfuss regime."

4 Men Rob Phoenix Bank of $1,300, Escape

Phoenix, Va., July 31 (AP).—Four white men this afternoon held up the bank here and escaped with $1,300 in currency. Two of the robbers remained on guard at the door in an automobile while the other two entered, armed with pistols.

Most of the loot was in small bills and included $230 in gold certificates and $129 in mutilated money.

Lehman Commutes Sentence.

New Japanese Premier Calls For Navy Cut

Says U. S., Britain Should Reduce Forces to Near Tokyo Level.

Tokyo, July 31 (AP). — Keisuke Okada, new premier of Japan, whose viewpoint on naval questions was awaited eagerly by the world, said today he believes navies should be reduced to the smallest proportions possible.

But he added that Japan is dissatisfied with the arbitrary 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington Treaty of 1922 as Japan's proportion of capital ships in relation to the United States and Great Britain. Whether the Washington treaty is to be abrogated has not yet been decided, he said.

"I can not favor the present ratio principle in naval limitation, which hurts the self-respect of certain nations," said the premier who was called to the head of the government from a long career as a naval officer.

"To reduce the burden of taxation borne by the people of the world, naval armaments must be reduced to the smallest proportions possible," the premier continued. "Such naval limitation must come from reductions on the part of the most heavily armed nations."

The premier was asked whether he meant that Japan would ask Great Britain and the United States to reduce naval armaments to the level of Japan.

'It is not in my mind to expect such radical changes so suddenly," he replied.

The premier expressed confidence good results will come from the 1935 naval conference.

"I can not believe the conference will fail," he said.

"Challenge to Liberty." Title of Hoover Book

Palo Alto, Calif., July 31 (AP).—Former President Herbert Hoover has turned author, it was announced today, and his book, "The Challenge To Liberty," will be issued in September. The book will not discuss partisan political issues, Paul Sexson, secretary to the former President, stated.

Mr. Hoover, who has been at his writing task for about a year, will survey the situation of human liberty throughout the world. He will discuss Fascism, Socialism, Communism, regimentation and other systems and their progress in various countries.

U. S. Treasury Safe Cracked; Torch Burns Bolt From Door

It was pay day in the Treasury yesterday and things were going very nicely until a clerk closed the door of the safe which had the checks in it.

The time lock, accidentally, had been set for this morning.

As far as the employes were concerned, it might just as well have been another bank holiday.

Experts from the procurement division were sent for. Newspapermen started buzzing around and publicity officials tried to strike a "pooh, pooh" attitude with only fair success. There was the safe door, with checks on one side of it and employes on the other.

It took three hours of work with an acetylene torch before a lock bolt was burnt through and the door opened. Officials took the position that the whole thing was distressing and the less said about it the better. They pointed out that they didn't want the torch episode to become known, "lest it create an impression that the vault was not burglar proof."

The safe, a 6,000 pound Treasury Jonah, dropped in the street when it was being hoisted into the annex a few months ago.

Coded Notes Directing Action Are Found in Suspect's Shoes.

Campaign to Crush Uprising Is Pushed

"Heil Hitler!" Shouted by Doomed Rebels as They Die.

Vienna, July 31 (AP).—Detailed plans for action by Austrian Nazis in a situation such as developed last week with the capture of the chancellery were said in an official announcement tonight to have been sent into Austria from Germany several weeks ago.

Propaganda Chief Walter Adam, in a radio address made in the name of the cabinet, said the plans, which included the possibility of civil war, were contained in coded documents found in the shoes of a man arrested at Kollerschlag, upper Austria.

The man was said to have had a German passport in the name of Franz Heel. The Nazis involved were not named, but were referred to as "our people."

Adam said Heel admitted receiving the documents in Passau, on the Bavarian side of the border, and agreeing to deliver them at the Linz postoffice for $100.

According to a document which was partially deciphered, he said, the words "summer festival" were to be the sign for an unarmed demonstration of Nazis if Chancellor Dollfuss resigned.

In case of opposition from government-armed forces the words "prize shooting" and "Italian power" were given as the sign for an armed insurrection.

At the same time the government continued its campaign to end opposition by ordering all persons who hear rumors likely to disturb the peace to report the rumor-spreaders to the authorities.

Two Nazis Hanged For Dollfuss' Death

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Vienna, July 31.—Almost six days to the hour after Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss died, two Nazis accused of implication in killing him were hanged in the prison yard today.

The official account of their execution declared that the Nazis died with the shout "Heil Hitler!" on their lips.

One, Franz Holzweber, convicted of high treason as the leader of the putsch in which Dollfuss died, also shouted "I die for Germany!" the official account stated.

Holzweber was followed on the gallows by Otto Planetta, former army staff sergeant, who said he killed Dollfuss without intending to do so and begged forgiveness in court.

First Nazis to Be Hanged.

Holzweber and Planetta were the first Nazis to be hanged in Austria, despite numerous acts of terrorism charged against them before they broke into civil war after the putsch and the killing of Dollfuss last Wednesday.

They were two of the 144 men arrested after the raid on the federal chancellery who were refused a promised safe transit to Germany because Dollfuss was killed.

New bombing outrages broke out as the two went on trial before a court-martial yesterday and as the armed revolt in the southern provinces was all but wiped out.

At the same time the government of Kurt von Schuschnigg, Dollfuss' successor, took stern measures to suppress Nazis, ordering that those who engaged in rebellion be placed in concentration camps at hard labor. Their property is to be confiscated.

Clemency Plea Rejected.

Holzweber and Planetta were hanged after the prescribed three hours following their conviction by the court-martial. Their counsel made a plea for clemency, which was rejected by President Miklas.

Both men were convicted of high treason. In the case of Planetta the charge of killing Dollfuss also was sustained.

After the hanging, a woman in a blue dress, weeping bitterly and supported by two friends, came out of the gloomy prison courtyard. She was Frau Planetta, who yesterday had begged to be allowed to express her sympathy to the wife of the man her husband killed.

(The wish has not been granted, and Frau Dollfuss has returned to her children in Riccione, Italy.)

Before he died Planetta, who was a Catholic, received absolution from a priest, and Holzweber, a protestant, knelt in prayer with his pastor. Holzweber was allowed a farwell moment with his wife, and Planetta said good-by to his wife, sister and a sister-in-law.

"I did not mean to kill the chancellor," Planetta had said in the court where he and his co-defendant seemed the calmest persons present. "I am sorry."

The stuffy courtroom was crowded as the time came to pronounce sentence.

Planetta was asked if he had any last word.

The former soldier clicked his heels, threw back his shoulders and said:

"I don't know how many hours I have to live, but before I go I should like to say this:

"I am no cowardly murderer. But what I did I did out of love for my country.

Begs Forgiveness.

"But I want also to say this: I did not mean to kill the chancellor, and for that reason I am sorry.

"And for that I beg forgiveness."

His voice was strong and clear.

Holzweber, recognized by correspondents as one of those who stood beside Fey while the captors of the chancellery bargained for surrender, then made his statement.

"I undertook the leadership of the Ballhausplatz raid," he said, "only after I had been assured that Anton Rintelen would arrive immediately after we captured the Dollfuss cabinet with full authority from President Miklas to take over the government.

"I undertook the command under the definite understanding that there must be no bloodshed and no harm done any cabinet member. The only objective was the capture of Dollfuss and the cabinet.

"I emphasize that we did what we did out of love of country."

Defense counsel sought vainly to have the chancellor and other cabinet members, along with the recalled German Minister Rieth, summoned to bear out Fey's testimony that the putschists had been promised safe transit to Germany if they would surrender.

The agreement was made, but not carried out, and the German minister was summarily recalled for the part he had in it.

Alley Authority To Be Divided

Committee Is Expected to Recommend Group Be Appointed.

The President's advisory committee on elimination of inhabited alleys in the District will not recommend any individual or individuals, as such, for appointment to the "authority" which will conduct the slum clearance drive prescribed by the Capper-Norton act.

This much was learned yesterday as the committee worked on the report it will submit to President Roosevelt on his return next week.

Canon Anson Phelps Stokes said that the committee will name official offices in its recommendations for appointment to the authority rather than names of persons. Canon Stokes is chairman of the committee.

Although the President is authorized, under the alley act, to name only one person to constitute the authority if he so chooses, indications are that the committee will recommend three or more representative office holders. Likely possibilities are the chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, a District commissioner, the Public Works Administrator and a representative of the Washington committee on housing.

The advisory committee will meet again at 3 p. m. today to consider the final draft of the Presidential report.

Arts Club Closes Rehearsals of Play

A dress rehearsal last night concluded preparations for the "Queen's Gambit," to be presented by the Arts Club Players tonight to assist in raising funds for the President's Cup regatta.

The performance will be given in the garden of the Leiter Mansion at Dupont Circle. The event is sponsored by Harold A. Long, chairman of the drama committee of the Arts Club, and William I. Deming, vice president. An orchestra will give a concert before the show and between the acts.

J. J. Liston Retired As Fire Lieutenant

Retirement of Lieut. J. J. Liston, of the District Fire Department, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners on recommendation of the retiring board.

Lieut. Liston was born on July 28, 1885, and was appointed a private in the Fire Department on August 4, 1906. He was made a lieutenant on November 17, 1930. He was awarded a ribbon for meritoriuous services during the Knickerbocker disaster and again in 1926. He was retired for physical incapacities incurred in yline of duty.

Hostility Gains In Yugoslavia Against Italy

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 31 (AP). Annoyance oyer the Italian threat of armed intervention in Austria grew here today until it could be seen even in the carefully muzzled official press.

The newspaper Novosti, of that class, says Premier Mussolini's immediate concentration of troops on the ustrian border was designed especially to increase the prestige of the government at home.

In doing so, says the paper, the Italian leader risked plunging Europe into war.

The opinion was expressed in official quarters that Italy was largely responsible for the mess in Austria she now is so anxious to clean up.

Had it not been for Italian encouragement and advice, say those of this viewpoint, Austrian fascism never would have crushed the socialist movement so brutally.

Italy Denies Plan To Play Lone Hand

Rome, July 31 (AP).—A government spokesman today said that it has not been Italy's idea to play a lone hand in the Austrian situation. This was the answer to a statement from Belgrade indicating that the Yugoslavian government opposes intervention by a single country.

Italy's only interest is in maintaining Austrian independence, and if other nations help her, such action would be welcome, the spokesman said.

He also denied a report that Premier Mussolini had told Chancellor Hitler by telephone that Nazi activity in Austria must cease.

The Austrian situation now is regarded with complete calm, he said, but there is constant watchfulness.

Concern Growing, French Disclose

Paris, July 31 (AP).—French officials, speaking privately, tonight made no effort to conceal their concern over the Austrian situation and the grave problems which the death of President von Hindenburg might create in Germany.

The government here is in a dilemma over the determination of Premier Mussolini of Italy to use his army in Austria if necessary to maintain the independence and the stability of government there.

Yugoslavia's objections to the idea of any Nation playing a lone hand in the Austrian situation proved a surprise to French officials.

Since France had sanctioned Mussolini's move in sending troops to the Austrian border, the foreign office was caught between its desire to encourage the Italian irritation against Germany and the suspicions of Yugoslavia.

Pay Boosted On D. C. Jobs

Carpenters, Steamfitters and Helpers Given Wage Increase.

Carpenters, steamfitters and steamfitter's helpers were given increases in prescribed wage on District projects under an order issued yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The order listed the wage which must be paid workers on construction projects under District jurisdiction for all classes of workers from common laborers to hghly skilled workers.

Wages of carpenters were increased from $1 to $1.25 an hour. Pay of steamfitters was increased from $1.29 an hour to $1.50, and that of steamfitter's helpers from 74½ cents to 82½ cents an hour.

The wages prescribed are to be paid by contractors on District projects. They are not followed by the District in employing skilled workmen on relief projects.

Wages of common laborers were fixed at from 40 to 45 cents an hour minimum. The 40-cent minimum has been prescribed since last September.

The new wage list is believed to be satisfactory with union labor leaders, who were consulted in the course of its preparation.

Life Threatened, Shop Owner Dies

Seattle, July 31 (AP).—A warning of death came Sunday to Gus Eckland, 63, in his little shop where he made curtain rods.

A note, pinned to the door, read: "Beware! By midnight tomorrow night, you will be dead unless you get away. If you do run away, I'll burn your factory and house down!"

Trembling, G... Eckland carried the note to police.

They told him not to worry, that probably a "crank" had left him the note. They would watch over him to see that no one harmed him.

So Gus Eckland went back to his home.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning a customer found him sitting in a chair in his shop—dead.

Funeral services as simple as the life she followed were held for Marie Dressler before a small gathering.

Film stars and waitresses, cameramen and executives, as well as friends from outside the business where she made her great success late in life, gathered at the Wee Kirk O'The Heather, in Forest Lawn Cemetery here, to pay their last respects to the screen star.

Colored Servants Present.

In the cubicle of the church were only the closest friends of the actress. They included James and Mamie Cox, her colored servants; May Robson, a veteran trouper; Norma Shearer, Frances Marion, once a protege of Miss Dressler, and other close friends who knew her affectionafely as "the Ugly Duckling."

Fewer than a hundred others, including Polly Moran, Jean Hersholt and Lionel Barrymore, who have worked in pictures with Miss Dressler, were in the chapel proper. A hundred chairs had been placed outside the church, but none was occupied.

A loudspeaker carried to the outside the voices of the Rev. Neal Dodd, Episcopalian minister, who read the service, and of Jeanette MacDonald, concert and screen star, who sang "Face to Face" and "Abide With Me."

300 Wait Outside.

Outside the gates of the cemetery waited some of Marie's fans—not more than 300, mostly women and children. Guards kept them from entering the cemetery.

After the last words of the Twenty-third Psalm had been read by Mr. Dodd, the casket was taken to the mausoleum called the Sanctuary of Benediction, with the cemetery grounds.

The body of the actress, whose 62 eventful years ended last Saturday on the estate of friends near Santa Barbara, will rest near the remains of several other personalities of her world, including Milton Sills, Florenz Ziegfeld, Lon Chaney, Wallace Reid, Ernest Torrance and Earle Williams.

Gobs on Spree Give Celebrities' Names To Evade 'The Brig'

"What are your names?" three defendants were asked in Police Court yesterday.

"'m IJoe Penner," said one.

"My name is Rubinoff." said another.

Charlie Dirscoll, clerk, looked skeptical. Judge Ralph Given smiled. The defendants, charged with intoxication, were released on personal bond.

They were three sailors and explained that if their identies were revealed it would mean at least a month in "the brig."

Hitler Back in Berlin.

Chancellor Hitler, in whose hands the death of the president might place more power or who might find his problem greater, hurried to Berlin from Bavaria, where he had been in conferences.

Hitler ordered all members of the cabinet, most of whom have been on vacation, to return to Berlin and be ready for a meeting of the cabinet tomorrow night.

Telephone operators at the chancellery were busy for several hours trying to locate the ministers, most of whom were in some secluded corner of the nation.

Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio, was the first to arrive, reaching Berlin by motor at 7 p. m.

If President von Hindenburg still is living, Hitler plans to go by plane to Marienburg, leaving here at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

From Marienburg he will motor to Neudeck to demonstrate his veneraton for the President and in the hope of speaking to him once more.

Newspaper Suspended.

Aside from the immediate question of the President's condition, is the important problem regarding succession.

Political circles mention several possibilities, but even before its definite order the government showed speculation was not wanted by suspending for a week the newspaper Deutsche Zeitung for "tactless" (though distinctly pro-Hitler) comment.

The first possibility, which most persons in political circles seemed to regard as most likely, was that Dr. Edwin Bumke, president of the supreme court, would become temporary President until new elections are held, in accordance with the constitution.

In this connection, however, it was pointed out by a foreign office official that "the Hitler government holds emergency powers enabling it to do almost anything."

Some Quarters Concerned.

Should the Nazi dictator "do almost anything" some circles wondered if he would be content to become President and thus be more removed from the bustling political scene, or whether he would abolish the post of chancellor and rule somewhat after the American fashion, centralizing the chancellor's powers in the presidency.

These points created concern and apprehension in some quarters, for Von Hindenburg always has been looked upon as a brake to check Nazi impetuosity.

It has been rumored repeatedly that Von Hindenburg wrote a "political will" naming the conservative Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as his successor and asking the Reichwehr to support him.

To Mark War Opening.

Von Papen, however, now has been named special German envoy to Austria, and some quarters believe Hitler would be free to carry out a reported plan to become president himself and make Hermann Wilhelm Goering chancellor.

News of the president's illness came as preparations were being made throughout the Nation for observing the twentieth anniversary of the start of the World War Thursday.

Church bells of the nation will toll in memory of the dead, and parts of Hess' "Peace" speech of July 8 will be repeated over the radio.

Bandit Seizes $500 in Capitol Hill Robbery

said he heard a door shut behind him, and turned to face a swarthy, broken-nosed, coatless intruder, who thrust a revolver aganist his ribs.

Rifles Cash Drawer.

The robber took the contents of the cash drawer, and ordered the clerk to open the safe, which he did.

All this took place in what would have been in full view of any person who might have stepped into the alcove off the main corridor in quest of a stamp. Stuckey and the bandit were concealed from sight of the police on duty on the main floor only by a corner of the alcove.

After scooping a double handful of bills from the postoffice safe, and overlooking $600, the gunman ordered Stuckey to retire behind a screen concealing a wash basin in a corner.

"Stand there," the clerk was told, "and don't dare to move for five minutes."

Stuckey said he waited until he heard the door shut behind the bandit, but the latter was gone from the building, without anyone having noticed him, before the alarm was given.

Instead of raising an outcry, which would have brought the police in the corridor to his counter in an instant, the clerk attempted to telephone for help, only to find that the robber had snipped the wires.

Robber Leaves No Trace.

By the time the Capitol and city police were notified, at 3:35 p. m., there was no trace of the bandit. Whether he had an accomplice in a waiting automobile, or whether he escaped on foot none could say.

Stuckey, whose home is at 1621 Potomac avenue southeast, described the robber as from 35 to 40 years old, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, wearing a Panama hat with the brim turned down sharply, a white shirt open at the neck, and dark trousers. The bandit's only distinguishing feature on which the police had to work last night was a peculiarly flattened nose which apparently had been broken.

The alcove in which the House Office Building postoffice is located is less than 50 feet from the main entrance, where Capitol police always are on duty to direct visitors. City police, who took charge of the investigation while postal inspectors checked the loss, said at least several of the 5 minutes demanded of Stuckey by the bandit must have elapsed before the alarm was given. They also believe the gunman had knowledge of the fact that yesterday was to have been pay day, and that the clerk would be alone.

Orders were issued from police headquarters last night to all commanding officers to have their men keep a strict lookout at all banks and business houses for any persons attempting to get change for a $100 bill, two of which were in the loot. The stolen cash also included several new $20 bills.

Convict Is Shot After Taking Marshal's Gun

Mexico, Mo., July 31 (AP).—Two escaped Indiana convicts were captured here today after one of them had been wounded when he disarmed an arresting officers and attempted to shoot it out.

The convicts, Joe Burnett, 27, and William C. Jay, 45, escaped from the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City last Saturday.

Burnett was shot in the chest,arm and leg by W. A. Debo, mayor and deputy sheriff, after the convicts had disarmed Robert Baker, city marshal. The wounds were not serious.

As Debo and Baker halted a suspicious-looking car, the latter was disarmed by the fugitives. Debo shot Burnett when the latter attempted to fire at the marshal with Baker'sgun.

Jay was serving a 20-year term in the Indiana prison on a robbery charge. Burnett was serving 10 years for burglary. Burnett also is wanted as an escaped convict in Colorado.

New Japanese Premier Calls For Naval Cut

Says U. S., Britain Should Reduce Forces to Near Tokyo Level.

said he could not see, as some Japanese newspapers have intimated, that there was any connection between naval questions and the visit of President Roosevelt to Hawaii.

Japanese Statement Is Held Encouraging

Japan's suggestion for a reduction in naval forces of other countries to the Japanese level, and Stanley Baldwin's declaration in the House of Commons that the Rhine is now Britain's frontier, brought forth comments from official and semi-official quarters here yesterday.

The most encouraging feature of Premier Keisuke Okada's suggestion was seen here in the circumstances that Japan should be going so far as to mention reduction in arms. In the past, it was pointed out, Japan's talk has all been of increased naval strength and higher ratio with Great Britain and the United States.

Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association, said Baldwin's declaration will invite American attention to the importance of air defense, particularly since it comes from a power whose predominent interest hitherto has been in seacraft.

U. S. Coastal Warning.

"The statement is a recognition of the tremendously increased speed and carrying capacity of the new bombers," Mr. Bingham said.

"At present the British channel is an insufficient protection because its width is not great enough to permit defending planes in the London area to assemble in sufficient quantities at high altitude to disperse an attack.

"Today the effective range of a bomber with a full load is more than 500 miles, and it is important for the United States to consider that bombers could reach coast cities from airplane carriers 500 miles at sea."

The immediate reaction in official quarters here over the Japanese suggestion was that if the question of who is most "highly armed" is to be considered, Japan, herself, has in the view of many, relatively heavier armaments than either of the great sea powers.

Japan Near Treaty Strength.

It was pointed out that Japan's fleet is closest to treaty strength. The United States, even with ships under construction and contemplated, will still be about 80 vessels under treaty strength and Great Britain is reported to lack 40 ships of the limit.

Other air defense enthusiasts snapped on Mr. Baldwin's speech to urge quick expansion of American flying forces. Asserting that under modern conditions "the frontiers of nations are no longer geographical," Senator William G. McAdoo (Democrat), California, proposed that "by some peaceful method" United States sovereignty should be extended over all the West Indies.

"None of them should be under foreign flags," the Californian declared. "California particularly wants a strong aviation arm. But not only the Pacific Coast but Hawaii as well should be our great outpost with adequate tri-dimensional defense."

Officials here reguarded the Baldwin statement largely as putting on official record what statesmen of the world have been thinking and saying privately for more than 10 years—that the airplane has moved the defense frontiers of practically all military powers far beyond their own political frontiers.

The Baldwin statement, they believed, would pass without creating any great diplomatic furor. Nevertheless, it was considered a pronouncement of policy of the first importance.

Diplomatic circles believed Baldwin's statement would go far toward cementing Franco-British relations, in that it reveals a British defense policy practically identical with that propounded by French statesmen for years.

Dr. I. D. Bronfin Dies; Expert on Tuberculosis

Denver, July 31 (AP).—Dr. I. D. Bronfin, 48, medical director of the National Jewish Hospital, considered by his colleagues as an authority on tuberculosis, died of that disease here today.

Dr. Bronfin came to the United States in 1902 from Russia. Recently he had been associated with other Denver physicians in seeking a preventive for tuberculosis and a serum was developed. Its value is now being tested.

N. H. Lee Sues District For Injuries in Fall

Because he stepped into an allegedly unguarded excavation on E street near Fourteenth street northwest, and was seriously injured in a fall, Newton H. Lee, 4425 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday filed suit in the District Supreme Court against the District government for $15,000.

Lee claimed he was walking along the street February 2, 1934, when he fell into the excavation. He suffered a broken leg and broken hip.

Murder of Poet Laid To California Inspector

Woodland, Calif., July 31 (AP).—After witnesses related that Judson Doke, San Leandro city inspector, had threatened to shoot, tar and feather Lamar Hollingshead, 23, Berkeley student poet, a coroner's jury today returned a verdict charging Doke with the murder of Hollingshead. The accused man's preliminary hearing was set for August 22.

William Breesen, harvest worker, testified about the alleged threats made by Doke, who has told authorities he was trying to break up an affair between his wife, a writer of verse, and the young poet.

U. S. Aid Asked By New Orleans To Halt Militia

of the Hotel Roosevelt, surrounded by private bodyguards.

From Long's hotel headquarters, Gov. Allen, leader in the Long organization, who recently threatened ouster proceedings against Mayor Walmsley, District Attorney Eugene Stanley and Chief of Police George Reyer of New Orleans, after charging them with countenancing "vice and debauchery" in the city, sent out a cryptic "warning" statement, which read:

"Tell the world that New Orleans is now to be known as the center of learning and science; the gateway to all continents; the center of the greatest highway, railway and waterway development in the world; and that the reign of vice and crime is a thing of the past.

"Let no one try to flaunt the warning I have given."

Both Take to Radio.

Tonight, both Long and Walmsley took to the radio to air their differences.

Gov. Allen's "warning" followed a gesture of defiance on the part of the city, in turning to the civil courts to prevent the functioning of a new police board for New Orleans, provided for in a bill pushed through the recent Legislature by Senator Long. The bill was shaped to take police supervision away from Mayor Walmsley by placing it in the hands of a board of seven, named by seven civic organizations.

Charging that irregularities attended the passage of the legislative act and that it was therefore unconstitutional, Walmsley sent the city attorneys before District Judge Hugh C. Cage and secured a temporary restraining order, to prevent the new board from taking office at noon tomorrow, as scheduled. A hearing was called for Monday on the plea for permanent injunction.

Guard Officials Deny Receipt of Protest

Both National Guard Bureau officials and Maj. Gen. James F. McKinley, the adjutant general, reported last night that up to the time of the closing of their offices they had received no protest or request for aid from the City of New Orleans, the Associated Press reported.

Officials were informed through press dispatches that city administration officials had made an appeal concerning the use of National Guard troops by State authorities to seize the city voting registration office, but all declined to comment upon pending receipt of the official communication.

Legion Parade Plan Completed

60 Units to Join March, Launching Annual Convention.

Plans for the Georgia avenue-Brightwood parade, which will open the sixteenth annual three-day convention of the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion, August 8 to 10 in the Paul Junior High School, Eighth and Nicholson streets northwest, were completed last night by committees representing the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association and the Legion.

Robert A. Ralph, vice commander of the Legion and parade committee chairman, yesterday issued final marching orders for the procession, which will include more tahn 60 units will require two hours to pass the reviewing setand.

Traffic arrangements have been completed by E. L. Edwards, chairman for the Georgia avenue group, in conferences with Police Inspector Lamb of the Traffic Bureau and Capts. Morgan and Sheetz, through whose precincts the parade will pass. Civic and business men's associations from other sections have promised to participate, according to Edwards.

Committee members include William J. McManus, Milton R. Vollmer, E. S. Finkel, A. Denekas, J. Walker, E. W. Sanders, Sam Eig and E. Minnoux from the Georgia avenue group and Leo Riehl, Ben Ahronson, Raymond Eichborn, William Hargraves, Alfred Picchione, Joseph Malloy, Martin Dyer, William Kehoe, Lucille Allen and Rodney Horton for the Legion.

U. S. to Fight Plea of Insull

Gives Cold Reception to His Petition for Separate Trial.

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—Samuel Insull was ready to tell all today, but despite his assumption of full responsibility for the conduct of corporation securities the Government gave a cold reception to his appeal for a separate trial.

In a nine-page petition filed with the district court, Insull stated his objections to being tried with 16 co defendants on charges of using the mails to defraud. They ranged from a fear that his case would be prejudiced by the admission of evidence which would not be admissbile against him alone, to another fear that the circumstances surrounding his European exile would be prejudicial to the other defendants.

Dwight H. Green, District Attorney, said the Government would oppose the petition.

Promising a "full and frank" disclosure of all his business operations, Insull said he was willing to accept full responsibility for his acts and those of his associates who acted upon his advice. He declared however, that because of his infirmities he feared a lengthy trial would endanger his life.

The hearing of the petition probably will be held at the start of the trial, scheduled for September 18.

Stockyards Strike Reaches Stalemate

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—With Gen. Hugh S. Johnson en route to Chicago, and willing to take a hand if needed, each side in the week old stockyards strike sat back tonight and waited for the other to budge.

Meanwhile, the world's biggest live-stock market had an abandoned air. Scattered about the giant feed lot were some 6,000 head of scrawny cattle, all owned by the Federal Government, waiting to be killed and canned as relief rations.

Three thousand were unloaded today and aside from what the packers received direct, they were the only stock on hand. Normal receipts run from 15,000 to 20,000 head.

Attorneys for the striking livestock handlers and for the Union Stockyards & Transit Co. said more conferences were planned in an attempt to come to terms. The "sticking point" was said to be the wage rate for "extra men" called in for emergency duty when the day's shipments are heavy.

Gen. Johnson's interest was reported to be only to see that the live stock in the yards do not suffer during the handlers' strike. Yards officials and Government cattle men said that all the stock was being fed and watered regularly.

18,000 Back at Work As Coast Strike Ends

San Francisco, July 31 (AP).—Marking the end of the Pacific Coast maritime strike, some 18,000 longshoremen and other seafaring workers returned to their jobs today.

Cargo that had piled high since the longshoremen went on strike May 9 began moving.

The walkout involved ten maritime unions and was marked by the recent general strike in the San Francisco Bay district. The toll of the long controversy was at least ten deaths, hundreds injured and a cost of $200,000,000 to business.

While the union men were back at their posts today, president Roosevelt's mediation board laid plans for immediate arbitration of disputes between employes and employers.

In the harbor here 51 deep-water vessels were being worked by union stevedores and the water front was the scene of booming business.

Similar activity began in other ports.

Tugwell Hits "Tory" Critics Of AAA Plans

Says "Reactionaries" Are Making the Drought a Political Issue.

other officials were combatting movement hostile to the agriculture adjustment program in the drought-stricken grain, corn and cattle belts. The undersecretary recently returned from the drought area.

"These people would like us to abandon the farms, not to the laws of nature, but to the general unfriendliness of speculators," Mr. Tugwell continued.

"These same Tories fought for years to maintain unlimited immigration into the United States, in order that they might have a constant supply of cheap labor and of what really amounted to a reservoir of strike-breakers with which to combat the efforts of American labor to win decent wages and working conditions."

Praises Crop Reduction.

Without the New Deal's financial program to aid agriculture and drought sufferers and its measures to provide against future catastrophies, including the $75,000,000 great shelter-belt of forest from the Canadian border to Texas, Mr. Tugwell said "we should face famine and political revolution in the farm States and food riots in the cities."

He said there are features of the farm program which offend the sensitive and surprise the many "who do not realize that under our present system it is good business to prevent the production of surplus wealth."

Out of the old business system, which he said expired when the New Deal came into power, grew industrial unemployment and agricultural bankruptcy. It would have been sheer madness, he asserted, for farmers to have continued to produce superabundantly at the same time that industry was destroying purchasing power.

Says Readjustment Necessary.

"There was obviously the most urgent need for readjustment between industry and farming under such a system," Mr. Tugwell continued.

"I know that I am speaking for the Department of Agriculture when I say that it was only with the greatest reluctance that we temporarily called a halt to that unchecked, gigantic and uneconomic abundance which is the latest product of science, but we felt that with industrial America controlling its production in order to maintain profitable prices, with absolute indifference to the fate of the millions who depend on industry for a livelihood, agriculture America could not survive without corresponding measures of readjustment and self control.

"We felt that under the old order America had become, economically, a house divided against itself, which could not stand unless it became all of one thing or all of the other. Either industry must prefer abundance to scarcity or it would compel agriculture to prefer scarcity to abundance."

Says Election Was Mandate.

"Despite the lamentations of the Tory obscurantists, we know that we are living in a democracy and we know that the American people have given no mandate for the final abandonment of our traditional business system. When the American people gave this Administration authority—and the Tories seem to forget that the American people by a record vote did confer very wide authority—it was to readjust relationships among old institutions, to overhaul them, to repair them, to make them work if they could be made to work, to modify them when they failed to function and to demonstrate by the old method of trial and error which of these institutions could be readjusted to the new economic environment of the postwar world. * * *"

The Undersecretary described how the field representatives of farm program were functioning and outlined the policy for the purchase of 7,000,000 cattle in the drought area. He said there were more cattle than needed and that the carryover of wheat and corn is enough to prevent excessive prices for essential foods.

"That is why the Tory outcry is so infantile and so inconsistent, where it is not the indecent expression of joy that thousands of farmers have been hurt by freak weather," he added.

Refers to 1931 Drought.

"What they resent is the fact that the people of the United States have organized themselves to deal promptly and effectively with economic problems as they arise, without being thrown on the mercy of those who formerly profited by demoralization and coined chaos into speculative profits."

Mr. Tugwell referred to the Arkansas drought of 1931 and said that the Government then "had no remedy except to lend them (the farmers) and their fellows in other States money on the security of their blasted hopes.

"When this drought came," he continued, "the Government was ready to deal with the emergency when it arose.

"For by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration there has been established a democratic principle in agriculture and a cooperative field organizaton which is on the spot and which, like the Marines, has landed and has the situatoin in hand."

U. S. Cruiser Will Return Envoy's Body

Ambassador May Will Be Paid High Honors by United States.

A United States cruiser will return to Antwerp next week the body of Belgian Ambassador Paul May, who died Monday following an operation at the Emergency Hospital.

The body will lie in state at the embassy from 2 to 4 p. m. today, and will be accorded the highest honors this Nation can pay an envoy.

At the receiving vault at Arlington, amidst the graves of America's honored dead, a representative of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the Secretary of State and his staff and members of the diplomatic corps will attend public funeral services, probably Saturday.

President Pays Tribute.

Tomorrow, there will be private services at the embassy, with funeral rites according to the Hebrew faith, since Ambassador May was an orthodox Jew.

On Friday, an artillery caisson, with a cavalry escort and a band, with muffled drums, will convey the body to Arlington.

High tribute to the memory of the late envoy was paid yesterday by President Roosevelt in a wireless message to the State Department from the cruiser Houston. The President directed Secretary of State Hull to convey his condolences to Mme. May, and to say how shocked Mr. Roosevelt was by word of the loss of one whom he held in high esteem.

"It was a privilege to have enjoyed his friendship," the Chief Executive wirelessed.

At Brussels, acting under instructions from the State Department, the American charge d'affaires voiced to the Belgian government the sorrow and regret of the United States over the death of M. May.

Secretary Hull expressed to the widow his personal sense of loss, saying he was deeply shocked to learn of the envoy's tragic death.

"He made a most distinguished place for himself in Washington," Hull said, "and this Nations mourns his passing."

Like President Roosevelt, Hull was a personal friend of M. May.

Mme. May Prostrated.

Mme. May was prostrated with grief at the embassy yesterday. Tomorrow's services will be limited strictly to the family, the embassy staff and a very few close friends.

At the State Department, it was said that ararngements for the public funeral services at Arlington will be left to Mme. May's wishes.

Next week, on Wednesday or Thursday, the remains will be taken to Washington Navy Yard, again with fitting honors and a cavalry escort, and placed aboard a warship for the trip to Antwerp.

Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, now at Newport, R. I., will designate the cruiser which is to convey the body home.

Affairs at the Belgian embassy are temporarily in charge of Prince Eugene de Ligne, counsellor, who is expected to serve pending appointment of a successor to M. May.

2 Reporters Fined, Freed From Jail

Danville, Ky., July 31 (AP).—Jack Durham and Wesley Canty, two young reporters who have been going to jail daily for refusing to violate a confidence, were given fines instead of jail sentences late today.

Police Judge Jay W. Harlan in assessing them $3 each, remarked, however, as he did so, "I want you to understand that the court is not weakening because of this fine." He ordered them to come back tomorrow.

The pair, held in contempt each day since July 23 when they first declined to say who "tipped" them that State Representative J. Sterling Towles was to be hung in effigy, already have spent 33 hours each in jail and pail several fines, totaling with costs, $18.75 each.

Silence Balks Police Quiz in Hotel Shooting

Girl and Man Held; Police Say They Know Name of Assailant.

Stubborn silence, typical of the underworld, defied police yesterday as they sought to question a man and his woman companion in connection with the mysterious shooting of Sidney Diehn, 30, former convict, in front of the Annapolis Hotel Monday.

Although insisting his investigators "learned nothing" during an hour's grilling of Betty Soloff, 24, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, detective chief, said that identity of Diehn's assailant is known. The Soloff woman, with Reuben C. Rose, 43, was arrested early yesterday and is being held for investigation.

Soon after she left headquarters in custody of a policewoman late yesterday, a lookout "flash" was sent for Benny Soloff, alias "The Bear." He is said to be the woman's husband. Authorities declined to reveal his possible connection with the shooting.

Meanwhile, in Gallinger Hospital, Diehn refuses to talk. Questions are met with silence. Police are convinced, however, that the knows his assailant.

Except to deny connection with the shooting, Betty Soloff also refused to answer questions, Inspector Burke said. Rose is held at the First Precinct Station and will be questioned today.

Diehn, known under several aliases, was shot as he stood in front of the hotel. The gunman fled in a black sedan driven by a woman. Shot in the groin, Diehn is perhaps crippled for life, physicians said. Police records show he served a prison term for grand larceny.

Inspector Burke denied reports that solution of the shooting may uncover a widespread vice ring.

"The affair apparently developed from a personal grudge," he said.

10 a. m.	83	4 p. m.	83
11 a. m.	85	5 p. m.	84
noon	87	6 p. m.	79
1 p. m.	88	7 p. m.	77
2 p. m.	91	8 p. m.	76
3 p. m.	86	9 p. m.	75

A sudden thunder shower brought relief to the Southeastern section of the District yesterday, after a maximum tempearture of 91, reported at 2 p. m., had prostrated a workman.

Mogel Avery, 44, colored, 1100 block of Sixteenth street northeast, was felled by the heat as he worked in a brick plant at New York avenue and Hickey lane northeast. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where his condition is undetermined.

The rainfall, which was slight, occurred shortly after 2 p. m. Its center, according to the Weather Bureau, was south of Alexandria. Humidity averaged 45, while gentle, westerly breezes fanned the city after the shower.

Today, the Weather Bureau predicted, will be fair, with little change in temperature.

Soldiers to Quell Chinese Gold Rush

Peasants Find Abandoned Mine Is Bonanza.

Canton, China, July 31 (AP).—The national government today dispatched troops with machine guns to the Yanking district near Kongmoon, to drive off the villagers from the local gold diggings.

A mining company operated there unsuccessfully years ago and during the recent torrential rins the hillside was washed out, revealing free gold.

Peasants rushed to the spot from miles around and are reported to have extracted 10,000 ounces, worth about $380,000, in the last two weeks. The government then claimed the area as crown land, but the peasants refused to quit.

AAA Benefits Offset Errors, Says Wallace

Cites Increasing Incomes of Farmers in Speech in Kentucky.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 31 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace tonight reiterated his arguments for continuation of the agricultural adjustment program in an address before a group of Kentucky farmers.

Because of the scale of operations under the Agricultural Adjustment Act some experimenting was necessary, the Secretary said.

"Consequently, we made some mistakes, but when we look at the accomplishments we are convinced that we are moving in the right direction, because it is clearly evident that the excess supplies are being moved into consumptive channels and the farmers' income is being increased," he said.

The Administration has a long way yet to go, Wallace said, but progress has been made in increasing the income of tobacco growers through a marketting agreement and ination.

"Our immediate problem," he said, "is to consolidate the gains already made and keep production near the level of consumption until such time as the slower working remedies begin to take effect."

Wallace declared much of the difficulties of tobacco farmers in recent years resulted from disappearance of foreign markets, coupled with increased production when farmers sought to maintain their income in the face of declining prices.

"In view of this situation it appeared imperative that the American farmer restrict his output until some of the excess supplies could be moved into consumptive channels or until the recently lost export outlets could be reopened," he said.

Dollfuss "on Trip," Children Are Told

Riccione, Italy, July 31 (AP).—Frau Dollfuss, widow of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, today performed the mournful duty of telling her children, Rudolf, 9, and Eva, 10, something about the assassination of their father at Vienna.

The widow returned to the villa of Premier Mussolini of Italy, where the premier's wife, Donna Rachele, had cared for the Dollfuss children during the absence of their mother.

Frau Dollfuss wept as she embraced the children at a railway station.

At the Mussolini villa Frau Dollfuss explained to them that their father had departed on a long journey, and that they always must remember his gallant figure. Then she retired to her own apartment to pray.

Sinclair Uses Hard Times to Build Support

Southern California Looks Upon Socialist as a Messiah.

By Raymond Clapper.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 31. Hard times in Southern California have made Upton Sinclair the political phenomenon of this section and any number of astute Republican leaders in this State figure that he will be their opponent for the governorship after the primaries August 28.

This veteran Socialist pamphleteer is making a spectacular race, due largely to the fact that probably one-third of the people in this section of the State are dependent on public and private relief. Southern California is suffering out of proportion to the rest of the State because of its great boom which attracted thousands of shoestring investors. The mild climate has drawn thousands of others who, having no jobs anyway, find the hardships of unemployment less rigorous here than in their own localities where the winters are more severe.

This, added to the curious temperament of the section, which has always been somewhat less emotionally stable than the more solid, conservative and less spectacular people of San Francisco, has provided this year's campaign with one of the most unconventional of all candidates in Sinclair.

He has violated all of the rules and has, in a sense, become to regular churches here. In short, he McPherson was for a while to the regular chruches here. In short, he makes a good show out of it, draws huge crowds and turns converts into cash customers.

Frankly, a Socialist who sees a chance to step in and seize control of the Democratic machinery, Sinclair has climbed down from the literary soapbox he has occupied since he wrote "The Jungle" to expose the meat packing industry almost 30 years ago, and is now out to demonstrate whether the pen is mightier than the machine—Senator William G. McAdoo having massed his powerful California Democratic organization behind George Creel.

Creel, war-time head of the Committee on Public Information at Washington, a spectacular progressive crusader himself, and like Sinclair an author of wide reputation, is personally a much more entertaining, colorful man than Sinclair. But his campaign has been conducted on more orthodox lines.

Republican Candidates.

Sinclair, lean, ascetic, deadly serious to the point of fanaticism, appeals to the Messiah complex of Southern California much more strongly than the robust raconteur who for all of his idealism is a good deal more earthy. Creel gets too much fun out of life to be mistaken by the average Southern Californian for a Messiah.

Of the Republican candidates for governor, they are much too solid to compete with Sinclair as showmen. There is Merriam, the present governor, who went into office upon the death of Rolph; former Gov. Young, who left an excellent record as a steady, business-like executive of large capacity, and Quinn, former commander of the American Legion.

California normally is overwhelmingly Republican, but Democratic registration this year has shot up until it is about fifty-fifty. Many Republicans hope that Sinclair will be nominated feeling that he will be deserted by conservative Democrats and that, although he is the most spectacular candidate in the race, he will be the easiest to defeat.

Volunteers Run Campaign.

Sinclair's campaign is run by volunteers. His State quarters here is in a 32-roomed building which formerly was a medical laboratory. Now it is a laboratory for political experiment. Help is volunteered. Scores of elderly persons and young men and women of college age throng around the headquarters building day and night begging for work to do. The place has the atmosphere of a crusade headquarters and it would be impossible to buy the zeal and effort that the Sinclair workers give for nothing. Admission ranging from 25 cents to 50 cents is charged at many meetings. Where admission is not charged collections are taken up. Literature is all sold. The Epic News, which is running about 175,000 copies a week, carries advertising which pays for the principal costs of publication.

The main campaign booklet, entitled "I, Governor of California," by Sinclair, has sold 180,000 copies. It costs 15 cents, or $6 a hundred copies in bulk orders. Sinclair followers packed the big Shrine Temple by charging 55 cents admission to see a stage dramatization of "Depression Isle." Members of 800 "Epic Clubs" from all over the State will attend a Sunday afternoon meeting which is expected to pack the 80,000-seat Pasadena Rose Bowl.

Lives in Seclusion.

Except when he is out making speeches, Sinclair, the object of this fervent political activity, spends his time in hermit-like seclusion at his little cottage in Pasadena. There is a sign on the front door, "No agents or beggars allowed" and another advising that no one is admitted without an appointment. It is a plain little cottage but comfortable, with vines and two fig trees screening the low front porch. On one corner of the lot Sinclair has a workshop where he writes.

Newspaper reports that Sinclair has made a fortune out of the sale of books and pamphlets during his campaign and that his political activity is in reality merely a literary racket caused him this week to devote four pages of the "Epic Weekly" to a statement of his personal finances. He says he has $108.74 in one bank account and $20.68 in another, and that throughout his life the earnings of his books have been spent in causes of various sorts.

Mrs. Sinclair, he relates, has helped him financially. She was Mary Kraig Kimbrough, a cousin of the late Senator John Sharp Williams and daughter of a wealthy Mississippi cotton planter, president of two banks and a judge of the State courts.

First Literary Success.

"There was a time," Sinclair says, "when she pawned a diamond necklace to cover $9 a week rent on a furnished apartment in New York—this because her husband had spent his last dollars trying to help Colorado mine strikers.

"After we came to California, Craig decided that she would no longer stand being poor; she hadn't been brought up to it. She decided that for the future her contribution to her husband's work would consist of providing him with a home and an income independent of his writings and 'causes.' She borrowed money from her father and brothers, bought some lots and some old houses and remodeled and sold them. In that way she made some money and made a home for her husband."

Sinclair says he made $30,000 out of "The Jungle," his first big success, written in 1906 when he was 24 years old. He is 55 now. From the time that book was published, stirring up investigation of the meat packing industry, Sinclair has been a crusading pamphleteer. His works have had greater popularity abroad than in the United States, particularly in Russia. Their appeal always has been greatest where poverty and economic conditions were worst, which explains his political vogue here at the moment.

Promises "Open" Rule.

Sinclair was born in Baltimore. His father came of a naval family going back to Commodore Arthur Sinclair, the great-grandfather who was a midshipman on the Constellation. The father, Upton Beall Sinclair, took part in the defense of Richmond as a boy in the closing days of the Civil War. His mother was the daughter of John S. Harden, secretary-treasurer of the Western Maryland Railroad, a prominent figure in Baltimore. The family became poverty-stricken as a result of the war and young Sinclair spent most of his boyhood living on the East Side in New York City, where he grew up, attended college, and became a rebel against society.

Sinclair promises to introduce a goldfish bowl at Sacramento if he should become Governor, by making public a stenographic transcript of every conversation he has about public matters.

"I will grant interviews to all persons who give good reasons for wanting to see me," he says. "Each person will be furnished with a transcript of the interview, and a copy will be part of the public records; also a copy will be available in the reporters' room, and the reporters may attend the conferences and make such reports as they please."

But he still has a pair of hurdles in the primary and the election to take before that problem comes up.

Ban on New Liquor Licenses Asked

End of Hidden Bars Will Be Sought Friday

Commissioners Will Hold Hearings on Plea to Mix Drinks in Open.

Elimination of the hidden bars now required by District liquor regulations will be considered at a hearing before the District Commissioners at 10:45 a. m. Friday.

Fight for elimination of the hidden bars has been headed by the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance of the District, and has been indorsed by the Central Labor Union.

The alliance contends that the hidden bars are detrimental to the health and comfort of the workers engaged in them. Although Charles E. Sands, business representative and spokesman for the union, has confined his public comments to the subject of employes' health, members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board have urged open bars where drinks can be mixed in sight of those ordering them.

Orders to prohibit open bars came from the White House to the Commissioners when they had decided to permit drinks to be mixed at tables or at least in sight of drinkers.

Restriction of both wholesale and retail liquor licenses to the number now issued was urged on the Commissioners yesterday by a committee of wholesalers headed by Milton S. Kronheim and of retailers headed by Ferdinand Ney.

The wholesalers included Mr. Kronheim, Charles W. Smith, Harry Taylor, Irving Moscowitz and Milford Schwartz. The retailers were Mr. Ney, Michael Sachs, Manuel J. Davis, attorney, and Oscar Felka.

The committees complained against the issuance of licenses to store owners who bought cooperatively. They said that such purchasing was in violation of the rule against chain stores.

Sewer Lines Award Made

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The county board at a special meeting yesterday awarded a contract to Weindrum & McLane, of Richmond, Va., for the installation of the South Lyon Park lateral sewer lines and Doctors Run trunk line in Barcroft. The bid was $44,781.25.

The contract calls for the laying of 20,000 feet of 8-inch laterals and 5,000 feet of 10-inch trunk line.

The contract was awarded upon the recommendation of the J. N. Chester Engineering Co. of Pittsburgh, in charge of the installation of the entire system.

The board on August 20 will receive and open bids for the installation of the Four Mile Run interceptor extending from the disposal plant in the direction of Rosslyn, a distance of approximately 26,000 feet.

The Master Plumbers Association of Arlington County will meet tomorrow night in the Moose Hall, Courthouse road and Wilson boulevard, at Clarendon.

The summer dental clinic for preschool and school children will be held today at the Clarendon Health Center, from 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

U. S. Steel Reports Increase in Profit

crease, it was estimated, raised the quarterly pay roll by about $5,200,000.

After all charges for depletion, depreciation, obsolescence, interest, and overhead charges on iron ore properties, there was a net profit of $5,350,241. This amounted to $1.49 per share of preferred stock, the first time anything has been earned on the stock since the third quarter of 1931. The 50-cent dividend will take $1,801,405, leaving a balance for surplus after dividends of $3,548,836, the first time anything has been carried to surplus since the third quarter of 1930.

This balance compared with a deficit from surplus of $8,791,570 in the previous quarter and a deficit of $10,428,772 for the like months of 1933.

While there has been some expectation in Wall street that the disbursement on the preferred stock might be increased, Myron C. Taylor, chairman, in a statement issued after the directors meeting, said:

"In view of the fact that dividend payments on the preferred stock have for nearly three years been taken from surplus, and the present reduced demand for steel products, it was deemed advisable to make no change in the quarterly rate of 50 cents."

Operations Fall Off.

The company's production of finished steel for the quarter averaged 80 per cent of capacity, the highest since the first three months of 1931, but operations have since fallen off sharply. While Taylor did not disclose the current rate of operations, the American Iron and Steel Institute has estimated it for this week at slightly over 26 per cent of capacity for the industry at large.

Taylor disclosed that the company is considering extensive renovations of plants, in addition to the work already authorized.

The company's gross working assets as of June 30 were placed at $441,598,007, and current liabilities at $61,991,414, leaving net working assets of $397,606,593, compared with $347,905,710 on the same date of last year.

St. Anthony's Carnival Arch To Be Erected

School Fair Program Includes Rides, Booths and Dancing.

The carnival arch, an annual feature of the Carnival of the Square Deal at St. Anthony's Parochial School, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast, to be held August 8 to 18, will be erected this week.

Father Patrick E. Conroy, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, announced that the fourth year class of St. Anthony's School would run the contest for the prize automobile. Rides, booths and dancing will be included in the carnival's program.

Dr. George R. Ellis, general chairman, announced that the following parishioners would be in charge of booths: Martin Difficay, bingo; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Yocum, candy; J. E. Bucklin, groceries and coffee; Mrs. Rose Shropshire, hams; Mrs. William A. McCloskey and Joseph Slavin, soft drinks.

Also, Mrs. Ralph Weschler, fancy stand; Mrs. H. C. LaBille, ice cream; Charles Salb and Jerry Colbert, ball game; Mrs. N. W. Misanas Arrives In Capital Today

Tri-State Gang Suspect Waived Extradition.

Arthur Misanas, last member of the "Tri-State" gang, will arrive in Washington at 8:40 a. m. today in custody of Detective Sergt. Floyd Truscott and Postoffice Inspector Leo De Waard.

Misanas was captured last week in San Francisco. He waived extradition and returns to face questioning in connection with a dozen suspected offenses.

Police said he was wanted for alleged participation in last December's Union Station mail robbery and shooting. His arrest legally "wiped out" what authorities termed a "dangerous mob" of five men and two women.

Liquor Laws Jail More Violator Than in Dry Days

Federal penitentiaries are receiving more liquor law violators now than in the 15 months before repeal, Prison Director Sanford Bates disclosed yesterday.

He presented statistics showing that if the present monthly average of commitments continues, 3,656 of them will be behind Federal bars within a year, as against 3,337 from July 1, 1932, to June 30, 1933.

Mr. Bates expects that when the Treasury's new whisky squad hits its stride in enforcing the revenue laws, the number of convicts may start growing again. He said he was ready for a new influx of bootleggers.

Trade Reports Gains Despite Seasonal Drop

Commercial Failures at Lowest Since 1920 in Fifth District.

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—A normal recession in volume of trade occurred in the Fifth Federal Reserve District between June 1 and the middle of July, although business generally was considerably above levels prevailing in the corresponding 1933 period, the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank announced today.

There was a further decline in rediscounts at the parent Reserve Bank, proving that member banks have ample funds with which to keep the business world moving. With a decline in rediscounts there was a corresponding rise in demand and time deposits placed at member banks.

Debits to individual accounts for the four weeks ended July 11 showed somewhat more than normal seasonal increase over debits in the preceding four weeks and also exceeded debits in four weeks ended July 12, 1933, by 18 per cent.

Failures Show Drop.

Commercial failures in the Richmond, or Fifth, District were less numerous than in any other month since August, 1920, and liabilities involved were the lowest since June, 1920. This decrease in busines mortalities was regarded as a most encouraging feature of the monthly report.

Employment conditions, the report said, showed little net change during June and early July, but there was a considerable amount of unrest and dissatisfaction in labor circles, which was indicated by a number of strikes, especially in the textile field. However, most of the strikes were of short duration and local in character.

Coal production in June was below the May level, but considerably above production in June, 1933. Textile mills curtailed operations about 25 per cent in June, to prevent accumulation of manufactured products during the dull season. Incidentally, prices for textile products have advanced recently.

Cotton Prices Rise.

Cotton prices rose between the middle of June and the middle of July, stimulated by acreage reduction and unfavorable weather for growing cotton over much of the belt. Official acreage figures show a reduction under the acreage harvested in 1933, and a very marked reduction under the acreage planted last year, before the Department of Agriculture's acreage adjustment was made.

Construction work continued to lag behind other business in the Fifth District, but this industry is expected to be stimulated when the National Housing Act benefits are started on the road to materialization.

Retail trade in June showed a seasonal decline in comparison with May trade, but averaged 20 per cent above the volume of sales in June of last year. Wholesale trade was about at seasonal levels in comparison with business done in recent months.

Agricultural prospects were reported varied in the district, some crops having excellent prospects while others appear to be backward, but it is too early in the season to estimate accurately probable production this year for most crops, the report emphasized. Generally speaking, acreage planted in money crops has been reduced, while acreage in food and feed crops has been materially increased.

Street, Sewer Jobs Awarded

Contracts for Paving Ward Circle, Other Projects Awarded.

Contracts for road and sewer construction work totaling $49,795.63 were awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners to low bidders.

Highway Engineering & Construction Co. was awarded a contract for paving Ward circle and intersecting roadways northwest at a cost of $22,497.45.

Contract for paving Trinidad avenue northeast between Raum street and Simms place was awarded to W. F. Brenizer, Inc. The paving is to be done under assessments and is estimated to cost $6,000.

The following sewer contracts were let: East Pinehurst sanitary sewer, vicinity of Twenty-ninth and Tennyson streets northwest, to Peter D'Adamo Construction Co., of Baltimore, for $9,090.84; Forty-ninth and Upton streets northwest sanitary sewer, to Charles R. Guthrie, of Washington, for $5,425.97; Simms place service sewer between Montello and Trinidad avenues northeast, to the Warren F. Brenizer Co., of Washington, for $2,769.91; Stevens road service sewer between Firth Sterling avenue and Siegel place southeast, to the Warren F. Brenizer Co., for $2,339.83, and the North Colonial Village sanitary sewer in vicinity of Yorktown road and Parkside lane northwest, to Charles R. Guthrie, for $1,671.63.

Mrs. Calnan Rites To Be Tomorrow

Funeral to Be Held at St. Martin's Church.

Funeral services for Mrs. Isabelle Calnan, 68, 2189 Third street northeast, who died Monday at Emergency Hospital, will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. from St. Martin's Church, North Captiol and T sreets. The mass will be celebrated by her son, the Rev. Thomas Calnan, pastor of St. Michael's Church, Silver Spring, Md. and her nephew, the Rev. John Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. Calnan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on April 22, having been married in 1884 in Frostburg, Md., where she was born.

She is survived by her husband, Michael Calnan, seven children: the Rev. Thomas, Michael F., Edward P., Joseph, Nellie and Mary Calnan and Mrs. John R. Costello; two sisters, Annie and Mary Harvey, all of this city, and two brothers, Thomas and William Harvey, of Latrobe, Pa.

Auto Jacks Slip; Garage Man Hurt

Virginian, 24, Is Pinned Beneath Machine.

Pinned beneath an automobile while working in a garage at 621 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Harrison Herlinger, 24, of Lyon Village, Va., was taken to Providence Hospital with serious injuries yesterday.

Herlinger was working under the car when it slipped from a pair of jacks. Physicians said he suffered a possible fractured skull and internal injuries.

Jury Is Sworn To Investigate County Offices

Secrecy Surrounds Special Arlington Panel; Kelly Denied Hearing.

In an atmosphere of utter secrecy, a special grand jury was sworn in yesterday at Arlington County Courthouse and charged by Judge Walter T. McCarthy to investigate and present to the court "any cases of wilful neglect, malfeasance or misfeasance, incompetency or misconduct on the part of any official of Arlington County."

Just before the jury began its deliberations Lyman M. Kelly, chairman of the county board, sought the privilege of appearing before the body because he had been informed it would investigate "acts or deeds" of his. Kelly's petition, which was presented to Lawrence W. Douglas, Commonwealth attorney, was denied after a conference between Judge McCarthy and Douglas.

The jury examined five witnesses, three of whom were contractors.

"I have been advised through my friends and noticed through articles appearing in the papers," said Kelly's letter, "that a special grand jury has been called for this morning to investigate, among other things, acts or deeds of mine. Being an official of Arlington County and having nothing whatever to conceal of any nature as to my public or private business, I ask the privilege of appearing before the grand jury now convening to be questioned on any matters pertaining to the questions before them."

The witnesses whom Douglas presented to the grand jury were Capt. Crandall Mackay, former Commonwealth's attorney; C. C. Lamond, banker, and J. E. MacPherson, Dan E. Thompson and Roger Daniel, contractors.

The members of the jury are Louis E. Carl, S. Groome Erickson, J. Thomas Manning, Harris Levy, Walter O'Hara, P. E. Schaub, and Philip Talbott. Their investigation will continue at 10 o'clock this morning.

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—The B. F. Goodrich Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co., of Illinois, today domesticated under the corporation laws of Virginia, and each paid the maximum fee levied by the State Corporation Commission, $5,000.

The Goodrich Silvertown Co. and B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. already have domesticated. The commission today also authorized Montgomery Ward & Co., a Delaware Corporation, to change its name to Monwardco Retail Stores Co.

New Great Wicomico Bridge Work Starts

Reedville, Va., July 31 (AP).—Two sections of lower Northumberland County will be connected by the Tipers Ferry Bridge, which was started today. The bridge will span the great Wicomico River.

The bridge will form a link in the new short route between Reedville and Kilmarnock. The work is being done by the Snyder Engineering Co., and will cost $119,000. It is being financed with PWA funds.

Youth Knifed in Row During Poker Game

Charleston, W. Va., July 31 (U.P.). James Cook, 16, of Beckley, was in a hospital today suffering from a knife wound following an altercation in a poker game played with matches. Police questioned Levi Lilly, of Glen Hedrick, near here. He claimed self-defense.

"James became sore when I won all the matches," Lilly said.

Roanoke Swimmer's Body Washed Ashore

Norfolk, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—No inquest will be held in the death of Patrick Conway, 30, of Roanoke, whose body was washed ashore on the Shore drive yesterday, ending a search which began shortly after Conway was missed by other members of a swimming party Sunday afternoon.

Dr. R. W. Woodhouse, county coroner, attributed death to accidental drowning.

20 Poor Children Spend Vacation at Health Camp

Twenty children of needy Washington families are now spending a two-week free vacation at the child health camp of the Volunteers of America, Oak Lodge Estate, Ammendale, Md.

Adjutant H. Mills Eroh, District commander of the Volunteers, announced that this group was the second to visit the camp, which now has about 45 children. The first delegations was allowed to remain an extra week.

AUGUST-
THE MONTH OF JEALOUSY-
IT RECEIVED ITS NAME AND 31ST DAY BECAUSE AUGUSTUS WAS ENVIOUS OF JULIUS CAESAR FOR WHOM JULY WAS NAMED...
8-1-34
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

The month of August—its name and its length—were born of a Roman emperor's vanity. It was Emperor Augustus, who lived from the year 63 B. C. to 14 A. D., who named the month for himself and who gave it an extra day so that the 31 days of July would not overshadow his month.

Julius Caesar, dictator, who was later assassinated, had July named for himself and gave it 31 days in his own honor. He also made other changes in the calendar, making the month we now know as August the eighth, instead of the sixth, month of the year. That month, because it was originally the sixth month, was known as Sextilis.

When Augustus came into power as the first of the imperial line, he honored himselfby renaming Sextilis for himself, calling it August. Because the new month August had but 30 days, whereas the month named for Julius Caesar had 31, he took from February one day and added it to August.

Augustus chose August because he considered is his lucky month. He was elected consul in August, he completed his conquest of Egypt in August, and three other times he had cause to remember August as a time of triumph. But August was also his unlucky month—for it was in this month that he died.

Hulvey Funeral To Be Held Today

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Funeral services for Mrs. Ida C. Hulvey, 79, widow of J. M. Hulvey, will be held Wednesday afternoon from the Broadway Presbyterian Church, the Rev. B. O. Shannon and the Rev. Scott C. Hutton officiating. Interment will be in the family plot.

Mrs. Hulvey is the mother of William M. Hulvey, who operates poultry buying establishments at Harrisonburg, Broadway and Timberville. Beside the son, she is survived by a daughter, Miss Lena Hulvey, also of Broadway.

Man Found Injured; Police Fear Foul Play

Luray, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Page County authorities today were investigating circumstances surrounding injuries sustained by Edgar Rodgers, 39, found in a serious condition alongside the Norfolk & Western Railway tracks near here last night.

Mr. Rodgers, who was taken to Rockingham Memorial Hospital at Harrisonburg, is suffering from scalp wounds and a fractured leg. He was found about 20 feet from the railroad tracks, which led to the opinion that he met with foul play. If Mr. Rodgers had been hit by a train and thrown that far, he would have been killed instantly, police asserted.

Suitor Gets 6 Months For Scaring Rivals

Reedville, Va., July 31 (AP).—Samuel Palmer didn't intend to hurt anyone, he told Justice C. S. Towles, but thought that a shot or so might frighten away a rival for his girl's affections.

Justice Towles' reply was six months in jail, with the sentence suspended as long as Palmer refrained from noisy and dangerous courtship practices. The charge was unlawful shooting.

West Virginia Will Ask Another Homestead Site

Charleston, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.). Federal relief officials in Washington will be asked next week to consider a second homestead project at Shadyville, Raleigh County, in southern West Virginia.

C. L. Allen, project officer for the relief administration in West Virginia, said a 5,000-acre tract on the Hinton-Bluefield road will be recommended.

West Virginian Killed by Truck

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.). B. F. Detrick, 76, for 40 years a public school teacher in Hardy County, W. Va., was instantly killed at his home near Mathias, W. Va., this morning when he was struck by the Moorefield-to-Bergton mail truck driven by Clarence See, of Moorefield. He stepped from behind an automobile in front of the truck.

A coroner's court, headed by Justice of the Peace A. D. Walker, of Lost City, held the accident unavoidable.

Detrick is survived by his widow and two children. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren.

Broker Raps Bank Combine

Charges Newport News Is Dominated by Single Group.

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—J. E. Webb, president of the Industrial Loan & Investment Corporation of Newport News, told the corporation commission the "origin and nature" of opposition to his application for authority to do a deposit and discount banking business was a "substantial reason" for additional banking facilities there.

"I am not sure I know the origin of this opposition and for that reason I prefer not to attempt a statement on it," he said when counsel for his company urged him to go into detail.

He referred to the opposition raised by three other Newport News banks in the hearing of the application made under the acts of 1934, allowing the conversion of industrial loan organizatons into banks.

The hearing was opened yesterday when the assertion was made that the First National Bank of Newport News and the Citizens, Marine and Jefferson Banks, were institutions of an "interlocking directorate," with L. U. Noland as "the power behind the throne." Witnesses for the applicant institution asserted that in addition to the Morris Plan Bank and a colored bank Newport News virtually has but one bank.

Miss King Buried At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held today for Miss Annie E. King, a native of Fredericksburg, who died at her home Sunday after a long illness.

The Rev. Robert F. Caverlee, pastor of the First Baptist Church, conducted the services at Miss King's home. Burial took place in the family lot in the City Cemetery.

Miss King is survived by three sisters and a brother, Mrs. E. G. Heflin, Miss Sallie King, Miss Dessie King and Edward King. A niece, Miss Pauline Stoffregen, also survives.

Cumberland, Md., July 31 (Spl.). Mrs. Lillian V. Gowland, died yesterday at her home here.

She is survived by her husband, Frederick R. Gowland, two daughters, Miss Lillian F. Gowland and Miss Betty Jane Gowland, and a son, Alfred H. Gowland; a brother, John Fitton, Erie, Pa., and two sisters, Mrs. Alberta Smith and Mrs. Florence L. Wilkerson, Pittsburgh. Burial will be at Hill Crest Wednesday afternoon.

World's First Criminologist Revealed in 17th Century Find

Baltimore, July 31 (Spl.).—Discovery of ancient records, lost for many years, detailing the work of a Seventeenth Century psychologist, whose investigations proved him to be the first scientific criminologist in history, has been announced by the Johns Hopkins University.

The records consist of a set of more than 200 charts designed by John Casper Lavater, who lived in Europe about the time Maryland was being settled by the Lords Baltimore. Lavater claimed to be a physiognomist, and developed a system of studying facial characteristics which he said, would prove conclusively whether or not a man was a criminal.

He classified his studies in much the same manner that a modern fingerprint expert uses the marks made by criminals in determining the guilt of a suspect.

Lavater segregated all men into various types, such as clever or stupid, criminal or law-abiding, honest or dishonest. He made elaborate hand-drawn charts of many faces illustrating his beliefs, the faces portraying all the emotions. Famous criminals and great statesmen were subject for his studies.

A collection of these charts, said to be the only complete set in existence, has been found by Dr. John C. French, librarian of the Johns Hopkins University, among the archives of the institution. They are on display in the university library, and have attracted considerable interest.

Adkins in Race For Maryland Comptroller

Salisbury Republican Will Speak Friday at Easton.

Salisbury, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Fred P. Adkins announced yesterday his candidacy for nomination as State Comptroller on the Republican ticket headed by Harry W. Nice.

Mr. Adkins is president of the E. S. Adkins Lumber Co. and a trustee of Western Maryland College. He was the head of the News Publishing Co. when that corporation first inaugurated the Salisbury Daily Times.

In commenting on Mr. Adkins' announcement, Mr. Nice, who was in the city yesterday said—"Mr. Adkins' entry as a candidate for Comptroller converts the present hope of the party into a certainty of success in November. His nomination for Comptroller would be a guarantee to the people of Maryland that their finances would be in the hands of an honest, conservative business man, whose reputation for integrity and as an outstanding citizen of Maryland is beyond question."

Mr. Adkins will begin his active campaign by speaking in Easton Friday and Frederick Monday.

Many File for Races In Carroll County

Mount Airy, Md., July 31 (Spl.). With August 22 the final date on which aspirants for Carroll political offices may file still several weeks' distant, many candidates are in the field, with 13 in the race for sheriff.

State's Attorney Theodore F. Brown, Republican, who announced his candidacy for Congress in the Second Congressional District, is the first Carroll County candidate from either party for many years to seek a Congressional post.

Candidates include: For State Senate—Carl C. Twigg, Democrat. For House of Delegates—George R. Mitchell, Democrat; Howard Murdock, Democrat, and Ernest W. Pickett, Republican. For county commissioners—Edward S. Harner, Democrat; George Wolbert, Democrat; E. Edward Martin, Republican; Samuel Solomon, Republican. For sheriff—Harry G. Shafer, Democrat; Orville Jennings Zepp, Democrat; Charles Conwaway, Democrat; A. G. Humbert, Democrat; W. C. Coakley, Democrat; William H. Bowers, Democrat; Morris Zumbrum, Democrat; John P. Manning, Republican; John A. Shipley, Republican; George E. Fowble, Republican; Walter Shipley, Republican; Frank J. Barnes, Republican, and J. W. Reese, Republican. For State's attorney—Bruce T. Bair and John Wood, Democrats, and George Fringer, Republican.

For clerk of Circuit Court—Ray Yohn, Democrat; Edwin M. Meller, Republican. For register of wills—Harry C. Berwager, Democrat. For judges of Orphans' Court—Seymour Brown and Charles S. Marker, Democrats, and J. Webster Ebaugh, J. Albert Mitten, John H. Brown and Lewis E. Green, Republicans. For county treasurer—Paul F. Kuhns, Republican.

Clifford Friend Enters Race for State Senate

Oakland, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Clifford Friend has announced as a candidate on the Republican ticket for nomination for State Senator, and will oppose Harvey J. Speicher.

Lloyd Sisler has announced for clerk to the county commissioners, and will run against W. M. Frazee, W. G. Myers and H. W. McComas, jr. Frank Callis, of Flatwoods, is a candidate for nomination for judge of the orphans' court.

Miss Risteau Tosses Hat in Ring for Senate

Havre de Grace, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Maryland's pioneer woman legislator, Miss Mary E. W. Risteau, of Harford County, has announced herself as a candidate for the State Senate.

If she is elected, she will be the first woman Senator ever to grace the legislative halls at Annapolis. As the first woman Delegate to the General Assembly, she earned the respect and even the admiration of her male associates, and paved the way for the election of other women to the House.

Organization Democrats of Harford County are reported opposed to her nomination, but she does not appear to be greatly concerned about it. In the past years she has soundly trounced the organization.

Anne Arundle Aroused By Theft of Conley Sign

Annapolis, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Backers of Dr. Charles H. Conley for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination are indignant over the theft of two Conley-for-Governor signs from poles in the Marley Creek Neck section of Anne Arundel County.

The signs were prepared by Donald Hammond, of Jessups, Howard County. They read:

"The State is sick of the present administration. It needs a doctor. Get Dr. Charles H. Conley for Governor."

Erected on large poles, the signs, 4 by 6 feet, were visible from main-traveled roads and were greatly admired by Conley backers. But yesterday it was found they had disappeared, and Mr. Hammond, an enthusiastic supporter of the Frederick physician, is anxious to learn who took them down. He is vowing vengeance on those guilty.

Danville City Farm Is Called Success

Danville, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The city farm is proving a success from an economic standpoint, according to the report of C. L. Scott, jr., director of public works, which has been prepared for submission to the city council at its next meeting.

During the first six months of 1934 the cost of keeping prisoners was cut in half, the expense now being only 24.83 cents a day, the report shows. The total operating expense was placed at $5,147. Revenue credited to the farm's account was $1,189, not including the value of crops and stock in pens.

Car Theft Suspect Held.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Charged with stealing an Ashland, Va., automobile, Leon Hornicutt, 24, was returned to Ashland today after being stopped last night by local police. Jack Best, 14, a hitch-hiker traveling with Hornicutt, was released.

Galleher Greets Glass

John Galleher, of Leesburg, left, president of the Young Democrats Club of Virginia, welcomed Senator Carter Glass to the annual gathering of the young party members in Senator Glass's home town, Lynchburg. The senator delivered an address before the convention in which he warned that "pay day" is coming for the taxpayers insofar as Federal relief grants are concerned.

Curran Wants Ritchie to Drop Out, Is Report

Request Slated to Be Made After Primary Election Fight.

Baltimore, July 31 (Spl.).—Well authenticated reports were in circulation here today that a powerful faction in the fifth-term camp of Gov. Ritchie is planning to ask him to withdraw from his campaign for the Gubernatorial election.

The group backing the plan is said to be the Curran-Ennis faction, probably the most powerful unit in the city Democratic organization.

According to reports, the request for the Governor to abandon his race will not be made until after the primary election September 12. It is virtually conceded in Democratic circles that the Governor will be his party's nominee for a fifth term, and reports are daily gaining ground that Mayor Jackson will retire from the race, leaving Gov. Ritchie and Dr. Charles H. Conley to fight it out in the primary.

One Would be Picked.

After Gov. Ritchie has gained the Democratic nomination, the reports say, a formal request will be made that he abandon the race before the general election in November. If that is done, it would leave the Democrats without a party nominee, but this situation would be remedied by the selection of a candidate by the State Central Committee, it is said.

Although the reports were regarded at first as being exceedingly far-fetched, they have persisted for several days and now are gaining credence. That Gov. Ritchie's health is not of the best is well known; his vacation trip to Europe was made frankly on the ground that his 15 years as the State's chief executive have undermined his strength.

But there are other reports that he is more ill than his close friends will admit. Those backing the report that he will be asked to abandon the campaign are said to be prepared to advise him that four more years in office, in the event he should be elected, would prove much too burdensome for his health.

Unfavorable to Ritchie.

That the Curran-Ennis group should be supporting the move for the Governor's withdrawal — if in fact this group is behind it—is not surprising. For some years the political faction headed by State Senator William Curran, virtually the political boss of Baltimore, has not been favorable to the Governor. At times Mr. Curran has been violently opposed to Ritchie, and even now his support of the Governor for renomination is considered to be merely lip service, decidedly lacking in enthusiasm.

But Mr. Curran's antagonism toward Mayor Jackson is even more intense and, up to now, he has favored the Governor for renomination over the mayor.

One report today was that if the Governor withdraws, Mr. Curran will favor the indorsement of Dr. Conley, the Frederick physician, for Governor. But there were other reports that Dr. Conley is being urged to retire as a gubernatorial candidate in favor of the Governor. A group of Eastern Shore Democratic leaders was said to be conferring today with Dr. Conley and his political adviser, Dr. J. Hubert Wade, in an effort to persuade him to withdraw. There is believed to be little hope of success for such a maneuver.

Jury Ponders D. C. Men's Fate In Attack Case

U. S. Employes Accused of Trying to Assault Student Nurse.

La Plata, Md., July 31 (Spl.). The case of two Washington men on trial here charged with attempting to assault Miss Jean Kearns, 21, student nurse, was given to the jury early tonight after both defendants had denied the charges on the witness stand.

The accused men are Oliver L. Decatur, 31, of the 1400 block Maryland avenue northeast, and Raymond E. Zell, 21, of the 1100 block South Carolina avenue southeast. Both are laborers employed by the Department of Agriculture.

They were charged with having picked up Miss Kearns and her escort, Herbert Newman, at Chesapeake Beach, July 8, and offered them a ride back to Washington. The State alleged that on the way home they beat Newman, attempted to attack Miss Kearns and put both out of the car when frightened by the approach of another automobile.

All Drinking, They Declare.

On the witness stand Decatur and Zell asserted all had been drinking together at Chesapeake Beach, that on the ride toward Washington Miss Kearns and Newman engaged in a fight after an altercation over a ring; that Miss Kearns said she would wear the ring no more and threw it away.

They declared that when they insisted on coming direct to Washington, Miss Kearns told them Newman was drunk and to drive around and get him sober. Near Waldorf, they said, when they entered a side road to turn around, Newman and the girl got out and renewed their battle. Decatur and Zell then drove away and left them, they said. Two women motorists took the couple to Waldorf.

The defendants' statement that all had been drinking together at Chesapeake Beach was corroborated by another witness.

Policemen Testify.

Other witnesses today were Sergt. Louis Bloom and Patrolman Harold C. Carol, of the Waldorf substation, who testified Miss Kearns and her escort "looked like they had been in a drunken brawl" when they arrived at the police station.

The defendants were represented by Attorneys John Mudd and F. DeSales Mudd, of Washington, and the State by State's Attorney Edward J. Edelen. The case was tried before W. Mitchell Diggs, chief judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit Court of Maryland, and Associate Judge Meverell Loker.

"Gotta Drink?" Drunk's Query To Dry Leader's Offer of Help

Richmond, July 31 (Spl.). Superintendent Ed. J. Richardson, of the Virginia Antisaloon League, had a new experience yesterday. He was asked for a drink of whisky by a "drunk."

It happened like this:

Mr. Richardson was returning to the office of the Antisaloon League when he saw a wobbly figure dragged to the sidewalk by a fellow citizen and propped up against the side of a building on Second street.

In true Samaritan fashion, Mr. Richardson approached and asked the unfortunate if he could be of assistance.

"Gotta drink?" the inebriated one replied. "If you have, hic, be a big help."

"My friend," Mr. Richardson answered, "I have never drunk whisky in my life, but I shall be glad to help you get home. If you stay here you may be arrested for drunkenness. Give me your address and I'll send you home in a taxi."

"Naw," the drunk replied with emphasis, shaking a wobbly forefinger, "I doan, hic, wanna go home. If you ain't got a drink, hic, go tend to your own business, hic."

Conley Scores Harmony Move At Frederick

Candidate for Govrnor Is Confident of Victory in That County.

Frederick, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Declaring that the Frederick County Democratic organization's "harmony program," designed to prevent a bitter primary contest, which was adopted last night, was a "deathbed repentance," Dr. Charles S. Conley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, today warned his friends to "beware of Greeks bearing gifts."

The Democratic "harmony program" provided that in view of the certain renomination of Gov. Ritchie, who has the support of the Frederick County organization, that the organization will not oppose Dr. Conley, Frederick physician, in the primary election, September 12.

Terming the program a "cheap political move," Dr. Conley today scoffed at the plan as a "backyard" conference, and charged it was made to enable David C. Winegrenner, secretary of state, to remain as a member of the Democratic State Central Committee for Frederick County.

Conley Scores Move.

The statement indicated that Mr. Winebrenner does not relish the idea of appearing on the ticket in a party primary.

Dr. Conley, who is this week campaigning on the Eastern Shore, made the following statement by telephone about the organization's "harmony" move:

"At a backyard conference it was stated that no fight would be made against me as a candidate for Governor in Frederick County.

"Actually this meeting was held for the purpose of perpetuating Mr. David C. Winebrenner's place on the State central committee of the Democartic party of Frederick County and in an effort to avoid coming before the people September 12, and an agreement to this effect was presented and signed by some of those present.

"My friends in Frederick County assured me of Frederick County's vote in the convention months ago, and this cheap political trick or death-bed repentance comes too late to injure me or my candidacy, as I have not directly or indirectly conferred with the Ritchie leader in our county prior to September 2, 1931, or the pretender since that time. To my friends, I can only say beware of Greeks bearing gifts."

Burgee Withdraws.

During the meeting Mr. Burgee announced his withdrawal as a candidate for county treasurer, leaving the field to Allnutt. He stated that he would become a candidate for clerk of the circuit court. Crum withdrew from the fight for sheriff, which insures the nomination of Hiltner without a primary contest.

The following five candidates were indorsed for the State central committee; David C. Winebrenner, 3d, Edward J. Smith, James H. Gambrill and Dr. Bernard O. Thomas, this city, and Mrs. Andrew A. Annan, Emmitsburg. The sixth place was left open for William J. Grove, veteran Democrat, a friend of Dr. Conley.

Organization candidates selected for the State convention were Col. E. Austin Baughman, near this city; John J. Jamison, Walkersville; Allen M. Pitzer, Lewistown; Dr. Ira J. McCurdy, this city, and Dr. Thomas H. Myers, Libertytown. The candidates for the State committee and State convention filed their certificates with the election supervisors today.

Goldsborough and Nice Meet in Berlin Chat

Pocomoke City, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Three candidates were seeking votes on the Eastern Shore today, United States Senator Phillip Lee Goldsborough, Republican, and Harry W. Nice, Republican, in Worcester County, and Dr. Charles H. Conley, Democrat, in Caroline County.

Dr. Conley is due in Worcester County over the coming week-end.

Thursday Mr. Goldsborough will be in Wicomico County, Friday in Dorchester County and Saturday in Talbot County.

Dr. Conley will be in Dorchester County tomorrow, Wicomico County Thursday, Somerset County Friday, and in Worcester County Saturday.

Mr. Nice was in Worcester and Wicomico Counties yesterday and in Worcester County today. Senator Goldsborough and Nice met in Berlin today and chatted several minutes.

Senator's Kin Dies Suddenly

Cambridge, Md., July 31 (AP).—Word was received in Cambridge this morning of the sudden death of Miss Mary Campbell Goldsborough in the Woman's Hospital, Baltimore, following an operation.

She was a daughter of the late Dr. Brice W. Goldsborough, founder of the Cambridge-Maryland Hospital, and Nannie Campbell Henry, and a niece of United States Senator Phillips Lees Goldsborough.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Anna G. Lanier, of Cambridge, and Mrs. Burr Powell Harrison, of Leesburg, Va., and her stepmother, Mrs. Brice W. Goldsborough.

The body will be brought here for burial. Other funeral arrangements have not been made.

The last year she had supervision over the home of Dr. Howard A. Kelley, noted Baltimore cancer specialist. Prior to that she had charge of his camp in Canada.

Results Near In Md. County Merger Study

Bitter Opposition Expected for Consolidation Plan in Small Towns.

Baltimore, July 31 (Spl.).—Results of a survey to determine the advisability of consolidating the 23 Maryland counties into larger units, thus reducing government cost, will be announced soon, Abel Wolman, chairman of the State planning commission, said today.

The conclusions of a committee, which has been studying several months, will be submitted to the Maryland Legislature at its meeting next winter, Mr. Wolman said. Action by the Legislature, as well as a series of plebiscites in the areas affected, would be necessary before mergers could be completed.

Miss Lavinia Engle, member of the Legislature and also the State planning commission, is in charge of the consolidation studies.

"Undoubtedly great economies can be effected by wiping out county lines which have no important economic, industrial or traditional meanings. Whether this is true of Maryland, which has comparatively few counties, is open to question," she said.

"Certainly, however, there are many county functions which could be operated more efficiently and economically by joint action of groups of counties. However, the important question of incorporated towns is left. We have many of them in Maryland, and it is quite possible the cost of government can be reduced by eliminating some of these separate town governments."

It has been pointed out that some of these corporations are ridiculously small. Many have fewer than 100 population, and one, Arundel-on-the-Bay, is the smallest incorporated town in the United States. It has a population of one person.

Aside from Baltimore, there are only 12 towns of more than 4,000 population. These, it is understood, could properly remain governmental units. These towns are Cumberland, Hagerstown, Frederick, Annapolis, Takoma Park, Frostburg, Westminster, Hyattsville, Havre de Grace, Easton, Salisbury, and Cambridge. Other smaller towns, it is argued, should give up their charters and permit the county governments to provide them with fire, police, and health protection.

It is admitted that considerable opposition is to be expected from county consolidations. Each of the 23 counties of the State has its own history, its own traditions, and its own trading area.

The political aspects of the situation also are well known. Fewer counties would mean fewer jobs for office-holders, and consequently the members of the Legislature themselves face the loss of their jobs.

The survey will be embodied in a general report of conditions in Maryland being made in cooperation with a National planning survey, the results of which will be reported to Congress.

Franklin Co. Institute Opens

200 Delegates Attend Sessions of Bible Schools.

Waynesboro, Pa., July 31 (Spl.).—With a registration of 200 delegates, the forty-seventh annual convention and institute of the Sunday schools of Franklin County opened this morning at Rhodes Grove, near here, to continue until Wednesday evening.

The Rev. Clyde W. Meadows, of Chambersburg, led the introductory praise service. A concert by the Waynesboro School Band was given tonight. An address was made by Dr. Chalmers W. Walck, Sunbury, Pa.

Addresses are scheduled tomorrow by Walter E. Myers, Philadelphia, of the adult division field staff; Dr. Walck and the Rev. James McK. Reilly, of Chambersburg. Officers will be elected.

The concluding address will be given by Dr. E. L. Keboch, director of religious education, Methodist Episcopal Church, Harrisburg, Pa.

Fredericksburg Starts New Fire Fund Drive

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.) Additional contributions for the fire convention fund are being sought by the Fredericksburg Volunteer Fire Company to finance a local delegation to the State Fire Convention in Norfolk, August 7.

The annual campaign, recently concluded, fell short of its quota.

$18,000,000 Lent Virginia Home Owners

5,500 Loans, Representing 5,511 Houses, Made in Year by Government.

Richmond, July 31 (Spl.).—The Home Owners Loan Corporation has loaned to distressed home owners nearly $18,000,000 since the corporation began operations here a year ago this month, it was learned today from Stanley G. Harding, assistant State manager.

"We have sent out from the Richmond offices for closing a total of 5,500 loans, representing 5,511 homes throughout Virginia, from the time the offices opened here last July up to and through Friday of last week," he said. "The exact aggregate amounts of the loans is $17,989,000."

Loans sent out for closing means that they have been approved and the checks mailed, Mr. Harding added.

The $17,989,000 represents money loaned on homes encumbered with existing liens, and which will be refinanced by the corporation. Some of the loans made in the past year already have been repaid.

Out of the total advanced by the corporation, approximately $652,000 reverts to Virginia, and Virginia cities in taxes which were in arrears. Another $324,000 of the total was expended for repairs.

Since the Virginia offices were opened last July, 16,640 applications for loans totaling $52,000,000 have been received. The corporation's appraisers have completed appraisal of 15,000 of the applications.

Staunton Hires 2 Va. U. Men

Peyton and Winn Named to Military School's Faculty.

Staunton, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Two graduates of the University of Virginia are among the new faculty appointments for the 1934-35 session of Staunton Military Academy, it was announced today by Robert T. Hall, superintendent.

Gordon P. Peyton and John Winn are the Virginia University graduates. Mr. Peyton will be director of physical education and Mr. Winn head of the department of romance and languages. After receiving his bachelor and master of arts degrees from the University of Virginia, Mr. Winn studied at the University of Paris.

Other faculty appointments include Alfred E. Everett, A. B., St. Stephens College, M. A. Columbia University, headmaster; W. Clifford Colvin, Ph. B. and L. L. B., Yale University, and M. Ed., Harvard, head of the department of social studies; Allan N. Cox, B. En., Northeastern University, and M. Ed., Harvard University, instructor in natural sciences; Richard H. Delano, B. A., Princeton University, instructor in German; Raven O. Dodge, B. S., Clark University, and M. Ed., Harvard University, principal of the junior school; Alam Hoskins, Teachers College, Columbia University and Art Students League, instructor in art, and Daniel J. Noonan, B. A., Boston College, and Boston Latin School graduate, instructor in junior school.

As an innovation, a liberal course will be offered in addition to the regular college preparatory work. It will have four main features designed to give students a broad practical training in a variety of fields.

Danville's Power Needs Are Studied

Danville, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Consulting engineers employed by the citizens power committee have begun their survey to determine whether the municipal electric plant is capable of meeting needs of the immediate future. A report is expected Thursday.

If they find that additional power protection is needed, they will continue their investigation along the lines of whether it would be more practical to enlarge the present plant, to construct a new steam plant at another site, or proceed with the proposed hydro-electric project at the Pinnacles in Patrick County.

Dry Leader to Speak.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Dr. Mary Harris Armor, temperance crusader, will speak at the Fredericksburg Baptist Church Tuesday.

Virginia Milk Control Law May Be Tested

Fight on Price-Fixing Rule of State Board May Go to Court.

Waynesboro, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Rumblings of discontent in the Staunton-Waynesboro area since the State milk commission schedule of prices and regulations went into effect July 2 reached a climax today when one producer announced he would continue to retail milk at the old price of 10 cents a quart and several other producers employed a Staunton law firm to test the constitutionality of the Virginia milk control bill, particularly as it relates to the fixing of prices.

Timberlake and Nelson, the law firm, notified the State Board of Richmond today that they had reached the conclusion that the act is unconstitutional insofar as it undertakes to regulate prices. The firm also informed the board that R. J. Reynolds, Staunton producer, is purposely violating the act by selling at a price lower than the minimum fixed by the State and asked the State commission to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Reynolds in order that a test case may be brought.

The milk and cream control act was one of the final measures passed by the 1934 General Assembly. Under its terms, a State Milk Commission is established which may fix prices.

The test case probably will come before Judge Joseph A. Glasgow in Augusta Circuit Court.

E. C. Woods, secretary of the State Milk Commission, told Louis Spilman, chairman of Staunton-Waynesboro Milk Board, that the Timberlake and Nelson letter will be placed before the commission for immediate action.

In the meantime the Staunton-Waynesboro milk board, named by the State commission, voted yesterday to ask for a one-cent reduction in the price per pint and today the majority of the dairymen agreed by signing a petition, which will be laid before the commission at Richmond tomorrow by Spilman.

Baltimore Youth Dies in Attempt To Save Kitten

Baltimore, July 31 (Spl.).—To save the life of a kitten, William Walter, 16, sacrificed his life here today.

With several of his chums, William was sitting on the front steps of a house in the eastern section of the city. A black kitten was crossing the street, and stood still in the road as a street car bore down upon it.

William saw the animal's predicament. He leaped from the steps and dashed into the street to save the kitten. An automobile that he had not seen struck him and he died at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The boy's chums said that in the past few months he has saved several dogs and a cat from being run over by automobiles or street cars.

Mrs. Heidelbach Buried.

Danville, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held yesterday for Mrs. Cora S. Heidelbach, widow of F. S. Heidelbach, for many years a well-known lumber dealer.

Virginia Reports Fish Jumping Into Boat—Now You Tell One

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—The fish are biting, and the big ones are not here yet—that's what fishermen are telling the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce piscatorial reporting service.

In a report today the chamber of commerce said more than 1,000 boat-owner guides in the Virginia salt-water areas reported in agreement that the height of the fishing season isn't expected until the middle of August.

They reported also that there is evidence that 1934 will be the best hand-line season in the last ten years.

One party out of Urbanna recently weighed a five-hour catch at 632 pounds of croakers, spot and trout. One boy at Deltaville hooked 70 pounds of fish in one day's outing, while over on the Eastern Shore fishing parties are bringing them back in bushel baskets, "when they are small enough to get in a basket," the chamber report said.

Guides at Messick vouch for the story of a correspondent who reported seven 60-pound bonitos were landed by boats out of that harbor in one afternoon.

There were other tall tale reports from York Spit Light and Irvington.

Off Hudge-Park Island near Peary, on Chesapeake Bay, a guide reported a bluefishing party caught 260, with one fish having inside a large hardhead, which it had swallowed. The hardhead had swallowed a perch, the report said.

Twenty-five sharks were caught by a Washington party out of Quimby on the Eastern Shore.

Having exhausted his bait in three hours out of Harborton last week, a guide said a Washington doctor borrowed a piece of well-chewed gum from a woman companion, and caught five fish in succession before the gum was lost.

Albert Edholm Dies at Home In Albemarle

Was Brother-in-Law of Late A. R. Erskine, Auto Leader.

Charlottesville, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Albert Edholm, 69, retired jeweler, of Omaha, Nebr., died yesterday at his home, Windsor, near Cismont, Albemarle County.

Mr. Edholm was a native of Omaha. He married Miss Susie Erskine, native of Gordonsville, near here, and sister of the late Albert R. Erskine, of South Bend, Ind., for years president of the Studebaker Corporation.

Besides his wife, Mr. Edholm is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ralph E. Conrad, of South Bend, Ind.; Mrs. J. Clyde Drouillard, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Camilla Edholm, of New York City; a brother, P. Lawrence Edholm, of Spear Fish, S. Dak., and a half sister, Mrs. Dana T. Smith, of Omaha.

The funeral will be held from the residence tomorrow, the service to be conducted by the Rev. Francis Robinson, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Cismont. Interment will be in the cemetery at Grace Church.

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie L. Pugh will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow, to be conducted by the Rev. W. O. Orser, of the Hinton Avenue Methodist Church. The body will be taken to Batesville for interment in Mount Ed Cemetery.

Miss Ruth Kent, 14-year-old daughter of H. L. Kent, of Greenfield, Nelson County, died yesterday afternoon at University Hospital.

The funeral will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow from Locust Grove Methodist Church, near Greenfield, the service to be conducted by the Rev. R. F. Barbour, of Batesville. Interment will be in the cemetery at the church.

Jury Is Called In Murder Case

Three Men Accused of Beating Veteran to Death.

Leesburg, July 31 (Spl.).—Murder charges against Clarence Barnhouse, Cleveland Harper, Richard D. Cooper, and his wife, Nellie D. Cooper, all living near Lucketts, will be considered by a special grand jury summoned next Tuesday.

Barnhouse, Harper and Cooper are accused of beating Basil Brown, disabled World War veteran, to death, and that Mrs. Cooper helped to conceal the body.

Barnhouse confessed, police say, claiming self-defense. Harper and Cooper were arrested after an alleged statement made by Mrs. Gooper. She is reported to have said Harper, Barnhouse and Brown were at her home when Brown and Harper began an argument. A fight followed and Brown fell off the porch, her alleged statement said adding that Cooper, Barnhouse and Harper carried him away, but when later he began yelling, they killed him with several additional blows. Mrs. Cooper is said to have admitted she helped carry the body to a ravine where it was found.

Police Pick Up Heavily Armed Trio in Richmond

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—Three men riding in an automobile described by Henrico police as a "complete arsenal" were held in the county jail today for investigation.

The three men gave South Carolina addresses—Edward Myers Charleston; Joseph W. Ebner, Meggetts, and Roy Worrell, Charleston.

They were picked up early today in the Ninth street funnel here, after county officers had trailed them several miles.

Police said in their possession was one riot gun and buckshot, two automatic pistols with full clips, two sets of handcuffs, two deputy sheriff's badges, two sets of license plates, (one Louisiana and one South Carolina) complete disguises with pants, shirts and caps.

Virginian Missing After Auto Wreck

World War Veteran Feared Amnesia Victim.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Search for Capt. Albert T. Barr, of Keswick, missing since an auto wreck at Wilderness, near here, has yielded no trace of him.

Fear that Capt. Barr, who suffered a nervous breakdown in the World War, had become a victim of amnesia, was voiced by J. M. Barr, his brother. The car in which Capt. Barr had left Washington bound for Charlottesville, was found wrecked yesterday after apparently hurtling off an embankment.

A man believed to be Capt. Barr was reported seen shortly after the accident.

Term of 3 Months Imposed in Attack

Salisbury, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Paul Bedsworth yesterday was sentenced to three months in the Maryland House of Correction on a charge of assaulting Thomas Mitchell.

Bedsworth fought police before he was arrested, officers testified at his trial. They added that he attacked the driver while in the police car. Mitchell had been knocked unconscious.

Newly Formed Variety Club Shows Promise

Record Attendance There; Fox Revue Postponed; About Showshops.

By Nelson B. Bell.

The newly formed Variety Club, with a membership limited to men directly engaged in "show business," or closely allied therewith, has taken its place among the Capital's representative club organizations in the first month of its existence.

This was conclusively demonstrated in the Hotel Willard yesterday, upon the occasion of the final Monday club luncheon until next September. Carter Barron, Eastern Division manager for Loew's, Inc., and Sam Wheeler, manager of the Washington Branch Exchange of Fox Films, were "Kings for a Day" and had the elaborate program 'n charge from the time Chief Barker John J. Payette turned the gavel over to them at 1 p. m., and permitted them to wield it until almost 3.

Covers had been laid for 102, in line with membership reservations made in advance. When it came time to serve the luncheon, it was necessary to crowd in eight or ten more places to accommodate those who had presented themselves and their guests.

Remarkable Record.

This, it seems to me, is a remarkable record for a club with a membership limited to less than 100, which did not receive its charter, hold its first induction of officers and celebrate its housewarming in the club quarters in the Willard until the seventh of the current month.

The program presented yesterday on the rostrum and open floor space, around which the long tables were terraced, could hardly be purchased in any theater. It was participated in by Phil Harris and Leah Ray, Charlie Foy and His Stooges, Evelyn Tyner, the Three Ambassadors, the Three Aces, Hal LeRoy, Sammy Lewis and Patti Moore, Tom Gannon and no doubt some whose names do not come to mind at the moment.

As an extra added attraction, WJSV put on a "chain hookup," presided over by Arthur Godfrey. In addition to Mr. Godfrey's pungent wit, this portion of the pastiming included contributions by Bert Bagranoff—pardon the extra syllable, Mr. Granoff — the Three Aces and more planoing by the gifted Miss Tyner, who also sat down and played a perfect impromptu accompaniment for Hal LeRoy's dancing without a note before her.

Many introductions were made from the presiding officer's podium over the loudspeakers, this feature of the goings-on even having been carried so far as to include the dramatic editors of the five local papers, all of whom were present and proud of it—more of Carter Barron's thoughtful solicitude.

These Variety Club luncheons are in themselves enjoyable events, marked by a high order of fraternalization, but they indicate a greater club usefulness than the mere enjoyment of social pleasures. They signify a unity of spirit, a fine camaraderie and a concert of viewpoint, interests and effort that should in a very short time result in the consolidation of a new group affiliation into a genuine civic asset.

Speaking of the Variety Club —and if we haven't been then I don't know who has—a reception will be tendered Phil Harris, conductor of the orchestra headlining this week's stage bill at Loew's Fox, and Leah Ray, his charming featured soloist, in the club rooms in the Willard tonight at 10. This is another of Mr. Barron's kindly enterprises that bids fair to rank among the summer season's high spots.

Harlem Harmonists.

The outstanding success enjoyed this season by colored dance orchestras at Chevy Chase Lake, has led Al Stern and Eddie Carr, lake impresarios, to pin three of the country's "big seven" to the dotted line for early engagements.

The first of these will be offered tomorrow night when Fletcher Henderson and his Nationally-known aggregation of hot rhythm purveyors will appear for the one night only. Luis Russell and his band will be back for a return engagement on Wednesday, August 8, and Blanche Calloway, Cab's sister, who "packed 'em in" at the lake a few weeks ago, will be back in the bandstand on August 15.

On Way to Chicago.

Fletcher Henderson is stopping off for the one night in Washington to break the jump to Chicago, where he is under long-term contract to play at the Windy City's celebrated Cotton Club. Henderson, like Duke Ellington, is a pianist of note who has built his orchestra largely around his own distinguished ability to tickle those ivories, as the saying goes.

In bringing Luis Russell and Blanche Calloway back for return engagements, the good Messrs. Carr and Stern are merely heeding the behests of an assertive popular demand.

The world has revolved a few times since then—and it's a small world, after all, is what I always say—but when Madge Evans was a little girl between the ages of 4 and 6, she frequently was called upon, as one of the greatest "baby stars" of her day, to enact the role of daughter to one of the screen's most popular leading men, Irving Cummings.

Recently Miss Evans and Mr. Cummings were reunited on the Fox lot after 16 years for the filming of "Grand Canary," the Jesse L. Lasky production, opening at Loew's Fox on Friday. Cummings, this time, is the director of the picture and Miss Evans is cast opposite Warner Baxter as that elegant gentleman's leading woman.

You may or may not recall Mr. Cummings as a leading man with the old Garrick Stock Company, when L. Monta Bell had taken over the reins and was losing practically all of what he and George Marshall had cleaned up the season before.

Miss Bowman Returns.

Primary interest in next week's stage bill at the Earle Theater, of course, will center in the headline appearance there of that exquisite dancer, Patricia Bowman, former Washingtonian, whose sister still makes her permanent home here.

Miss Bowman's last professional appearance in the Capital, if memory serves—as it sometimes doesn't—was with the Shubert version of what the "Ziegfeld Follies" should be like. The approximation was not close until after the revue had opened at the Winter Garden in New York, but Miss Bowman's dancing from the outset was reminiscent of the feathery grace and lightness of an Adeline Genee or a Pavlowa.

On the bill with her at the Earle, beginning Friday, will be William Demarest, that nimble-witted comedian who has scored on both stage and screen numberless times. He will be assisted by Ruth Mix, daughter of the celebrated exponent of the wild and woolly, Tom Mix.

Tom Mix's father, if you don't mind the way one thing leads to another, once translated the entire Bible into the Osage Indian language.

Because every advance indication is that a wonderful array of talent is to be available and this year's annual "All-Washington Revue," at Loew's Fox Theater, bids fair to be the greatest show of its kind ever staged in Washington, it was decided late yesterday to defer the presentation from the week of Friday, August 10, to the week beginning Friday, August 17. This action was taken out of deference to the wishes of Director Gene Ford, down from New York to take complete charge of staging, who is fired with an ambition to produce a masterpiece, now that he is at it. It was felt that a completely polished revue of the sort this promises to be could not be turned out at its best in a fortnight.

The postponement of the "All-Washington Revue" one week also entails the corresponding postponement of "Student Tour," the first feature picture in which Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, has had the lead. this is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production and is to be held as the screen feature to provide a companion piece to the stage show in local interest. So now you know.

Cool Comfort Note.

Well, anyhow, this beats laying asphalt pavement or stoking a ship!

Oh, Mr. Weather Man, what happened to your cooling system? It was working okay Saturday night and Sunday.

She Is Still "Glorious Gloria"

A striking camera study of Gloria Swanson, long absent from the American screen, who recently signed a long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and is to be seen opposite Clark Gable in a picture which will not be called "Riff-Raff," the times being what they are, as originally announced. It might be suggested that it would be well hereafter for Miss Swanson to permit herself to be photographed only in moments of reflection, like this.

Straight From the Studios

Gloria Swanson and Clark Gable in Riverfront Roles; Screen Writers Said to Be Getting Recognition; Pithy Paragraphs From Filmdom's Capital.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, July 30.—He'll be sort of a stevedore, and she'll be a lady of hoi polloi, rather than one of the bon tons. That's the line-up for Clark Gable and Gloria Swanson (or should those names be reversed nowadays?). Anyway, the story which will star these two is to have a steamboat, New Orleans background and is being written by Frances Marion, with George Hill to direct. Hill and Miss Marion, formerly wed, are the same combination who are working on "Good Earth."

FRANK CAPRA.

Despite previous prognostications, the title of the Swanson-Gable picture will not be "Riff-Raff." Owing to the censorship situation, the title has not been decided, and the story is said to be utterly different from the one originally proposed. It will blend romance with comedy; also some strong dramatic situations.

Another Rural Yarn.

Pauline Lord will start work in September in "The Village Tale," the second rural opus for this star, and this sets aside plans attributed to her for making one of her former stage successes. She may, however, be able to fulfill this ambition later. "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," in which Miss Lord is the principal, will show on the screen very soon.

Writers Getting Break.

The screen writers are getting a "break" again. As an economy device, many studios have been only signing them by the picture during the last year. Paramount has "broken down" and given long-term contracts to Jack Cunningham, Virginia Van Upp and Howard J. Green for good work during the last year.

Many writers have expressed preference for the by-the-picture system, although, of course, steadier incomes are insured by term agreements in most cases. Anyway, the studios are not cluttered up with scenarioists as they once were, with many of them doing nothing.

Huge Cast Assembling.

Frank Capra, director, will have one of the largest casts in many a day in his picture, "Broadway Bill." Walter Connolly, that very competent character player, Helen Flint and George Meeker are new ones. Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy head the company, and Connolly's role is prominent. Helen Vinson and Lynn Overman also are in spotlight roles, and others importantly appearing are Raymond Walburn, Douglas Dumbrille, Margaret Hamilton, Clarence Music, Charles Levison, Edmund Breese, Ward Bond, George Cooper, Harry Todd, Charles Wilson and Paul Harvey.

Not to speak of "Broadway Bill," the horse, and Skeeter, the rooster.

Newcomers Signed.

More new faces are to be seen on the screen soon. There is Thomas Beck, New York actor, just signed by Fox to arrive here August 27. He was engaged in New York.

Another likely recruit is Alma Slocum, of the social world, granddaughter of Gen. Henry Warner Slocum, who has been tested for an important role in "The White Parade," the Jesse L. Lasky feature.

Film Pageant In Review.

GUNTHER'S... The Word for Quality Beer

GUNTHER'S bottles are thoroughly cleansed and sterilized before they reach the conveyors, which carry them to the automatic filling machines. A constant inspection is made of every bottle to insure absolute cleanliness.

Sketched at the Brewery by Dick Oden

The Dress Parade of QUALITY

The mechanical parade of glistening, white bottles moves accurately and swiftly to the automatic filling machines, where they are filled to capacity with mellow, golden, foaming GUNTHER'S quality beer. The bottles when filled are cased and whisked away to thousands of waiting GUNTHER dealers, to fill an ever popular demand. GUNTHER'S quality has had an enviable reputation since 1881. That's why, today, GUNTHER'S is undeniably the Word for Quality Beer. If you have a fastidious taste and if you're partial to quality order a case of GUNTHER'S.

A National Disgrace.

There was a time when the families of degenerate murderers, hunted to their death by law enforcement officers, would hang their heads in shame. Now the closest relatives of the social misfit who was recently killed in Chicago resisting arrest have gone on the stage to capitalize their notoriety. What an appropriate sequence to Dillinger's orgy of crime!

Employment of the Dillingers for a Nation-wide vaudeville tour by theatrical managers who know—or think they know—the current public taste is about the most sickening indictment of American civilization imaginable. It is a challenge to both decency and common sense. If this display continues, the criminologists will not need to search any further to know why gangsters flourish in this country.

England Takes The Cup.

For the second year in succession, and for the seventh time since the start of this famous international competition in 1900, Great Britain has won the Davis Cup, symbol of highest national proficiency in tennis. None will grudge our distant cousins their hard-fought and well-earned victory in what is probably the most coveted of all athletic triumphs. Fred Perry and "Bunny" Austin, two of the greatest players the court have ever seen, have taken the place of Lacoste and Cochet as the nemesis of America's finest. One can only hope that the English are not embarked upon as long a series of victories as the French, who held the trophy for six straight years after we lost it to them in 1927.

The decisive set yesterday, in which Perry conquered Shields, 15—13, in a terrific, ding-dong battle, will doubtless linger long in the memory of the lucky 17,000 who jammed the historic stands at Wimbledon. When intelligence, skill, speed and endurance are matched in a contest of that character, the artistic beauty of athletic competition is seen at its unsurpassed best. To the loser, as much as to the victor, in such a struggle goes the credit for as glorious a performance as lies within the capabilities of coordinated mind and muscle.

No dope was upset by the British victory. But of the forecasters none hit the target with such singular accuracy of prediction as did "Big Bill" Tilden, former American champion, Davis Cup player, and one of the outstanding tennis experts of all time.

Before the matches started Tilden predicted that Perry would beat Wood "in four or five sets." Perry took five. He predicted a victory for Austin over Shields in four sets. Austin only needed three. He forecast a straight-set American victory in doubles. Here the British won a single set. The estimate for the Perry vs. Shields match, was in exact accord with the outcome and only in the Austin vs. Wood match, where Tilden predicted an American victory "in four or five very close sets," was he noticeably astray.

"I am," said Tilden, in making this forecast, "the world's worst tennis prophet." Such modesty from the old master is both unusual and disconcerting. For if prediction could be made much more accurately, some would feel that the games themselves might as well not be played. And that, as we have intimated, would be a world-wide loss.

A Real Lost World.

With Byrd exploiting the secrets of the uninhabited Antarctic and explorers returning from other wildernesses with only meager discoveries to add to our knowledge of the world, modern sophisticates have scoffed at the idea of lost tribes and unknown lands. Almost every one has come to assume that even the most remote and exotic civilizations have been exposed and catalogued. But the Austrian government, which holds a mandate over the former German colony of New Guinea, has proved otherwise.

Anthropologists recently penetrated the mountain ranges which isolate the central part of this territory and found a civilized race which has remained completely unknown to the outside world for centuries. Explorers had supposed that the area south of the Bismarck Mountains and north of British Papua was an impenetrable jungle. Since it was shut off from both the Pacific and the known interior of New Guinea by high ranges, it had been left to its solitude. The Australian adventurers, flying over the area first by airplane, were amazed to find a cool, grassy plateau inhabited by approximately 200,000 natives.

Evidence of an ancient civilization in this strange pocket of the wilderness has been found. The present inhabitants are agriculturists, indicating a more advanced status than has been found in other parts of New Guinea. But they do not know how to use the stone mortars—reminiscent of ancient Egypt—which were found in their settlements. Unknown races may have risen and fallen in this strange isolation for centuries, considering themselves the sole inhabitants of the globe.

The imaginative ventures of romancers like Rider Haggard and Conan Doyle are scarcely more strange than this discovery. It may be true that there is nothing new under the sun, but there is much that the world has either forgotten or lost to view.

Temporizing With Peace.

Twenty years ago today Germany declared war on Russia. Three days later nearly all of Europe had plunged into that debauchery of slaughter which has shaken the very foundations of western civilization. Memory of those days is still keen in every corner of the world, although the passing of time and the rise of aftermath problems have done much to dull the actual horror of the conflict. But the greatest tragedy of all, from the standpoint of 20 years after, is the apathy with which the world is drifting toward a similar disaster.

All England must have been conscious of the World War anniversary as it heard the remarks of Acting Prime Minister Baldwin on the British decision to increase its military air force by nearly 50 per cent. "There is a spirit abroad in parts of Europe," he said, "which, if not cured or exorcised, may some day make the task upon which our thoughts are concentrated impossible of achievement." Presumably that task is peace. But what steps is Great Britain taking to insure peace? What steps is any nation taking?

Any government can find specious reasons to justify increases in its own armaments. And in this art Mr. Baldwin is as able a master as any. Unrest extends throughout the world, he says. Other nations are increasing their weapons of defense. Great Britain can not tell whether the proposed Eastern Locarno agreement will be a success. The forthcoming naval conference may fail. Disarmament is yet to be achieved, even though the existing conference has been struggling with the problem for two and a half years. Consequently, the British Ministry, with only the Labor party in opposition, has decided upon large additions to the English air fleet.

Unfortunately, Mr. Baldwin's statements can not be denied, and it is difficult to escape his pessimism with regard to international affairs. But that is only one side of the picture. The full force of British statesmanship might have been thrown on the side of disarmament. Britain might have taken the leadership in a movement to restore a measure of equilibrium to Europe. In line with her traditional policy she might have applied tremendous pressure to break the deadlock between France and Germany. But aggressive leadership toward disarmament and rational adjustments in war-torn Europe has been almost totally absent.

Nor is it merely in Europe that such leadership is lacking. President Roosevelt's contribution has been so highly significant that on the very day of this British action our super-patriotic Navy League is able to "pay tribute" to him for his "forceful leadership" (well-chosen words) in abandoning the temperate building program of his predecessors.

Exactly so were the navy leagues of Germany and Great Britain congratulating their respective governments, just over 20 years ago.

All Things Are Possible.

It appears that there has been no New Deal for those forgotten men, the poets. And it appears that they are going to find out why.

The Poet Laureate League, Inc. (not ink) has issued a circular letter and called a meeting. According to the former, the sons of Apollo proposed a poetry code to the NRA and were fobbed off with the subterfuge that poetry couldn't be considered an industry. Then they appealed to the FERA to help in establishing a school for poets in the Virginia Blue Ridge—and found that not even Harry Hopkins was impressed by their pathetic need.

Next, perhaps to determine whether there was any place unbarred to bards, they asked the Census Bureau to make a survey of penal institutions "to ascertain the number of poets serving sentences." Even for this important sociological inquiry there were "insufficient appropriations." So now, tomorrow night, they are going to hold a public meeting in a Washington hotel. They will then demand the establishment of a poetry division in the United States Department of Education, and in general will discuss steps "to remedy these deplorable conditions."

Certain indications in all this at first inclined us to the belief that an elaborate hoax was being perpetrated. But inquiry shows that it is all too true. And after all, why not? Under the New Deal all things are possible. Only a fossilized batrachian or a Wall street banker would today seriously maintain that art should not be socialized. The Government has been paying artists to paint poor pictures. Why shouldn't it, when the more abundant life demands, subsidize reams of driveling doggerel by those who like to call themselves poets?

M. Paul May.

By the death of Paul May, Washington loses more than an able diplomatic representative. It also loses a most attractive personality who, while serving his country loyally and well, had made for himself a place in the hearts of his colleagues, and in the hearts of the great number of Americans with whom he was in constant social contact.

M. May, as Belgian Ambassador, did not have a great number of delicate tasks to perform in Washington. He handled his official work with a skill and tactfulness that ranked high among his many accomplishments. But Paul May, the gentleman, the student, the connoisseur, had further unofficial duties. They are shared by every man in every walk of life: the duties of making life easier and more pleasant for others as one passes by. To this assignment he brought qualities that are occasionally matched, but can never be imitated. For these qualities were more than the ambassador's accomplishments. They were the man himself.

The "Give A Job" Campaign.

If properly directed, Commissioner Allen's "Give a Job" campaign may be a valuable community enterprise. As a result of his recent experience in the disguise of a job-hunter, Mr. Allen is deeply impressed with the advisability of giving work, rather than relief, to the unemployed wherever possible. In this worthy undertaking he seeks the cooperation of business and professional men, as well as civic organizations and relief workers.

The outcome of this venture will depend largely upon the policies formulated by the executive committee. Commissioner Allen's chief objective seems to be the transfer of 15,000 individuals now on the District's relief roll to private jobs. Such a program would be open to challenge from the viewpoint of utility as well as that of fairness. A united effort to provide jobs for those on relief rolls alone would encourage a rush for enrollment on the charity list. Certainly the District can not afford to discriminate against those citizens who are without work, and in real need, but who nevertheless manage to subsist on their own meager resources.

Moreover, most careful selection of workers for the jobs made available is essential. If the cooperation of employers is to be forthcoming, the project must be conducted on an efficient basis. When executives add unnecessary workers to their pay rolls they are the more entitled to expect efficient service. If they should be disappointed, their cooperation will certainly be short lived.

It is obvious, therefore, that the selection of the right man for the job is only second in importance to the creation of jobs. So it is most fortunate that the local committee has available the skilled assistance of the United States Employment Service to insure that the plan is not bungled at the outset by enthusiastic but uninformed direction. The attitude of the committee toward this agency will quickly show whether its project is to be regarded as a substantial re-employment effort, or merely as a short-lived emotional appeal. Commissioner Allen, of course, is aware of the fact that the Federal Employment Service maintains a very efficient office here in Washington.

The committee must also avoid the pitfall of narrow provincialism in shaping its policy. Some efforts were made at the initial meeting to condemn Washington employers who send work out of town. If this issue is raised it should be as part of a broad inquiry which would determine why the price of various goods and services is so high in Washington that local companies find it desirable to do business elsewhere.

Safeguards against an influx of unemployed seeking the proposed 15,000 jobs doubtless will also be necessary. This is essentially a community enterprise which can not be expected to afford general relief. Yet, if carefully handled, it may set an excellent example to other cities, permitting substantial inroads on National employment figures. In short, the proposal sponsored by Commissioner Allen is sufficiently important to warrant serious effort to keep it from being a mere flash in the pan.

"Pay Day Is Coming."

Senator Glass uttered homely words of warning when addressing the Young Democrats of Virginia at their convention in Lynchburg. "Pay day is coming," he said, reminding them that the Federal Government eventually would have to increase taxes to cover relief outlays financed by loans.

If paying the bill takes this form—painful though it may be—the country will have reason to congratulate itself upon its escape from a more disastrous form of payment. What we have to fear more than the looming increase of taxes is an expansion of the spending program that would entail a burden too great for the taxpayer to assume.

In that case, the Government would be compelled to resort to the printing presses to meet uncovered outlays. The people would then have to pay a disguised and constantly increasing tax to support Government outlays as the purchasing power of the created money would decline, and wages, salaries and other forms of income would represent a correspondingly reduced volume of goods and services.

The United States still has a choice between the kind of pay day that adds to the burden of taxpayers and the kind that exacts a fearful toll from the community. If that choice is to remain open to us, however, the spending program must be kept within limits that permit of an early restoration of balanced budgets.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR, in the name of his government, sent to the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs a declaration of war. The entire staff of the German Embassy then left St. Petersburg. Italy proclaimed neutrality, while France ordered a general mobilization of her army as a defensive move.

ENGLAND ISSUED a statement on her war policy, the last portion of which was: "The cabinet will decide in the light of events what course England will pursue, but it may be taken for granted that she will be absolutely loyal to her friends."

AN UNOFFICIAL but credible report was current in diplomatic quarters that Austria-Hungary offered to withdraw her troops from Serbia and submit her grievances to an international conference.

A GERMAN PATROL near Prostken was fired on by a Russian frontier patrol. The Germans returned the fire, but no casualties resulted.

GERMAN DESTROYERS made an unsuccessful attempt to cut the cable communication to Russia by way of Reedvig, Denmark.

That Service Station.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to thank The Post for its recent editorials with reference to the gasoline service station at Constitution avenue and Second street.

I am asking all of my colleagues in the House of Representatives, as well as the Senate, to become active in this matter, in order that the beauty of our public buildings will not be marred through the erection of impermanent structures adjacent to them.

The cooperation of The Post has been a genuine service toward preserving the beauty of the public buildings in our Nation's Capital.

Rivals In the Field.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under the pressure, and threatened pressure, of events now transpiring, it would seem to devolve upon the good offices of the public press to warn our automobilists to look to their laurels. Heretofore for some years they have easily held the championship in the matter of the death and disablement of the population at large. But now other causes are supervening, which may well challenge that championship. According to the best informed observers, they will only reach a total of something like 50,000 deaths, and around 3,000,000 permanent cripples this year.

This would be a fairly good showing in ordinary times, but in this hectic year of 1934 the destructive forces of nature, together with the ingenuity of men, seem to be on a rampage to bring on a general cataclysm of destruction. Just the other day a little country like Austria knocked off about a thousand without batting an eye; storms and floods and heat and drought are taking unprecedented toll, so much so that even those energetic twin impersonations of all the wisdom of all the ages, the NRA and the AAA have had to pause to take breath. There seemed to be little else left to take.

Altogether the future looks a little dubious for our doughty autoists to maintain their supremacy in the art and science of death and destruction. F. G. DAWSON.
Charlottesville, Va., July 30.

Maladministration?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The open plow pit in the streetcar tracks on Wisconsin avenue just north of P street is a public nuisance, an unnecessary hazard to automobiles, and a death-trap to persons driving along that street. Last Friday, while following a street car, I ran into the Wisconsin avenue pit and did great damage to my car. That the accident occurred under unavoidable circumstances was the opinion of the dozen or more spectators who report that many accidents have occurred there. Without going into details, suffice it to say that the street car company disclaims any responsibility on the ground that the law permits them to maintain the open pit.

When I voluntarily reported the accident to the Police Department I was told that, since no one was hurt, I was not required to report. Immediately after I did report, an argument among the police resulted in my being sent to court, where the assistant corporation counsel advised me that the least troublesome thing to do was to forfeit $2. I very reluctantly did that with a completely obliterated respect for the administration of justice in Washington.

If this letter would result in better protection of persons who travel the streets of Washington I should feel amply repaid for having been the scapegoat upon the altar of the maladministration of justice.

A NEWCOMER IN WASHINGTON.
Washington, July 26.

The Expense of Pets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the Washington papers, in a most commendable humane spirit, has recently been giving considerable space to dog stories, and to the placing of puppies which may be obtained from the "pound" at $1.00 each.

Practically every normal person likes animals. You notice a group of persons around a young puppy or kittens—immediately adjectives such as "cute," "cunning," and "adorable" fill the air; while the children say "gimme."

I am fond of animals, so much so, in fact, that I believe they should only be placed in homes that have been investigated. The person taking them should realize that they are taking on a responsibility. For instance, with a young puppy—its diet must be watched; then comes the worm season, and if it is to be a desirable pet it must be housebroken, bathed, brushed, and the ever-present flea and tick eradicated. The cost of keeping even a small dog, if properly cared for, amounts to several dollars a month.

If a person is willing to do these things, I think it is fine to place an animal with him, otherwise he is only making trouble for himself and adding to the work of some humane organization later on.

F. E. BEALES.
Washington, July 27.

Sixteen to One.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer read with constant approval the illuminating article in The Post of July 29 by Stuart Chase on the report of the Durable Goods Committee, especially where it says, in effect: "Recovery can not be expected until more purchasing power is released. Adequate purchasing power can not be released until the durable goods industries get on their feet."

Then Mr. Chase quotes a lot of figures showing why the durable—we might say basic industries—are in the throes of despondency, pointing out that "from July, 1929, to March, 1933, consumers goods declined from an annual rate of 46,000,000,000 to 26,000,000,000 (in units called dollars), or a decrease of 43 per cent; while durable goods fell from 40,000,000,000 to 5,000,000,000, a decline of no less than 88 per cent."

Today the banking and currency system of the United States has practically ceased to function, with the result that durable goods as well as consumers goods are at the lowest levels and will continue so with millions of men out of employment and loss of purchasing power and the export trade of the country dropping to almost nothing as compared with previous years.

Briefly, to find such a formula is not a man-sized job, but a very simple one; namely to remonetize silver—the free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1—thereby giving four-fifths of the peoples of the world, now on a silver basis, purchasing power, and what is more important to the people of the United States, taking the issue of money and credit out of the hands of private bankers, who live off usury, and placing it in the hands of the Government, which is supposed to represent the people, to loan money and credit at nominal rates of interest.

WILLIAM J. DWYER.
Washington, July 31.

Both Right!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator David I. Walsh, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, recently said: "Whatever becomes of the NRA, collective bargaining is here to stay." President Roosevelt recently said: "Collective bargaining is the fly in the ointment of the recovery program." We assume both of the above statements are correct, coming from authority on the subject of readjustment and composure.

The thing to do now, it appears after sober reflection, is to find scientifically the true relationship of labor to capital and set up a Washington authority for the purpose of establishing a standard in this country, thereby removing this disturbing question from the arena of periodical and oft-recurring combat. It must begin to appear that there should be a mutual ground for this settlement, the realization of which will undoubtedly result in great good to both sides of this unsettled question.

W. C. PARDUE.
Dallas, Tex., July 26.

Peasants and Peace

Unbroken continuity of tradition and ownership breeds in the peasants throughout Europe that conservative attitude to life that causes them to act at times as a brake upon the too swiftly moving machine of industrial society. They are at one and the same time a conservative and a conservating element in national and international life. Their dislike of change and innovation springs less from an ineradicable aversion to the new merely as new than from an inbred wish born of many trials and disappointments to test the new thoroughly before accepting it. . . .

Moreover, the peasant is the great conservator of family life. . . . The family life of a working-class family endures for a generation. A peasant family life resembles the tree that sheds its leaves in the autumn only to make room for the fresh buds that appear in the spring.

The peasant may also be an element making for stability and conciliation in international life in the future. . . . For him war has almost invariably meant loss and not gain. . . . Even the agricultural crisis that has brought misery and the burden of debt to millions of peasant homesteads in recent years does not often confront them with actual starvation . . .

Peasant economy is not subject to the violent fluctuations that characterize the family histories of factory-workers and townspeople. It is true that the peasant may at times be able to dispose of his produce at higher prices than he can obtain on other occasions. Rarely, if ever, does he experience within a few years that change from well-paid employment to poverty that is the common lot of thousands of industrial workers. Hence it is that the peasant is disposed by inherited traditions and personal experience alike to seek to tread that via media that brings men slowly but surely to contentment. He is instinctively inclined to hate extremes simply because his experience has taught him that violence defeats its own ends. In politics as in agriculture moderation makes for steady progress. The industrial worker is less aware than the peasant of this truth. The peasant knows it intuitively and applies his knowledge in the sphere of politics. He is ready to bargain and to compromise. Tenacious of what he himself possesses, he admires that spirit in others—and deals with them accordingly. That the power of the peasants is growing, and growing not merely in the so-called peasant states, in Europe is incontrovertible. If the European governments meet them with understanding and conciliation, the peasants may yet live to be the saviours of all that is best in that civilization.

Summer and Santa Claus.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

NOT toward his native Austria is German Hitler more neutral today than we were toward Art when we published Harvey Maitland Watts' comments upon the unmodern tendency of modernistic painting. We merely remarked that they were stimulating; we merely permitted ourselves to wonder if they would stimulate anybody to a reply.

Well, we little guessed exactly how stimulating Watts really was and what the bottled-in-bond effect of his words would be upon one of the Column's most courageous correspondents.

Need we declare that we refer to Mrs. Leila Kestler?

* * *

Mrs. Kestler has read not only what we said Mr. Watts said about painting. She has read what we said Mr. Henderson said about music. She has read what we said the Major said about mixed drinks. And now, just because, like a dutiful microphone, we reported the opinions of other people (whether we shared them or not), she charges us with pessimism!

Pessimism? Mrs. Kestler doesn't allow for the weather.

Or does she? She certainly announces: "I'm coiled and rattling and ready to spit my venom."

Here's some of it:

"To me, as a helot—not alien—the 'Peanut Vender' would seem to be 'authentic musical expression of the Machine Age.' There is Art in peanuts. Of late all nuts, other than human, have been raised to retail-store dignity; it is appropriate to dedicate music to them. There is Art in all endeavor for 'the good life.' So why limit ourselves to a few things that belong in the class of 'Art for Art's sake?'

"It is just too bad that the so-called 'upper class' has an inferiority complex because their ancestors missed the 'Mayflower' on her first trip. They still think imported bric-a-brac of greater value than the home-grown variety. What the cat dragged in is a medley, and that's what we have in the arts. If we weren't so afraid of being ourselves we would take Jazz and the Blues and learn to like them, and build something better out of them. It is surprising what can be done with a mere hairpin. . . .

* * *

"What is wrong with the 'Currier and Ives' pictures? Gosh, I couldn't buy one of those if I wanted to! We simply do not appreciate the Art scattered around our feet; we are always reaching for things of no intrinsic value."

Irony? Not all of it, we fear.

For Mrs. Kestler says:

"Art is ever a part of life, even when it pretends to escape. Our problem is to adjust ourselves to our present environment. To devote one's self to 'Art for Art's sake' is to wash one's hands of social unrest, escape reality in illusion. . . . The intellectual climate of the time is (like the climate of Washington) a medium from which we can not disengage ourselves. . . .

"What some folks need is a shock great enough to destroy the 'power to recognize a past and a present as resembling one another—a protanto death—making them consider the points of difference between the present and the past greater than the points of resemblance, so that they can no longer call the former of these two in any proper sense a continuation of the second, but find it less trouble to think of it as something that they choose to call new.'"

But Mrs. Kestler isn't really much more optimistic for the future she desires than Mr. Henderson is for the future he desires. She isn't nearly so optimistic as Mr. Watts—not for any of our various social groups.

"A very large portion of the population of this country," she says, "vested their self-esteem in the acquisition of money and an excessive economic indulgence of acquisitive impulses, so now a nervous breakdown is in order to save their faces. The snobs of 'upper society' and the fanatics of the 'proletariat' . . . need to be born again—of a new father and a new mother, and of a different line of ancestry for many generations—before their warped minds can become simple enough to learn anew."

Despite which, Mrs. Kestler mocks us! Just listen to her:

"The future of America's individualistic culture is sick unto death: no Art in Music—no Art in Painting—no Art in Cocktails—and no more Santa Claus. The significant fact is that people really didn't miss the Art until Santa Claus disappeared."

This is all very depressing—or would be if some people did not have other convictions. However, you see, there are:

People who believe that it is a tonic to realism sometimes "to escape in illusion;"

People who believe with Berkeley and Carlyle that much "realism" is "illusion"—and vice versa;

People who believe that social unrest—not a new phenomenon—won't become social rest without handwashing;

People who believe, with the scientists, that the present is in every proper sense a continuation of the past;

People who believe that the best thinking is not the easiest;

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

John Bull's Divorces.

A. P. HERBERT, cozy British humorist, with a string of delightful books to his credit, is a stickler for good titles. There'd been "Ballads for Broad Brows" and "She-Shanties," for example, and his last novel, "Water Gypsies," was so richly joyous that few thought of the happy nomenclature. But last year, after turning out a thick wad of manuscript—a novel on the divorce paradox in England, carefully worked out and annotated by lawyer friends—he still lacked a title.

THEO. HALL.

"Haven't you thought up anything yet?" his frantic publisher called him on the queasy British telephone.

"No!" shouted back Mr. Herbert. Then a desperate immediate racking, and he flung out an ironical banality, "Unless we call it 'Holy Wedlock!'"

"Did you say 'Holy Deadlock?'" The wire had been sputtering.

"I did not," replied Mr. Herbert quickly. "But that's what we're going to call it!"

• • • •

So, by lucky chance, Mr. Herbert's combined farce and earnest propaganda on the absurd English divorce laws bears the neat title, "Holy Deadlock" (Doubleday-Doran, $2.50).

Which expresses the state of affairs quite accurately. John Adam, mild little Englishman, had met the "walking daffodil" of Mary Eve in a war hospital. They met again in social service in the East End of London—making love amid childish shouts of "Adam and Eve!" and such scenes as 83 young children mixed up in an escalator. But no sooner had they married than Mary's blonde beauty caught the eye of a theatrical producer, and the more succesful she was on the stage the less successful became the "Garden of Eden."

For seven years they held on. Then Martin Seal, announcer in the eminently respectable British Broadcasting Company, took Mary's eye and heart, and it was up to John to do the decent thing.

• • • •

The "decent thing," in British custom and law, is for the husband to afford due evidence of the only grounds for divorce—infidelity. Though "collusion, connivance, condonation" and all the other big "C's" on which the London lawyers bestow professional frowns are, of course, not to be thought of, it is with Mary's help and blessing that John goes through with the process. Which consists of a corespondent especially chartered from an agency, a wholly innocent week-end in a Brighton hotel, and crafty machinations so that the desk-clerk and the chambermaid may be called forward with presumptive affidavits. That, at least, is the stock way in which the business is supposed to work.

But at the first try the chambermaid was too soft-hearted and would have nothing said against such a nice young gentleman. And the second time the corespondent came down with measles. And all in all Mr. Herbert works John's and Mary's attempted respectable divorce through so many difficult passes and over so many hurdles that the last drop of humor and satire is extracted.

As a result, the book is a bit strenuous. Every official document is quoted in full, every legal technicality is discussed (amusingly enough) by the lawyers, and the flying colors of the book seem to be nailed to the mast of a perfectly usable treatise on how to get a divorce on John Bull's island.

• • • •

But with a certain amount of skipping, the American reader (whose comparative blessings in the above matter need no mention) can help himself to a very fair share of fun in the book. Mr. Herbert has the constant touch of the Punch office—a mild but always palatable witticism, an easy, rambling style, and a great predilection for going prettily poetic at every chance.

And amid "tough" tales and "hard-boiled" novels, which are getting as thick about us as the cats of Kilkenny, a good many readers are going to greet Mr. Herbert's peculiarly gentle humor with something close to cheers.

But we needn't, from self-satisfaction, overlook "Holy Deadlock's" dead-earnest satire — at legal absurdity. We're too given to it ourselves. Very close home hits one of John Adams' thoughts: "All those laws and regulations to prevent a man from eating the wrong things, drinking the wrong things, seeing the wrong pictures, reading the wrong books, working in the wrong way—but nothing at all to prevent a man from marrying the wrong wife."

It takes something more than a thousand pleasant books, or a million legal statutes, for that matter, to remove aseptically and finally the inherent risks of this good green earth.

Relief Canning Work Is Started

Charles Town, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Work was started today by the corps of canning workers under supervision of Miss Virginia Owens, canning supervisor for the local FERA office.

The canning will be done in the domestic science kitchen of the Charles Town High School from the community garden situated on Route No. 9 near here.

Thirty men have been taken off relief rolls in Jefferson County and given work on the new Shepherdstown-Martinsburg highway now under construction. Other men will be given work this week in Ranson, W. Va.

Who Will Pacify When They Find There Is No Santa Claus?

By Robert Quillen

This morning three boys came to my back door and asked for bread and butter sandwiches.

They were normal, healthy youngsters in their early twenties, dressed in clean white shirts and white trousers, and nothing in their speech or manners suggested the old-time tramp. One was a college boy.

They had left their homes in different States, met by accident somewhere in Tennessee, and agreed to tour the country together.

Their method of touring, which seems to be popular, reveals the beneficent influence of the New Deal and illustrates the new American philosophy and the new attitude toward life and Government.

They pay expenses by the simple expedient of asking for what they want.

Food is easy to obtain at any back door. Tobacco is more of a problem, for even the most charitable are reluctant to regard cigarettes as legitimate alms.

The problem of transportation is solved in the new and universal way—by standing at the roadside and pointing eloquent thumbs. Three clean boys with shining morning faces seem deserving and harmless.

Obtaining lodging is a knack. The trick is to reach a courthouse town some time after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Before that hour the people who dispense Uncle Sam's hospitality will insist that you travel on to the next town.

The lodgings provided are not always acceptable. At the last town the place was full of unwashed bums who smelled and the boys moved on.

Lodging isn't the only thing Uncle Sam furnishes free to the needy.

During the previous week one of the boys had some digestive disturbance and found a doctor, paid by the Government, to write a prescription. Another had an abscessed tooth which required filling. "That," he said rather boastfully, "cost the Government $5."

So there you are. The Government is a sucker and owes all of us a living, why not take it? But, alas! the longer they are nursed, the harder they are to wean.

Frazier-Lemke Law Invoked To Retain Inn

First Such Action Taken in Frederick County Restrains Buyers.

Frederick, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—The latest move in the fight of Harry M. Lease and his parents to retain possession of the White House Inn in Braddock Heights was made late last night when papers were served by Deputy United States Marshal E. N. Becker, of Baltimore, on Walter S. Graham and Katherine S. Graham, purchasers of the property, to restrain them from possession.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham would have taken possession of the property today.

Through serving these papers, Mr. Lease becomes the first property owner in Frederick County to take advantage of the Frazier-Lemke farm act.

The Federal action taken last night thus supersedes that by the Circuit Court of Frederick County, which ratified the Graham purchase of the property and on July 17 ordered that the Lease family deliver the premises to Mr. and Mrs. Graham.

The Lease family had previously filed exceptions to the report of sale, asserting that Mr. and Mrs. Graham, mortgagees of the property, had agreed prior to the sale that the property would not be sold if Lease and his parents could obtain a loan from the Home Owners Loan Corporation. The sale destroyed the Lease hopes of such a loan, the exceptors claim.

Overruled by the Frederick County Circuit Court, which held the sale to be proper, Lease appealed yesterday to the court of appeals of Maryland.

In the Federal proceedings Lease is represented by John W. Cleaton, of Washington, associated with the law firm of McNeill & McNeill. Deputy Becker, who served the summons Monday night, is the official who recently served a summons on Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace while the Secretary was a passenger on a train.

St. Marys Republican Club Will Hold Rally

Leonardtown, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—A crab feast and rally will be held Sunday at St. Marys City wharf by the Republican Club of St. Marys County.

All members of the nine districts of the county are invited to attend and special attention will be given to the first, second and eighth districts to stimulate interest among the voters and organize them and especially see that they are registered.

Roanoke County Hit By Typhoid Outbreak

Salem, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—A modern emergency hospital to handle a typhoid fever outbreak has been established by the American Red Cross at Edgewood, Roanoke County.

Seven cases of the fever have been discovered in the Edgewood community, four of which are housed at the Red Cross Hospital. The outbreak is attributed by health authorities to polluted water in an old spring.

Socialists to Select Congress Candidate

Roanoke, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—A candidate for the House of Representatives is to be chosen at the sixth district convention of the Socialist party here Friday night. Forty or 50 delegates are expected.

Those mentioned as likely nominees include H. L. Gibson, of Lynchburg; H. M. Spangler, of Buchanan, district chairman, and J. W. Cassell, of Roanoke, local chairman. The delegates also will draw up a platform.

Eastern Shore Bus Hearing Is August 20

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—The application of Roger Hutchinson for a certificate authorizing freight bus service between Richmond and local points on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, via Bottoms Bridge, New Kent, West Point, Deltaville and Ferry out of Harborton, has been set for hearing by the State Corporation Commission for August 20.

Maryland Supply Of Crabs Halved

Severe Winter Is Blamed by Commissioner.

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—Swepson Earle, Maryland conservation Commissioner, today estimated that the supply of crabs in Maryland this year will be about one-half that of last year.

He attributed it in part to the severe winter, the long freezes, and ice conditions on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

"However, the department through its seafood auditor has checked up the crab supply from year to year and it is believed that the destruction of the female crab bearing the egg sponge in the waters of Virginia is largely responsible for the present condition," he said.

5 More Banks To Open in Md.

Reorganized Houses Will Be Members of Deposit Insurance Corp.

Frederick, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—John J. Ghingher, bank commissioner of Maryland and receiver of the closed Central Trust Co., announced last night that five banks, established under a plan of reorganization, will open for business August 9.

The banks are the Western Maryland Trust Co., of Frederick; Valley State Bank, of Middletown; Poolesville Bank, Poolesville; Walkersville Bank, Walkersville, and Skyesville Bank, Sykesville. The banks will each be members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

An initial dividend of 6 per cent will be paid depositors of the old Central Trust Co. and its 11 branch banks upon the opening of the new banks. Dividend checks totaling $648,000 are now ready for distribution.

The Central Trust Co., of which Emory L. Coblentz was president, closed its doors September 2, 1931. Since that time much litigation has affected the reorganization.

Marines Arrive At Norfolk Base

Are First to Be Evacuated From Haiti.

Norfolk, Va., July 31 (AP).—The Naval supply ship bridge, recently pressed into transport service to assist in evacuating Haiti of Marines, docked at the Norfolk Naval base today with the first contingent, of 25 officers and 242 men, to be moved out of the West Indian Republic.

The Army transport, Chateau Thierry, is now en route to New York with 120 wives and children aboard.

The evacuation, recently ordered by President Roosevelt, will be completed August 9, when the Army transport Argonne docks here with the remainder of the Haitian Marine force, approximately 450 officers and men.

Second Danville Liquor Store to Be Opened

Richmond, July 31 (AP).—The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today announced that a second liquor store for Danville would be opened within a few days at 231 Union street.

The board also said a new store would be opened in both Portsmouth and Suffolk, the sites yet to be chosen.

Lee Coble, commander, who said they have signed the pledge of the Legion of Decency. The local branch of the Legion of Decency was organized several days ago.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Signs of Better Times.

An NRA expert looks for a business rise in the autumn, basing his hopes on "National indicators." One of the indicators is a gain in the sale of living room rugs, which always reflects more spending money in the home, he says. But on the other hand it may merely mean that father has worn the rug to shreds with his nervous pacings up and down.

• • • •

Another indicator cited by the expert, Mr. Leon Henderson, is a decline in bachelors during the past year. This is nonsense. A decline in bachelors simply shows that they have had better luck lately in finding women with good jobs or good incomes.

• • • •

Indicator No. 3 is that families are spreading out. Father is shaking off some of the relations, but they may merely be going away for the picnic season. The old man is still afraid they will come back with the first heavy frost.

• • • •

Less money, too, is in circulation, says the NRA man, indicating in his opinion that people have put it back in the banks and are using checks again. The thought that less money in circulation may be due to the fact so many people have checked their wallets with the bathhouse keeper while in swimming does not occur to him.

• • • •

Mr. Henderson may or may not be correct, but the indicators of a returning prosperity observed by this department are the following:

The number of men wearing 3-year-old straw hats has declined 45 per cent.

Most of the fishermen you see this summer are fishing more for sport than from necessity.

The average summer resort restaurant is once more giving you enough butter with your ear of corn.

Industrial leaders have stopped walking around with holes in their socks.

Bankers have ceased swooning when a stranger comes in to open an account.

People who hire rowboats are not only paying in advance again, but are returning the boats.

Fewer slugs are being put into pay stations and slot machines.

The number of business men bringing a pint of milk and some crackers to the office with them for lunch has declined one-point-two.

Circuses are playing to cash customers again this summer and no complaints have been heard that people are taking peanuts away from elephants.

Our Mistake.

Cumberland Jails Forgery Suspect

Cumberland, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Robert V. Hamilton was arrested in New York City on a charge of forgery and returned here Sunday night by Deputy Sheriff George E. Kemp. He was given a hearing yesterday in people's court and committed to jail in default of $500 bond.

He is charged with tendering a worthless check in payment on the purchase of an automobile.

Elmer James Myers, this city, was committed to jail in default of $200 bond yesterday on a charge of larceny, preferred by a relative.

Judge Quits Post; To Be Postmaster

Frostburg, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Judge Edward J. Donohue has resigned from the Peoples' Court, on which he has served since 1920, to assume his duties as postmaster. He also will relinquish his place on the Democatic State Central Committee for Allegany County, of which hs is secretary.

Judge Donahue is a graduate of St. Charles' College, Baltimore and served in France during the World War. He is a director of the Frostburg National Bank.

The four applicants for the judgeship to succeed Donahue are Hugh Nolan, Patrick Monohan, Owen L. Porter and William Shields.

St. Marys Farmers Pay All of Federal Loans

Leonardtown, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—St. Marys County farmers have repaid all their loans from the Federal Farm Loan Bank Association.

Richard H. Pembroke, in charge of the office here, reported, declaring it indicates conditions are improving in this section.

Two Win Scholarships.

Oakland, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Walton Wayne Wolfe, Friendsville, has been awarded a scholarship to Western Maryland College and Robert Louise Houck, Grantsville, to St. John's College, as a result of recent competitive examinations.

August.

The month of August, originally the sixth month in the Roman calendar, was formerly called Sextilis. But, after the preceding month had been named July in honor of Julius Caesar, his successor Augustus, choose the name August for the following month, to commemorate his own name. It was indeed his lucky month; for in it he had been admitted to the consulship, had celebrated a formal triumph three times, had received the allegiance of the army, had put a final end to the civil wars, and had subdued Egypt.

The name of the First Emperor of Rome was Gaius Julius Caesar Octavianus, born 63 B. C., died 14 A. D. The title Augustus was conferred on him by the Roman Senate, in recognition of his important services to the nation. It means of course "majestic," "magnificent," "sublime," the corresponding English word being the adjective august.

Julius Caesar was his great-uncle; when Julius was murdered in 44 B. C., Octavius was only 18 years old but even then he was not only filled with ambition, but ready to assume any responsibility. One of the numerous mistakes made by Mark Antony was his failure to recognize the intelligence and will-power of this remarkable joy. (See Shakespeare's play, "Julius Caesar.") He was an adroit and consummate politician, and pretended to listen respectfully to the advice of his elders, while planning their assassination. He did not become complete master until the year 29 B. C., when the final restoration of peace was celebrated by the closing of the Temple of Janus for the first time in 200 years.

Although Augustus rose to power by cruelty, slaughter, and intrigue, he exhibited the qualities of a great statesman and benificent ruler during his long career. The verdict of modern historians is that he was a man of genius—one of the world's leading statesmen.

He died in his own month of August, and died quite unaware that the greatest event in the history of the world had taken place during his reign. See Browning's poem, "Imperante Augusto Natus Est"—referring to the old tradition of a prophecy of the birth of Christ. The Latin words mean "he was born while Augustus was reigning."

Cumberland Aerie Initiates Class

Given Cup for Record in Membership Gain.

Cumberland, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Cumberland Aerie, No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, initiated a large class of candidates tonight.

The rites were attended by State officers from Frederick, Brunswick, Cumberland, Highlandtown, Frostburg and Hagerstown.

A silver loving cup was presented to the aerie in token of its having initiated the largest number of members of any aerie in the State during the last year. A watch charm was given B. L. Gehauf, who obtained the most applications of any one member in Maryland during the year.

Among those attending were Herbert R. O'Connor, State's attorney, Baltimore; Judge John Pohlhous, president of the State Grocers Association, and a candidate for Congress; George Hofferberth, candidate for State Senator; Ellis Levin, candidate for State's attorney; John Bouse, register of wills, Baltimore, and James A. Young, clerk of the court of appeals.

The National Gallery

REAR ADMIRAL HARRY G. HAMLET, commandant, U. S. Coast Guard. Tall, straight, white-haired. Commissioned ensign 38 years ago. Appointed commandant by President Hoover two years ago. Born at Eastport, Me., August 27, 1874, the son of Capt. Oscar C. Hamlet, of the Coast Guard's forerunner, the Revenue Cutter Service. A member of the relief expedition that went into the Arctic in 1897-98 and returned alive aboard the historic cutter Bear (flagship of the current Byrd expedition), the crews of four whaling ships stranded there. In command of the Navy's Marietta when she took 2 officers and 45 men off the U. S. S. James, sinking in a heavy gale off the French coast on the morning of April 28, 1919. His courage and skill so impressed official Washington that the Secretary of the Treasury awarded him the Congressional Gold Life-Saving Medal and the Secretary of the Navy a special commendation authorizing his wearing of the Silver Star.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Virginia Archives Taxed for Space

Problem to Become Acute Soon, Says Historian.

Richmond, July 31 (Spl.).—Official letters addressed to the Governors of Virginia, and copies of letters written by them between October, 1898, and December, 1917, with many files bearing upon applications for pardons, have been turned over to the State Library as historical documents within recent months and serve still further to tax the already crowded space devoted to the division of archives, it was indicated today by Wilmer L. Hall, the State librarian.

While recognizing the value from the historian's point of view of all the executive documents and gladly noting their acquisition by the division of archives, Mr. Hall pointed out that the problem of providing storage space will become a very acute one soon.

There is no legal provision as to the time of transferring these documents from the Governor's office to the archives, he said. The transfers are made from time to time in the discretion of the secretary of the Commonwealth when Capitol files have become overcrowded.

Lutheran Clerics Hear Dr. Wentz

500 Attending Conference at Harrisonburg.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The progressive church will not be stopped by an economic depression of social revolution, Dr. A. R. Wentz, of Gettysburg, Pa., Theological Seminary, declared today at the annual Lutheran conference and training school at Massanetta Springs. He spoke on "The Modern Christian and His Church."

More than 500 persons from Virginia, Tennessee and West Virginia are attending.

Dr. Wentz told of three types of critics of the church, "the friendly, the scornful and the mournful, the latter being the largest group. He declared a church needs critics.

Court Overrules School Official.

Charleston, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The State supreme court today held that terms of county boards of education begin July 1, and not January 1, as contended by Gilbert Rogers, who sought to force Mason County authorities to issue him a certificate of candidacy for tenure beginning January 1, 1935.

Council Considers Strict Radio Laws

New Plan Designed to Cut Local "Interference."

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The Harrisonburg City Council is getting tired of radio disturbances—the kind that prevent their hearing favorite programs. They are considering two ordinances which place teeth in the local radio interference law.

The new ordinances, which have passed first reading, would assess fines ranging from $5 to $25 on persons creating radio disturbances by improperly hooked-up signs, machines, X-rays and other electrical devices.

Another section sets up a new radio commission, which would be composed of the chief of police, as chairman; the chairman of the council's electric light committee, the superintendent of public works and the mayor. The present commission is composed of three private citizens, who have not had the power to enforce their regulations.

The city's electric system will come in for a thorough check-up along with apparatus of private citizens, under the new ordinances.

Board to Fix Salaries Of Virginia Prosecutors

Richmond, July 30 (AP).—The State Compensation Board will meet tomorrow to fix finally the salaries of commonwealth's attorneys throughout the State, who heretofore have been compensated under the fee system.

Announcement of the meeting was made today by Chairman E. R. Combs, who said it was doubtful whether the commission would finish its work before tomorrow night.

Virginia Deficit $400,000 Less Than Estimated

Figure Set at $2,291,482 as of June 30 in Report to Peery.

Richmond, July 31 (Spl.).—Gov. Peery on his return to the Capitol today was informed that the State deficit at the end of the year was $400,000 less than was forecast, when he went on his vacation a month ago.

"It's the best news I could have received upon my return," the governor said.

The deficit as of June 30, end of the fiscal year, was $2,291,482, J. H. Bradford, director of the budget, reported on the basis of figures from the office of Comptroller E. R. Combs. A month ago the deficit had been estimated at $2,700,000.

"The departments saved more money—returned larger unexpended balances—than we figured," Bradford explained.

The end of the fiscal year marked the close of a severe financial crisis.

Virginia's income fell off $8,500,000 in the biennial budget and but for the expense and salary cuts ordered by Gov. Pollard the deficit would be nearer $10,000,000.

However, the Commonwealth now has an opportunity to balance its books.

Virginia's success in an economic situation which placed heavy burdens of debt upon neighboring States is ascribed not only to the modern accounting system set up in 1927-28 but to the action of the State's fiscal officers and the 1932 Assembly in empowering the Governor to cut the financial garment to fit the depression cloth.

Budget Director Bradford, Comptroller E. R. Combs, the former comptroller, A. B. Gathright, and C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, were the fiscal officers given credit for the safe estimates.

G. A. R. to Bury Its 'Unknown Soldier'

Unique Military Honors to Be Accorded Remains.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Formal interment of the unknown Union soldier whose remains were discovered recently by Wilderness Battlefield CCC workers will take place with unique military honors under sponsorship of the G. A. R., it was announced yesterday.

No date has been set for the rites. Present plans call for attendance by representatives of the G. A. R., Confederate Veterans, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and Sons of Confederate Veterans. Pallbearers will be American Legion members and veterans of the Spanish-American War.

The body was identified as that of a Union soldier by the spread eagle brass buttons on the uniform. The man is believed to have been killed in action, as he was found near a ternch in the heart of the Wilderness Battlefield.

Virginia Announces Safe Water Supply

Richmond, July 31 (Spl.).—The increasing number of tourists attracted to Virginia will find safe drinking at the filling stations, tearooms and restaurants along the principal highways.

Richard Messer, State sanitary engineer, announces that Highway o. 1, from Washington southward through Virginia, as well as the much-traveled Valley pike, from Winchester to Bristol, and the highways from Richmond to Norfolk, Staunton, Lynchburg and Virginia Beach, are now lined with water supplies that have been tested and approved by the State department of health.

Safe drinking water supplies easily may be identified by the "approved water" signs displayed prominently.

Entertainment Places in and Near Washington Are Now in Full Swing

Pleasure-Seekers Can Find Amusements of Many Kinds

By Kay Ware.

The trouble about living in Washington is that your friends drop in as they motor through, and expect to see all the sights in one week-end.

The solution is to say firmly: "I know a good place. We're going there."

But suppose you are a little doubtful and are searching for a bit of entertainment? Here we try to offer this week's solution.

* * * *

For the "continental" atmosphere try the Ambassador's Hi-Hat. The combination of blue mirrors, dangerous if you're not feeling well; red gladioli, walls made of pressed shells, and Hawaiian music makes you look for monocles and gold epaulets.

Gordon Saint Chad, who leads the Hawaiian minstrels, is of royal blood. He is a descendant of Queen Emma, but he says: "What good does royal blood do any one nowadays.

The musicians will gladly play and sing anything the guests request. Anything but grand opera, Gordon is careful to add. After all, how could they sing the sextette from Lucia when there are only four of them?

* * * *

The lazy dip of the paddle, the gentle gliding of the canoe, the dark leaves above you drifting by—a good way to relax, isn't it? There are boat houses along the canal, canoes to rent are cheap, the water is smooth as glass. Drive down Wisconsin avenue to M street, and down that street to the water.

Chameleon Fountain.

Washington is full of fountains of all sizes and shapes. But there's one fountain here that alters its size and shape eight times without repeating. In addition, the fountain changes complexion. Like the movies, it's done with lights, red and blue, gold and green.

If you go to Maryland Club Gardens, try to get a table along the rail. If conversation drags, occupy your mind and interest by counting the changes in the fountain's form and hue.

Delightful effect, looking at a floor show across the swimming pool.

One wonders why the entertainers don't fall off the little platform into the water, but the hostess assures you that nobody has yet. One little acrobatic dancer manages to go through a remarkable routine without an unexpected bath.

A word of warning: Don't try to get to the terrace from the left of the house. Drive into the parking space on the right and make your entry from there.

The setting at the Maryland Club Gardens is superb and almost palatial. Gives one a feeling of expansiveness, financial and otherwise. But the guests don't have to expand as far as money goes. Minimum charge reasonable.

* * * *

While you're trynig out the fried-egg test on the city pavements, remember that there's salt water bathing not an hour's drive away.

Among the beach resorts, Sherwood Forest is as greenly cool as its name, and nicely placed at the mouth of the Severn River. You may prefer to know some one who knows some one, but plenty of visitors wander in uniintroduced, and spend some time at the hospitable clubhouse. There's a golf course handy.

Chesapeake Beach has Atlantic City trimmings in the shape of a boardwalk and a mile-long pier that stretches out into the bay.

* * * *

Clothespins Spell Breeze.

Colthespins are sure advertisements. Why? Colthespins on tablecloths mean but one thing, breeze. They have both on the Arlington Roof, and if you don't believe the pins are needed, try taking them off, and watch your tablecolth sail away.

Hugh Neason, the manager, says he has thought of inventing a special kind of clothespin to serve that purpose. Something large and reliable that will hold the cloth in the center of the table, underneath.

If you visit the Arlington Roof, please ask Tony, the boy with the accordion, to play his own composition. He calls it "El Lido," and it's a tango what is a tango! Watch the lad's fingers on the keyboard, and listen to his original breaks and phrases. He's a real musician.

The spot to cure the back-to-the-woods fever is about 10 miles up the Potomac, on the north side. The Cabin John car makes a direct connection.

To be completely contented, you should know some one who has one of those simple-life cottages on the bank of the canal. There's a whole settlement of little houses, all clinging to the bank by an eyelash or more properly a timber.

Then there are iced drinks and card-playing in bathing suits, completely caged away from mosquitoes. When an energetic hour comes, there's the river just across the canal, ready for swimming or boating.

Scene: The Hangar Club.

Cast of Characters: Bill Levy, Archie Hawk, The Cigarette Girl.

Archie—No, not that way—this way!

Cigarette Girl (frown deepens): Uh-huh.

Archie: Hi, Bill! I drank my milk today!

Bill (expanding): You see how well he obeys me. Got to fatten up a little.

Archie has been with Benny Davis for some time. It seems that Bill and Brownie, who comprise the club's management, discovered Archie when he was a newspaper copy boy. Are they proud to have him dancing there this week?

Aside from being a mecca of tourists and one of the beauty spots of Washington, the Capitol Grounds are cool in the evenings and make a fine background for the Marine Band's music. There's a concert there tonight at 7:30.

Since other bands should not be neglected, the Navy Band will play at the Navy Yard tonight. Take your choice.

Officers Elected By Schindel Clan

Hagerstown, Md., July 31 (Spl.). The Rev. Ira Shindle was elected president of the Schindel clan as 150 descendants of Philip, Samuel and Ludwig Schindel held the ninth annual reunion at the City Park.

The retiring president, William M. Dutton, presided and the following other officers were elected: First vice president, Clyde E. Brewer; second vice president, John D. Dunn; recording secretary, Miss Myra Schindel; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eugenia Harman; treasurer, B. Frank Schindel; honorary presidents, Benjamin P. Schindel and Daniel H. Shuck.

Mrs. William U. Roulette conducted the memorial services for departed members during the last year.

West Virginia Reduces Utility Tax Valuation

Charleston, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.). The State board of public works today announced a reduction of $279,600 in utility valuations for taxation purposes for 1934.

The board fixed the valuations at $601,748,000, compared with $602,027,600 last year. Intangible properties fell off $1,097,500 to a total of $36,445,800, while tangible property values were raised $817,900 to a total of $565,302,200.

Trimble Funeral Held.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Robert M. Trimble, 55, well-known Monterey merchant and brother of Mrs. L. S. Dickenson, of Harrisonburg, died suddenly yesterday morning at his home at Monterey and funeral services were held there this afternoon.

Symbolic of the overthrow of dull office cares, these fair employes of Bureau of Public Roads vie in a slipper-kicking contest (see several in mid-air) at their annual picnic in Rock Creek Park. In this group are Anna Mae Martin, Mary Sensel, Virginia Carpenter, Mary Emma Miller, Winifred Royle, Helen Spashoff, Katherine Mannion, Glauvina Musselman, Laney Eldridge, Catherine Dexter and Dorothy Mannion.

(Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.)

THREE more street cars will be added to lines running into the Potomac Park area to handle traffic in new working hours of 8:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. at Navy Building, G. E. Dunn, Capital Transit Co.'s traffic engineer, said last night.

BAKER

Since Navy Department moved up its working schedule 30 minutes, the employes have complained that the trolley company failed to adjust its schedule to meet rush-hour traffic. Mr. Dunn declared that the transit company was only notified at 2 p. m. last Thursday (the day before the employes' hours were changed), and under such a short notice new schedules could not be made to meet the demands.

Checkers have been at work since the employes' hours were changed, Mr. Dunn said, and service will be adjusted accordingly. The Navy employes, who have to wait on treeless Constitution avenue for the cars, express the hope that the service will be improved immediately.

Veterans' Administration Picnic.

The 4,000 members of Veterans' Administration Employes Welfare Association will hold their first annual picnic at Glen Echo Park on Thursday.

A. J. Brosseau, president of the association, is heading a committee consisting of Frances M. Miller, Janet McRae, Mary A. Brown and Col. D. G. Arnold in planning a program of events.

Reduced rate tickets for amusements at Glen Echo are on sale. Col. Arnold will preside over a huge caldron of real N w England clam chowder. The colonel prepared and served a lobster and clam bake dinner for the New Hampshire State Society several weeks ago and ever since has been besieged with requests for a "repeat engagement."

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (Nigel Bruce and Heather Angel in "Murder in Trinidad"); or to Loew's Palace (second week in Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Phil Harris Orchestra and other acts; screen, Shirley Temple in "Baby, Take a Bow").

Affectionately dedicated to America's First Lady of Filmdom, Marie Dressler, the following poem is submitted by Mattie Richards Tyler (*), Register's Office, Treasury.

Thanks, Marie.

You gave us laughter
Drenched with tears.
You brought us hope
In place of fears.
You taught us faith
Would conquer strife;
And love must play
Its role in life.
Where sadness stalked
You scattered joy!
Your heart of gold
Held no alloy.

THE Dramatic and Musical Guild of the Department of Agriculture will make its bow to a Washington audience Friday night. The recently formed employes' organization will stage its initial program at the new Agriculture auditorium, in the South Building, at 7:30 p. m. A short business meeting will precede the entertainment. There will be no admission charge. All are cordially invited.

Each of the three divisions of the guild will offer selections. The singers will provide six numbers, the Hawaiian and concert orchestras two numbers, while the dramatists will enact a short play, "The Rehearsal."

The mixed white chorus will render "Carmene," by Wilson; the white men's chorus will sing Brahm's "Lullaby," while the mixed colored chorus has chosen "Hot Moonlight," from "Shoot the Works," and the ever-popular theme song of Elder Michaux, "Happy Am I." Sidney A. Frye will sing a tenor solo with the first colored singers' selection. Frank T. Bolden will conclude their program with a bass solo of "Old Man River."

The Hawaiian orchestra will play an Hawaiian march and a medley of popular Hawaiian numbers. The concert orchestra also will render two selections. The cast of the one-act play tentatively include Miss Bella Shapiro, AAA; Miss Helen Hage, office of the Secretary; George Haughy, AAA; R. C. Campbell, BAE; Miss Cele G. Azarow, AAA, and George W. Fields, BAE.

Mr. Fields, director of the guild, wrote the play and will be director. The leaders of the three groups are Robert F. Freund, AAA, singers; Leo J. Schaben, BAE, concert orchestra; Ralph Erskine, BAI, Hawaiian orchestra, and John L. Stewart, BAE dramatics.

Sidelights on Night Clubs And Suggestions for Dining Out

Flashes: Robert Dove has been announced as new manager of the Carlton Hotel . . . The Shoreham presents a second week the dance team that made such a hit with the Carioca. A new attraction is a novelty dancer who fox-trots on stilts . . . Ramon, the head waiter at Heigh-ho rushed up to Pete Macias with the news that there was an addition to his family. Pete christened her Ramona and opened a bottle of champagne in her honor . . . A new waiter at the Loewenkeller is an operatic singer . . . The clever pianist at the Powhatan is worth watching . . .

Gardens in out-of-the-way places: Ramon's on Connecticut avenue and Rector's just a few doors up . . . The Tally-Ho where the food is good and the atmosphere restful . . . The Iron Gate, with big umbrellas . . . The Little Tea House in Alexandria overlooks the city. Perfect for the out-of-towner who wants a bird's-eye view of Washington . . .

A la carte:

Don't miss the fried chicken at Olney Inn. It hasn't been improved upon. . . . Also a specialty both pictorial and delicious is the French salad bowl at Normandy Farms. . . . Rum buns at the Olmstead Grill make you cry for more, and take home a dozen. . . . For a quick lunch; a deviled crab and glass of beer at O'Donnell's. . . . Try the dark rye bread at Epstein's. Wonderful flavor.

If you yearn for French pastry, stop in Ceres near the National. They have a pastry chef from New York, who knows his business. . . . For cool ale in large glasses when you're too lazy to get out of the car, drive out Connecticut avenue to that black and orange Bar-B-Q place. . . . Don't overlook frozen custard ice cream cones after the movie.

Try the Oriental pastry at the Syrian-American restaurant on Seventh street. Or, if you wish, try a Syrian dinner. The manager will be glad to tell you what you're eating, in case you don't recognize it.

Peters Join Celebration Of Holiday

Minister to U. S. and Wife Arrive at Their Home in Geneva.

Swiss National Event Is Feted in Colorful Manner.

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, who sailed from New York on July 21, have arrived at their home in Geneva, Switzerland, just in time to take part in the celebration today of their national holiday, in which many of the old customs of celebration used on their great day of freedom, August 1, 1291, are still used.

The celebration starts at dusk when the church bells peal forth the land over for a quarter of an hour. As darkness settles over the snow-capped mountains and the flower-filled valleys, one sees bonfires dotting the mountain sides, which on the day of victory were a signal to others to do likewise as they were free.

Fires Still Burn.

Nowadays these fires are burnt at the outlying communities and on the large estates where many of the peasants gather dressed in their gayly-colored native costumes to sing old folk songs and to dance until late in the evening.

If one spends this day in Interlaken he will behold a sight never to be forgotten. As the sun sets in the west the snow-covered Jungfrau, the most beautiful in the Bernese Oberland, will seem to be afire from the reflection of the sinking sun, and as darkness comes a fire is started at the Juhgfraujock into which chemicals are thrown to make it more vivid so that it may be seen for hundreds of miles. The streets of Interlaken are thronged with men and women in their native dress swinging varicolored lanterns and in every park a band is playing gay Swiss songs while people sit around, small tables drinking beer, singing and yodeling.

Fashion Show Presented.

Another no less interesting feature is the "fashion show," of the latest creations presented by members of society who come from near and far to witness this annual event and to dine at the fashionable hotel, later going to the Kursal to view the marvelous display of fireworks.

In Geneva, where the Minister and Mme. Peter are spending several days, the occasion is celebrated in much the same manner, only the beautiful Lake of Geneva, which is less treacherous than the two lakes between which Interlaken is situated, affords many the pleasure of going out in little boats which are gayly lighted with colorful lanterns. There will be a large banquet at which the Minister will speak.

Attaches Honor Col. Pennaroli

Farewell Luncheon Is Given at Carlton.

Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, was tendered a farewell luncheon by the military attaches of the various embassies and legations at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. The company numbered 17.

Col. Pennaroli will leave Washington on August 6 for New York and will sail for his homeland on August 11. He will rejoin his regiment shortly after his arrival in Italy.

Pulitzer Awards Show Women Can Become Eminent After 40

Honors Given Two Who Began Writing When Youth Was Gone

"Is there, after 40, any alternative to bridge?" asked H. G. Wells once when discussing opportunities for women in the forties and fifties.

A morose question, this. And one that can elicit a morose answer. But need it? Are there not enough women whose latent talent came to light after 40 to prove the middle-aged woman has a number of opportunities for worthwhile endeavor?

This is the third in a series of articles about women who have achieved success after 40.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

LITERARY annals are filled with records of women who reached the heights between the ages of 40 and 50.

"But most of these began writing years before," says the advocate of youth's advantages over age.

"True," admits the defender. "But there are a number of successful women writers who didn't select a career until after middle age. Take Julia Peterkin, for example."

Yes, Julia Peterkin—the mistress of Lang Syne Plantation in South Carolina, who thought she couldn't write so much as a good letter, until she was past 40.

Won Pulitzer Prize.

Even the youth enthusiast can not deny the career of this Pulitzer Prize winner is excellent proof life can begin at middle age.

For Julia Peterkin was 42 when she began to write.

At 40 she had decided on another line of endeavor. Turning to music, she determined to learn as many Beethoven sonatas as she could.

But what did this have to do with her literary career?

Simply this. Her music teacher, Henry Bellamann, once suggested she write some of the Gullah Negro stories she had related to him. Then, with a background of many years in which she had been surrounded by the Gullahs and their superstitions, she began to write.

Her first work appeared in the Richmond Reviewer. H. L. Mencken read her stories and asked her to write for the American Mercury. Her first novel, "Black April," was acclaimed by critics. Her second, "Scarlet Sister Mary," was awarded a Pulitzer prize. Her third, "Bright Shawl" also enjoyed a tremendous sale.

"The last of life for which the first was made," said Robert Browning in referring to the years past youth. It would seem this line might well have been written with reference to Julia Peterkin's career. It might also be appropriately applied to that of Margaret Ayer Barnes, another Pulitzer prize winner.

The mother of four boys, Mrs. Barnes spent her years before middle age in rearing her children, looking after household duties, and filling social engagements.

But 40 was a turning point in her life. For at that age she began to dramatize Edith Wharton's "Age of Innocence." Attracting favorable attention, this play was produced in New York two years later. In the interim she wrote short stories, the first of which appeared in Pictorial Review.

Wrote "Years of Grace."

Other stories and plays followed, and in 1930 her novel "Years of Grace" won the Pulitzer award.

Two prize winners, then, have discovered there are many good years after 40. Beginning careers at middle age, they have won National laurels.

Are there other women, perhaps not so widely known, who have entered a new field after 40 and achieved success?

There are. Inez Sheldon Tyler, poet-editor of Washington, is one of them. Since her fortieth birthday she has found not only one world, but three to conquer.

Born in Ohio, she began teaching in an elementary school in Michigan at the age of 17. Later she gave up teaching to devote her entire time to her husband, her home and her five children.

Because of financial reverses during the war, however, she reentered the teaching profession. Then past 40, she determined to obtain a college degree.

By taking correspondence courses, by attending summer school and by doing resident college work after school hours, she finished the four-year course and was graduated from Hillsdale College. She had not lost a day of teaching during her entire course.

First World Conquered.

The college world, then, was the first she conquered after 40.

But not the last. Four years after she was graduated she turned to writing to assuage her grief caused by the death of a son. Since that time her verse has been widely published in newspapers and magazines.

In 1932 she began editing Blue Moon, a poetry journal started as a project of the Albion, Mich., branch of the American Association of University Women. Now edited in Washington, Blue Moon is one of the most successful of verse magazines, having contributors from every State in this country, from Scotland and from South Africa.

"The title," said Mrs. Tyler, "was chosen because it is the rare things that happen in a blue moon."

Perhaps. Perhaps, too, when a woman enters a new line of work after 40 and reaches the heights, it is a blue moon event.

But Julia Peterkin and Margaret Ayer Barnes did it. And Inez Sheldon Tyler, now past the half century mark, is still well on the way to the top.

(Read tomorrow's article about women who chose art as a career after 40.)

Underwood & Underwood.

THESE TWO PULITZER PRIZE winners have proved a woman at middle age may begin a literary career and attain the heights. Margaret Ayer Barnes, above, was 40 when she began writing. Julia Peterkin, right, was 42.

Women Cheer Fight as Blood Flows Freely

Sound of Gloved Hands Hitting Bare Bodies Makes Eyes Gleam.

THE GENTLE ladies of the 90's who fainted at the sight of blood would have blushed for their sex, as they so delicately expressed it, if they could have seen Washington women crying for redder blood and mightier blows as Done Ptrin downed Eddie Simms in a ten-round battle at Griffith Stadium Monday night.

For the only shrieking was encouraging cries, and if anyone approached fainting it was at the thought of losing money wagered on one of the fighters.

The eyes of the women in the audience were shining with enthusiasm as they watched blood trickle down the faces of the fighters, watched them shake showers of perspiration off their huge bodies as they lunged mightily at each other.

Reflected In Gum-Chewing.

Only the difference in the tempo with which their jaws moved as they chewed their gum revealed the excitement of most of them. Sometimes the dull, sickening sound of gloved hands hitting against bare bodies made their eyes gleam.

One fat woman sat in a ringside seat. She licked an ice cream cone in meditative fashion—when the fighting was dull. At tense moments she used it as a weapon and fought the air excitedly.

"Come on, sock him in the stomach," yelled one enthusiastic woman who followed every move with avid interest.

Women Greet the Fighters.

The fighting over, groups of women gathered around the fighters, congratulating, condoling, admiring.

With the lights out, the crowd departed and the ring, white and ghostlike in the darkness, Jimmie Lake, famed Washington showman, who had announced the fights, regretfully remarked that the women hadn't been much interested that night.

"I guess it's because none of the fighters was very good looking," he said. "A fighter has to have sex appeal to have the women on his side.

"And if their favorite loses they just go wild. Why, I have seen nice, quiet women get hysterical and tear off their husbands' neckties and break up their hats because they didn't agree about who should win. Funny creatures women, and primitive." He nodded his head profoundly.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Young Man Can Honorably Accept Financial Assistance From His Wife; Such Aid Before Marriage Would Cheapen Him.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: My husband and I have decided to ask you about a problem that has been causing us heartaches all summer. Any advice you can give us will be greatly appreciated.

It's like this, Miss Haworth. We have two sons, one 26 years old, the other 23. The older boy is married and has a good job as high school principal. The younger is also teaching but in a consolidated district school where the pay is poor. He hates teaching and has always wanted to be a lawyer. But we did not have the money to send him through law school and when he got a scholarship to teachers' college we all thought he had better take it and teach a few years, then go to law school on the money saved from teaching.

But things didn't work out that way. Before he finished his teacher's training his father and I lost everything we had. We moved on a small farm my husband had taken in on a trade some years before. Our younger son lives with us as his school is nearby and pays us for his room and board.

* * * *

He has been teaching three years now and for two years has been engaged to a girl with a good teaching job. She makes more money than he does and her father owns the department store in the town where we used to live. This girl teaches in California and wants to live there after marriage.

For the last few months she has been begging our son to come to California, saying she will pay his way through law school at Berkeley. She knows how he hates teaching, how much he wants to study law. Also she says she would rather be married to a lawyer than to a teacher.

* * * *

The older boy thinks his brother should be content with teaching and says only a sap would let a girl put him through school. My younger son is inclined to be bitter about the whole affair. He is a bright boy and feels he would make a good lawyer if only he had a chance. His girl wants to stop teaching as soon as he works up a practice. She wants him to have his law degree before they marry.

* * * *

Our boy wants to go to California, yet it hurts his pride to think of his sweetheart paying his way through college. And he feels badly about leaving us here alone on the farm. What do you think we should do, Miss Haworth? Should we tell him to go or to keep on teaching and take a correspondence course in law? WORRIED MOTHER.

The Wiser Course.

DEAR WORRIED MOTHER: Tell your son to go to California, marry the girl and accept her assistance in getting his law degree. Since she wants to be his wife, is in accord with his ambition to become a lawyer, and has the means and the desire to help him attain it, she is his logical mainstay.

* * * *

Ordinarily I am no advocate of a man's mortgaging his honor by accepting assistance from the woman he loves, who also loves him. But when confronted with a choice of two evils, it seems common sense to elect the lesser. Nothing ventured, nothing gained. If he doesn't embrace this present risk, he stands to lose both future and girl.

* * * *

If these two youngsters go into this thing with their eyes open, fully awake to the perilous curves on the steep ascent they will be scaling together, they have an even chance of making the grade and reaching the top, hand-in-hand.

* * * *

But they must go into it as man and wife, not as affianced boy and girl. Once married, whatever the girl does to further her husband's career is an investment in her own future. Out of marriage, her financial assistance will invite loss of self-respect and resentment on your son's part, and make them both the butt of dangerous, thoughtless and unkind gibes similar to the older brother's remark. M. H.

AN UNUSUAL COLOR scheme is set forth by this new, graceful and utterly feminine negligee. The trailing chiffon coat is water green. It is worn over a cherub pink satin slip. Silver metal cloth outlines the coat's butterfly sleeves.

New Negligees and Tea Gowns Are More Frivolous Than Ever

DRESSES for all occasions, even formal evening affairs, will be tailored this fall and winter, say important designers on both sides of the Atlantic.

This is bad news for the woman who knows she is at her best in frilly, fluffy, feminine things. But she needn't heave more than a sigh or two for tailored dresses, since negligees and tea gowns are going to be more frivolous than ever.

Chiffon is a favorite material for these strictly "at home" costumes. Usually the chiffon is posed over shimmering satin, but sometimes it is used alone, in two or three thicknesses. Satin-back crepe, transparent velvet, radium taffeta, and faille are other fabrics being draped into fall negligees.

Draped is used advisedly, as many of the long garments swirl about the figure in graceful lines reminiscent of classic Greek robes.

The most elaborate negligees and hostess gowns have long, full sleeves, dolman in cut. Frequently bottoms are gathered into narrow wristbands. This style is much easier on the wearer when she arranges her hair or applies make-up. But for purely decorative purposes, loose flowing sleeves can not be improved upon. More graceful in appearance than the ordinary dolman is the butterfly sleeve, which flutters from the shoulder to the knee where it ends in a point.

A new shade for negligees is cherub pink, a delicious-looking rosy hue with an undertone of orchid. Sapphire blue is another hue that is 'way out in front for informal hours. And a flaming orange is striking when developed in heavy silk or gossamer chiffon.

Ostrich, covered buttons, lace, tassels, and velvet sashes are used for trimming. One striking model has dolman sleeves slit from shoulder to wrist with close-set buttons and loops outlining the openings.

PILLAR to POST

Gossip Columnist of 40 Years Ago Set Pace for Writers of Today.

THE late Ruth Kimball Gardiner was the gossip columnist of the gay nineties for The Washington Post—and the many columnists of today who think they are doing something very modern would do well to search the files of 40 years ago for her stories to use as patterns. She was only 18 years old when she began writing the column, "The Woman About Town," in 1893, when Scott Bone was the editor. For 12 years she wrote stories that scintillated with wit and humor featuring the great and near great of Washington, and stories that touched the heart with pathos.

* * * *

She was brought up in a newspaper shop. Her father was an editor of a small-town paper and at 16 she was one of his staff. He treated her just like the other reporters, exacting the same discipline and addressing her very formally as "Miss Ruth." After she came to Washington and began the column for The Post, she married the correspondent of a Chicago newspaper. They had one child, Lisa Gardiner, who conducts a dancing school here.

* * * *

Her husband died young and she had to support herself and her child with her writing. Miss Gardiner remembers when she had to be very quiet when mother was doing her column and some of the stories made her cry.

FROM the time yellowed clippings many celebrated names shine out, such as Archie Butt, who went down on the Titanic and whose memorial stands on the south side of the White House. He was a personal friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and of Mrs. Gardiner, too. His full name was Archibald Willington de Grafenried Butt which, she wrote, "sounded like a cook stove falling downstairs."

* * * *

"At a baseball game recently Archie Butt sat next to an Englishman of the typical sort one seldom sees off the stage," she wrote. "It was a fine game and the rooters were making the welkin ring. The Britisher turned to the young author:

"'Ah' he observed with a wave of the hand toward the howling mob 'just observe the exultant peasantry.'"

* * * *

Ambrose Bierce, another famous writing friend of Mrs. Gardiner, told her of attending a hanging.

"The sheriff asked the condemned man if he had anything to say. No, he hadn't. Up jumped a politician as the crowd milled around.

"'Well, Mr. Sheriff,' said he, 'since the man on the platform doesn't care to make a speech to this large audience assembled I'd like to take this opportunity to say a few words on the silver question.' And the gentleman about to be from nowhere at all yielded his time."

ANOTHER paragraph printed 40 years ago shows that the attitude toward the feminine sex hasn't changed much.

"This is what the eldest daughter of 'Bishop' Oberly tells. She had just boarded a street car on Pennsylvania avenue and just in front of her sat a party of tourists quite evidently from a rural district. They had just arrived, but already they had fallen in with a guide who pointed out the sights.

"'That is the Peace Monument,' the guide informed them. An old gentleman of the party of a bucolic aspect gazed at the monument with an interest not unmixed with incredulity.

"'Peace, said he, peace! With all them women?'"

* * * *

The heading of the column, "Woman About Town," had a pen and ink sketch of a woman with the hour-glass figure, popular in the gay nineties, with enormous balloon sleeves. It may have purported to be Mrs. Gardiner, but somehow one can't see her with such a tiny wasp waist. She took the women of her generation with a sense of humor, as can be seen in the following paragraph:

* * * *

"She was tall and stout and she hailed a cable car while she was yet a great way off. You might have thought her laced, were not the idea that women lace an unheard of thing. I have asked all the small-waisted women I know about it, and each one of them tells me that her clothes hang on her, and that she is ever so much larger with corsets on than without. At any rate, she would not run to catch the car, and she sauntered along deliberately, while the car waited for her to board it. The car rolled on and nobody said anything—nobody but a nervous man with traveling bags.

"Of course," he said very loudly and huskily, "this is the only car on the cable."

MRS. GARDINER always attended social affairs that she was invited to in her capacity as a reporter in her working clothes and if she said pungent things afterward, she could not be accused of bad taste for violating the rule that guests should not reveal the happenings at such affairs.

* * * *

"HAVE you ever given a critical ear to the music you hear at weddings?" she wrote. If you haven't, it will be worth your while to do so. I went to a wedding a fortnight ago, and Warning.'

* * * *

"Perhaps some sense of the inappropriateness of it came to him, for he changed the tune to 'Farewell—'Tis Love's Last Greeting.'"

English Girls Doff Stockings And Tint Nails

Leading Eastern Resorts in U. S. Witness More Conservatism.

By Frances Mangum.

VARIED reports from the four corners of the fashion world are confusing those who want to know the simple "yea's" and "nay's" of style's decree.

A leading specialist in hand culture who has just returned from England says emphatically that women there are going in for bright and lustrous fingernails, and are ardent advocates of the stockingless vogue.

Pedicurists, she says, are doing a rush business. She tells of the large number of highly pedicured stockingless feet seen dancing at the smartest roofs and clubs, at Dorchester House and the Palais Royal.

Pale Nails are Few.

During tea time at Monseignor's this beauty specialist spent her time compiling statistics. Instead of counting noses she counted fingers and found that pale nails were making a poor showing indeed. The few women wearing hose were those with natural colored nails and there was but a smattering of these. Alas for English conservatism.

Reports from Southampton and Newport are at variance with those from London. While there are some nails with beetroot, mahogany and bronze polish, there are many more with the lighter pearl, platinum and pink tints. Most of the older women cling almost sternly to natural polishes.

While the younger people seem for the most part to have abandoned stockings, the vogue is not ganing headway with older women. According to hearsay, either resort might do with more pedicurists, for unlike their English sisters, American women are neglecting to groom their feet as well as they do their hands. As a result, fingernails and tonenails often clash in color.

What Hollywood Does.

One of the most glamorous stars in the Hollywood firmament was seen glistening at the casino the other night in a turquoise blue dinner frock, with a ruby red flower at the throat. Her lips were painted to match the flower. Her fingernails and her toenails, which peeped through the crisscross straps of her blue sandals, were the same ruby red.

3 Little Pigs Make Bow as Rubber Toys

Also Offered In Soap Trio for Use in Children's Bath.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

WHAT part the three little pigs are playing in the modern shopper's life is clearly evident from the number of amusing effigies of them one finds in local stores.

One is scarcely in the door of an E street shop before being confronted with three little pigs in rubber. And they are three very excellent little pigs, all true to character. Two of them look as though they were going to start bouncing up and down the aisle singing their inimitable "Who's afraid of the big bad wolf?" The other little fellow looks very disapproving. What's this? Sure enough, there in the background is the hulking form of the big bad wolf himself!

And what are they for, these rubber figures? If little missie is a tomboy and doesn't like dolls, why she can play with the little pigs And, of course, Junior has to have something and he doesn't like dolls, so they're for him, too. They're lovely presents for children's parties and always a pleasant surprise package.

A little farther down town a G street store has other little pigs, and these a trifle more practical. A soap trio! What fun for the kiddies' bath, the three little pigs bobbing around in the tub. The nicest part is the quality of the soap. There's no need to fear any as pure as this. So there it is, neatly packaged, and all ready to take home.

Stimulate the Face.

There should be three hearty cheers for the advent of complexion brushes priced as reasonably as some in a large department store. Those who have shopped around for such splendid complexion aids realize that it isn't just every day they're priced to meet a modest budget. Here are brushes for as little as 50 cents. There are others for $1.75. But the difference lies in the size, not the quality. The inexpensive brushes are quite large enough to give the face a stimulating rubdown. Their bristles are soft enough not to irritate the face but at the same time they promote circulation and cleanse pores.

Everyone should use a complexion brush. Soap and water, a brush, and a good jar of cream should be sufficient means for any woman to keep her skin at the peak of condition.

Aid for Foot Sufferers.

Special attention, foot sufferers! A member of the personal staff of a world famous foot authority is in town today. In the shoe department of a downtown store he will be glad to consult with you and advise you about anything from corns to falling arches.

If strange little pains shoot across your instep when you walk, or your feet are blistering on the bottom, or your toes have burning corns, don't wait any longer. Stop by and talk your foot troubles over with this medical authority.

Unusual Scents.

When toilet water is not only pleasant to smell but pleasant to look at, then it must be an exceptional product. At present the toilet goods department of a downtown store is featuring some unusual scents. Large bottles of the cologne are tinted a lovely soft lilac, a pale rose and other fascinating colors.

Inside each bottle is the actual flower which lends its scent to the perfume. A very pretty picture. Imagine a tall bottle, lilac colored and lilac scented, with a large, full spray of lilac inside!

The hostess can add a bit of beauty and supply a need to her guest's bathroom or bedroom.

This is also the answer to the summer bridge hostess' question, "What can I buy for a prize?"

Jelly Making Simplified.

Here is an item for jelly makers, those heroines who defy the heat to turn fruits into more lasting delicacies. A jelly strainer priced at 25 cents makes jelly making infinitely easier. Instead of using the old sack that makes the hands a mass of stains, and is liable to burst just at the wrong time, use one of these perfected strainers. A course piece of homespun fits onto a light metal frame, and the metal frame fits over the jelly pan. Now with a wooden spoon mash the cooked berries or fruit against the cloth while the juice strains through to the pan.

It saves time and it saves trouble. And there'll be far fewer stains.

Translucent Compacts.

Some new compacts are most attractive looking and they're a lot of fun, too. They're made of translucent catlin, which looks a bit like crystal. Peering from the outside in is a simple matter. It takes but a glance to see right through, measure the extent of powder, or the size of the puff.

Autumn Accessories Liven Summer Attire

Combine Fashion With Economy; New Hat and Gloves, in Latest Dark Colors, Are Particularly Effective.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Instead of saying (as you may feel like doing right now), "I've had this dress all season and simply can't wear it any longer," try this phrase: "With a few new fall-ish accessories, I think this dress will do nicely for the next few summer weeks."

This isn't only economy. It's the fashion. Because right now, while it's still too warm for a real fall dress or suit, you feel like having some new fall touch. And accessories give it to you in comfortably small doses.

In Dark Colors.

So you step out and select a new hat and gloves, perhaps, in new dark colors. Black, brown, wine or green will fit in with your fall plans. There's some use, too, of bright dark blue and a few combinations of black-and-white.

Satin is the shining example of smartness in mid-season accessories. There are hats of satin, handbags of satin, gloves of satin, belts of satin, neckwear of satin. And this last item, contrary to the rule of dark colors, is usually white.

It's the beret which is making the big hit in satin hats. It's newest when very pancakey and large.

Gloves are plain slip-ons, and so are ready to be worn with anything. Most of the handbags ars a soft, pouchy type of medium size and are often made even shinier than the satin makes them by the addition of a marcasite ornament.

You can see in the sketch a smart new beret, handbag and gloves in dark color and an interesting white satin collar.

Besides satin, taffeta is used for some new accessories, principally hats and neckwear. And it certainly does give a costume all the crispness of a fall early morning.

Velvet is used, too . . . alone for hats and in combination with satin or taffeta for neckwear.

Accessories of the types described are available in Washington in all the better shops and department stores.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutler.

Kidney Disease.

Physicians who give special attention to diseases of the kidneys are constantly astonished at the remarkable power of endurance displayed by this special tissue.

Naturally the kidneys, like any other body structure, may be attacked by disease. There are tumors and cysts of the kidneys, but more important than these is degeneration caused by infection, by toxins, or by increased blood pressure.

That type of kidney disease called acute nephritis is at first inflammatory. This is more frequent in children and in young adults, and tonsilitis and scarlet fever are the more common causes. During the acute stage the face may appear puffy, the skin may have a typical pallor, and albumin and sometimes blood will appear in the urine.

Chronic kidney disease may not at first show recognizable symptoms. The physician, however, is always on the alert for insidious changes and will more frequently than not recognize them when present if given the opportunity. A great deal can be accomplished in kidney disease that is recognized early.

A careful physician can determine with fair accuracy the amount of damage a kidney has sustained and his advice and management will in most instnces not only prolong life but keep the patient active and comfortable. Diet plays an important role. Careful attention must be paid to salt concentration in the body and adequate elimination secured via the skin and the bowels. A yearly physical inventory of oneself should be as important as a yearly audit of one's accounts.

We must, however, learn to live more calmly. Important structures like the kidney, with working parts more delicate than gossamerlike lace, must be respected. A bit of rare china may be replaced if broken, perhaps not with the same pattern but with another piece equally as useful. Kidney tissue once destroyed cannot be replaced.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

By Susan Mills.

SALADS, salads and more salads in hot weather. That's what the family wants, and what the cooks prepare. A few new ideas will help stale menus, and give the family the nourishment they need in a palatable form.

Why not serve two or three combinations on the same plate? The nourishment is there, and cool and crisp ingredients make a meal an enjoyable one.

Combination No. 1.

Tomato Stuffed with Kidney Beans—Place one medium can oven baked red kidney beans in a strainer and pour boiling water over them. Cool. Mix with 1 cup celery, cut in pieces, 2 tablespoons India relish and ½ teaspoon salt. Moisten with mayonnaise and let stand in refrigerator until chilled. Fill tomatoes from which centers have been removed. (There will be enough filling for six tomatoes.) Arrange in nests of crisp lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise.

Cole Slaw with Peanut Butter Dressing—Combine 3 cups shredded cabbage, 1 shredded green pepper, 10 chopped fresh cucumber slices, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Mix with peanut butter dressing.

Peanut Butter Dressing—Mix thoroughly 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon malt vinegar and 2 tablespoons peanut butter.

Princess Salad—Peel 6 ripe peaches or pears. Cut in halves. Spread the cut side of one-half of a peach with cream cheese. In center place a spoonful of currant jelly. Place second half of peach over cheese and jelly to make a whole peach. Dip in shredded cocoanut. Place in nest of lettuce and garnish top with spoonful of currant jelly or half of shelled walnut.

Combination No. 2.

Salmon salad—Flake 2½ cups cold salmon, discarding skin and bones. Add 1½ cups celery, cut in pieces, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon paprika. Stand in refrigerator to chill. Mix with enough mayonnaise to moisten well. Serve on any crisp salad greens and garnish with sweet gherkins.

Latticed cucumber cheese salad—Peel cucumber and cut into strips about ¼ inch thick and three inches long. On a salad plate bordered with watercress, place three strips of cucumber parallel and a short distance apart. Crosswise on top of these place three more strips. On top and in the center of the cucumber strips, place a heaping tablespoon of cottage cheese and vegetable mixture, made by combining 2 cups cottage cheese with 12 chopped ripe Mission olives, 8 chopped small red radishes and 3 chopped sweet gherkins.

Watermelon salad—With a French vegetable cutter cut balls from the watermelon, which should be very ripe and have a good, red color. Remove seeds carefully. Put the balls in the refrigerator to chill. When ready to serve, arrange in cups of small crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with sprigs of mint. Serve with French dressing. This salad is very attractive in a bed of fresh green watercress.

What Today Means

"Leo."

If August 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

This August 1 should show indications that business for this month will be decidedly more encouraging than for the same period twelve months ago. If you exercise tactful consideration for a busy person's time, their appreciation may be shown in a substantial way. This day should prove an excellent one on which to plan any type of campaign or new enterprise. It might prove advantageous to give heed to the opinions expressed by others relative to business affairs.

If a woman and August 1 is your natal day, you may be agreeably surprised by an unexpected caller or letter. If you take a greater interest in some form of physical exercise or an out-of-door sport that is inducive to it, you may find it beneficial. You should exercise discretion in anything that could be construed as the first step in a love affair. If you are single or married, be careful not to give malicious gossips the chance to use their tongues. Happiness should result in marriage if you accord your husband the same treatment you expect of him.

If a man and born on August 1, you may find if you overcome any inclination to be indifferent that life will be pleasanter not only for yourself, but for your family and friends. Geniality is most essential and it may hasten you on the road to success if you will cultivate it.

Beauty Joins With History in Antique Show

Asbury Park Display Has Several Items Made by Duncan Phyfe.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 31 (Spl.).—Many pieces of furniture, notable not only for their beauty but for their historic associations, are being shown here at the summer antiques exhibit.

A coffee table made by Duncan Phyfe for his own home and a blown glass pitcher used in his home when Washington visited there are in the display. Of much interest to visitors is a Duncan Phyfe table on which are stars representing 12 States. This table is believed to have been designed by Thomas Jefferson.

A valuable item on exhibit is a combination chess table, sewing cabinet, card table and portable desk, which is said to have been designed for Issac Disraeli, father of the statesman, by Sheraton.

A banquet cloth on which is woven the royal Hanoverian coat of arms and the date 1694, an 1805 American banjo clock, an English Chippendale octofoil table, slant top English Sheraton desk, and an American Heppelwhite scroll top mirror are among the interesting features in the furniture exhibits.

In the glass displays are Sandwich glass plates, a complete service of pressed glass in the Roman Key pattern, luster pitchers, old glass cruets in rich colors, Lafayette slipware plate and other items.

The foremost craftsmen of America and England are represented in the 38 booths, which are housed in a building overlooking the ocean.

Pastor Uses Movie Tip; Cools Church With Snow

Somerville, Mass., July 31 (AP).—The Rev. Harold W. Arthur, pastor of the Union Square Baptist Church, has gone the 20-degrees-cooler-than-outside amusement palaces one better.

While the city outside sweltered yesterday Mr. Arthur preached from a bank of snow and members of a cooled congregation sat in comfort and sang hymns about winter.

The snow was manufactured for the novel service by an ice company.

Aid for Jobless Chefs Rewarded

Argentine Hostesses Get Sumptuous Dinners.

BUENOS AIRES, July 31 (U.P.).—Housewives may entertain with sumptuous dinners if they avail themselves of the Buenos Aires Gastronomical Artists Mutual Aid Society. "Bagamas" was founded recently to help lesser-known chefs, and offers a three-hour bimonthly free lesson and services to those willing to aid unemployed and gastronomical artists.

Two days' work for jobless chefs, and Gaston, one-time chef at the Adlon, Berlin, will draw up a menu once every two months, cook the piece de resistance himself, and teach the hostess how to do the rest. A secondary chef sees that the cooking and service equals Gaston's.

Most of the society's jobless members are now employed four or five nights a week.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin, her husband and their son decided to flee Russia after suffering years of hardship under the Soviet regime. This is the story of their hazardous flight to Finland.

WE were fearfully hungry after our bath in the river. We had not had a proper meal for six days; now and again we drank water with sugar and ate small pieces of rusks and bacon when we felt faint.

At last we came to a sheltered spot and sat down to have something to eat, and for a much needed rest.

We said good night and lay down by the bonfire. My husband lay behind the boy so as to protect him against the cold that was creeping up from the valley. The black night was all around us; the bright and warm circle by the fire was all that we had so far wrenched from Fate.

The next day our journey grew more difficult. The beautiful pine forest came to an end and we had once more to go up and down ravines and valleys. The sun came out occasionally, but it was difficult to find the way because the whole place was cut up by mountain ridges, big and small, going in different directions. It was becoming more and more doubtful whether we should ever find the Finnish River which was to guide us.

"The only thing we can do is to go toward the west," I insisted.

Must Find Valley.

"But we can't go climbing all these mountain chains," my husband said. "We must find a good-sized valley and take our bearing from there."

He and the boy climbed up a hill and came down, very pleased.

"Some 10 miles away there's a river, which seems to run south, and there's a lot of leafy trees near it. It's a fine valley. If we are in Finland already we need not be afraid of going south."

We reached the river after making several detours because of marshes, a wide side stream and so on. We found that it flowed north and if we followed it we would come right back into Russia.

It was a great blow to us. The river bank was one continuous marsh overgrown with arctic birch. The bank opposite tempted us by its white moss and pretty fir trees. We decided to wade across to it. We were exhausted, chilled to the bone, got a lot of our things wet, and found ourselves in a worse marsh than ever. We managed to light a bonfire under an uprooted fir tree and kept it up through half the night to dry a place where we could sleep.

Waited for Sun.

The morning was damp and foggy.

"We must stay here till the sun comes out," my husband said.

"We must go on, for we shall never see the sun in this swamp," I objected.

After much hesitation we decided to go on. We came upon the same river which took another turn, waded across it and climbed uphill.

"I am not going to move from here till the sun comes out," said my husband.

We lit a bonfire and sadly lay down beside it. It came on to rain several times during the night. Our Soviet waterproofs let water through quite freely. The fire hissed, fighting the rain. It was a bad lookout.

I was awakened by a sharp exclamation of my husband. He was standing and pointing with a bitter laugh to the flat red disk of the sun rising from behind the very hill which we thought was in the west.

Wrong Course Taken.

So the whole journey of the previous day had been wasted. We had to wade through the chilly river once more and climb to the place we had left two evenings before.

A high ridge rising high above the line of the forest, and a perfect chaos of valleys and smaller ridges lay before us. We thought that we had completely lost the Finnish River we were in search of and had no idea how we would find our way. But the boy, whose ideas on geography were distinctly vague, asked cheerfully how soon could we walk to the Bay of Bothnia, for we could not possibly miss that as we missed the river.

We reached the top of the ridge absolutely exhausted. A piercing, icy wind was blowing. The view that lay before us filled us with horror. We had been longing for a green, sunny valley, but instead we saw a huge, gloomy, cauldron-shaped hollow, from which there seemed to be no way out.

Position Was Serious.

"We must go down; we shall be frozen here," I said. "Once we go down we shall lose our bearings, we must take good stock of the place first," said my husband.

We did not suspect that we were actually standing on the frontier pass, right over the starting place of the Finnish River, which we had given up for lost.

We were suffering from hunger, too. We reduced our daily portion to two or three tablespoons of rice and two ounces of bacon which we added to the mushroom soup in the morning and evening.

Our only salvation would be to meet someone. We talked of nothing but where and how we could find any people. There were no traces of trees being cut, the forest was quite untouched, though it proved to be in a fine, broad valley and not in a hollow between the mountains, as we had thought at first; the river flowing through it was big, and had many tributaries.

It was our son who brought us the first message of hope.

Sign of Habitation.

"Daddy, there's a mark of an ax!" he cried in an almost frightened voice.

Indeed, an old tree in the depths of the forest had been marked by an ax, evidently some time ago.

"Very clever of you to notice it! Yes, that's the first sign of man we have seen. So, evidently people do come here sometimes."

"Certainly, daddy! After all, there must be people in Finland."

"They all drift toward the southwest; here in the north, the population is one man per square kilometer. Imagine what it means if you have a village with a hundred inhabitants and a hundred square kilometers of land around it."

Two hours later we came upon a clearing in the forest. It must have been made 10 or 15 years ago because it was covered with young growth; most of the trees had been taken away. Finally, the boy found a neat little peg with a Roman figure on it, probably indicating the number of the plot.

"Yes, dear," said my husband with a sigh, "in Russia they now destroy forests wherever they can without any system or order, and here, you see, everything is planned and numbered."

Guard to Give Party Friday To Citizenry

First Maryland Infantry to Offer Athletic Events for Guests.

Cascade, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Inauguration of a new feature of the annual encampment of the First Maryland Infantry was announced today by Col. D. John Markey. All residents of the community where the regiment is in training will be invited to attend community day at camp Friday, in token of the regiment's appreciation for the many favors shown it.

Landowners who have permitted use of their property for maneuvers will be especially welcome guests, the colonel announced. A comprehensive program of sports, military drills and other features is planned. One of the chief features will be a regimental parade, which will be reviewed by Maj. Gen. Edward A. Croft, chief of infantry, who also will award various pennants in recent camp contests.

All regimetnal championships athletic events will be directed Friday by Gary (Swede) Epply, track and field coach at the University of Maryland, who arrived today. Eppley also will coach the teams this week.

The Third Battalion, commanded by Maj. S. P. Fuller, today underwent the gast-training course under direction of Capt. William E. Tydings, U. S. A., gas instructor. The Second Batalion, commanded by Maj. Harry E. Flook, of Cumberland, engaged in a field maneuver in preparation for the regimental maneuver. The First Battalion, commanded by Maj. Winfield E. Harward, fired on the combat range. The Third Batalion put on a parade tonight.

Noncommissioned officers of the Company F of Hyattsville will entertain company officers tomorow night at a party in the mess hall.

British Budget Surplus Noted; Relief Pushed

Parliament Voted Plans for Bigger Air Force, Industrial Aid.

London, July 31 (AP).—A budget with a surplus, plans for an increased air force, and a decision to reinforce the Locarno pact with closer cooperation with France were the high spots of the parliamentary session which was adjourned today.

A mass of legislation to aid agriculture, industry, shipping and trade were among the important accomplishments.

The budget of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, which gave the nation a pleasant surprise by showing a surplus, was considered by the Conservatives to have been the big feat of the session.

Great Britain's program for Indian self-government moved slowly during the session, and it will perhaps be the principal political question slated for debate at the opening of the next session in the fall. By that time a special committee will have concluded its report on changes in the original scheme for self-rule in India.

Efforts were made at this session to give the House of Lords enlarged powers, but the government, despite extreme Tory inclinations, withheld its approval. The Tories planned to continue a fight for the return of some of the old traditional powers of the upper house.

Baltimore Milk Increase Seen

AAA Agreement Expected to Lift Prices One Cent Per Quart.

An increase of four cents a gallon for milk in the Baltimore milk shed was in immediate prospect last night, as the AAA announced a new license for the area, effective at once.

Signed yesterday by Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell, at the request of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association, the license took effect coincident with termination of the old agreement.

Prices to producers are increased by about 41 cents per 100 pounds on Class 1 milk, and about 23 cents on class 2 milk. It is expected the increased price will be passed on to consumers, with a boost of about 1 cent a quart in prospect. The retail price per quart is now 11 cents, but by next week it may be 12 cents. Pine retail prices may not be increased.

The Washington area will not in anyway be affected by the price step-up, dairymen here said last night.

No resale prices are contained in the new license. The sales area embraces all territory within the corporate limits of metropolitan Baltimore, and Baltimore county, serving a population of nearly 1,000,000. About 3,900 producers are affected.

Ft. Meade C.M.T.C. Will Issue Awards

Visitors' day at the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort George G. Meade, Md., next Saturday will be featured by the final awarding of medals, trophies and scholarships following inspection and review, starting at 9 a. m.

This is the largest C. M. C. T. unit in the East, about 1,200 trainees from the Third Corps Area, including the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, being in camp.

Blue Room Becomes Office

Feeding Children Who Ate At Schools Provides Problem

Relief Officials Admit Some Families Do Not Get Enough.

Are the 7,500 children who received lunches in the schools before the summer vacation getting enough to eat now?

The school lunch program was begun when it was learned many children went home during the noon hour only to return at 1 o'clock hungry. Are these same children having a nourishing lunch at home now?

Although District relief officials believe many families on relief receive sufficient food, they are not able to estimate the proportion not having enough.

It is admitted some families do not get enough food. Relief officials declare food budgets are low and only with the best management by the relief client can a family have sufficient nourishment.

Many Getting Less Food.

This means that in many families the school lunches are missed tremendously—that some of the children who did get the lunches are having less food than they did when school was in session.

Another indication of this is seen in the report of Adjt. H. Mills Eroh, of the Volunteers of America. Since schools closed, he says, the number of children fed lunches by the Volunteers has doubled.

Through the Volunteers' activity and other special summer charities such as camps, the Nursery Schools, which have remained in operation, and others, undoubtedly some are being cared for.

But the fact remains that there must be many children who are in need of the noonday meal which was so well-received during the school term.

No Present Way Out.

Relief officials see no present way to put these boys and girls back on the lunch status—no funds are available, nor is it possible at present to raise the food budget.

Nor is there any assurance that the school lunch program will be resumed in the fall. However, every effort will be made to make resumption possible.

Meanwhile, Miss M. Alice Hill, director of District relief activities, says her division is attacking the problem in the only channel available—the teaching of mothers on relief how to make their food budget buy the most good food.

Mrs. Katherine M. Ansley, director of school lunches, is devoting part of the summer organizing groups of needy women and teaching them what to buy and how to cook to get maximum benefits.

With the number of families—20,000—on relief, it is not possible to give such instructions to all, so the groups being taught will pass on their knowledge to others.

Report Being Prepared.

Mrs. Ansley also is preparing a report of the value of the school lunches with the view of recommending their resumption in the fall, a survey of diets and costs of lunches in the nursery schools, and surveying work in connection with diets at several board of public welfare institutions.

The school lunches were started in January with funds appropriated by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. At the outset it was estimated 1,500 children were in need of a good lunch each day. Before the term finished more than 7,500 were being fed, so many that facilities would not permit them all to be fed a hot lunch.

The lunches were not limited to children of relief clients, but to any children whose teacher believed needed the food. This was done because it was believed many impoverished families were too proud to apply.

Since school closed more than 1,000 new families have been added to relief rolls, so some of these children in the second category are now dependent on relief budgets.

Prosecutor to Get Boy Drinking Case

Father of Intoxicated Lad, 3, Is Arrested.

Charges that a father gave his 3-year-old son whisky will be presented to the District attorney today.

The father—Bernard Maynette, 33, o fthe 900 block First street northwest—is held for investigation by First Precinct police. His son, Paul, was found staggering Monday afternoon at Sixth and F streets northwest.

The youngster was sent home yesterday after 24 hours 'treatment at the Childrens' Receiving Home. A stomach pump was used when the child was found to be under the influence of liquor.

Detective J. K. Baker, after an investigation, arrested Manyette. Meanwhile operatives of the Women's Bureau are investigating the status of Paul's home.

One Year Old, NRA Eagle Has Grown to Fame

The symbol was adopted August 1, 1933, as a guide to consumers wishing to patronize employers who signed the President's Reemployment Agreement.

"Dramatic events marked the launching of the Blue Eagle," NRA commented. "One of these was the raising and operation of the largest peace-time volunteer army ever assembled in the United States.

"More than 1,500,000 men and women worked together in the National drive to sign every employer to cooperate with the President's Reemployment Agreement. * * *

"Under the direction of 6,500 well-organized local committees in every part of the country, the 1,500,000 volunteers obtained the signatures of 2,300,000 employers.

"This required a National block-to-block canvass to get every employer in America under the Blue Eagle and a consumers' insignia in every home. Nearly 60,000,000 consumers signed pledges of cooperation and received a special Blue Eagle symbol.

"The immediate result of the vast plan of cooperation under the NRA was to fix maximum work weeks and minimum rates of pay for all American workers. Millions of unemployed were reabsorbed in industry."

The eagle was chosen as the official NRA insignia soon after it was drawn by Charles Coiner, a young Philadelphia commercial artist.

"Talking Book" On View Today

New Method Developed to Assist the Blind.

A demonstration of the "talking book" for the blind, which reads aloud books printed in Braille, will be held 1 to 10 p. m. today at the Columbia Polytechnic Institute for the Blind, 1808 H street northwest. Ralph Campbell, executive secretary of the institute, will be in charge.

The "talking book" was developed by the American Foundation for the Blind of New York City to replace the Braille system. The Library of Congress, which has been printing Braille books for some time, is furnishing volumes for use on the machine.

U. S. Clerks Form Two New Lodges

Washington and Baltimore Units Chartered.

Two new lodges have been chartered by the American Federation of Government Employes—one in Washington and one in Baltimore. The Washington Lodge, No. 123, composed of professional and clerical employes at the Mount Alto Veterans' Hospital, is the second to be established there, the older lodge, No. 95, being made up of employes in other classes.

Alcohol Tax Unit Lodge, No. 134, is the Baltimore chapter.

Board of Trade To Ask Aid of Commissioners

Representation in Congress and Lorton Wall Head Big Civic Program.

The broad program of civic activity recently adopted by the reorganized Board of Trade will be laid soon before the District Commissioners, it was learned yesterday, with the object of securing their cooperation in putting it into effect.

The fight for District representation in Congress, for a new wall around Lorton Reformatory, an airport at Gravelly Point and a definite bridge program for the District, are near the top on the list of projects to be supported. Under President Robert V. Fleming the board, which recently took over the Washington Chamber of Commerce, has divided its activities among 27 committees, in an endeavor to attack all problems which confront the community as a whole.

The Municipal Finance Committee, under Edward F. Colladay, is looked upon as the most important of the 27 groups. Theodore W. Noyes heads the National Representation Committee, the work of which is also a matter of extreme interest to District residents. A Senate sub-committee under Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, is now considering the question of reorganizing the District government, with the prospect that hearings will begin November 1. It is regarded as certain that the board's spokesmen will take the stand at these hearings in support of National representation for the District.

The Bridges committee, with George C. Shinn as chairman, is endeavoring to speed up the erection of a new bridge in Pennsylvania avenue southeast. The drive for a municipal airport will be led by Clarence A. Miller, chairman of the aviation committee, while Odell S. Smith, chairman of the public order committee, is seeking an appropriation of $500,000 from PWA funds for the Lorton Reformatory wall. Recent investigations there have convinced the committee that the situation is fraught with danger, because of the possibility of a break by desperate criminals.

Chairman John J. Esch and his public utilities and transportation committee will survey problems of mass transportation, as well as the question of merging the two gas companies. Water front improvements and a deepening and widening of the Washington Channel will be the concern of the rivers and harbors committee, under John A. Remon. The streets and avenues committee, under George V. Graham, will attack the six-year road building program and the widening of certain streets. Another part of the public improvement program will be in the hands of Chairman M. X. Wilberging and his water supply and sewerage committee, which will study the proposal to build an $8,500,000 sewage disposal plant.

The drive to make life safer for Washington motorists and pedestrians will be handled by Wallace B. Robinson and his traffic committee. The effort to secure passage of an automobile insurance law will be headed by George Keneipp of the insurance committee.

On the cultural side, the Municipal Art committee, whose chairman is Thomas A. Mullett, will again conduct an architectural contest, while the Public Library committee, headed by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, will endeavor to obtain a 5-year program of development for District libraries.

Thomas P. Littlepage, chairman of the industrial interests committee, is entrusted with the promotion of the "Buy-in-Washington" movement, as well as the continuation of radio broadcasts and the efforts to obtain awards of municipal building contracts for local contractors.

Services Today For Mrs. Darby

Rites for Life-Long D. C. Resident to Be Held at Home.

Services for Mrs. Annie F. Darby, 75, owner of the Rufus H. Darby Printing Co., who died suddenly at the summer home of her daughter, Mrs. Wilson B. Nairn, Monday, will be held at 2 p. m. today from her residence, 2811 Fulton street northwest. The Rev. George Farnham will officiate.

A life-long resident of Washington, Mrs. Darby was a prominent member of the Congressional Church and affiliated charitable associations. At the death of her husband, Rufus H. Darby, 28 years ago she took over the management of his printing business.

She is survived by a son, Rufus C. Darby; six daughters, Mrs. Frank Coffee, of Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Herman Ladson, of Olney, Md.; Mrs. A. D. Weakley, Mrs. Edward E. Darby, Mrs. Nairn and Miss Jane Darby, all of this city, 11 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Darby's four sons-in-law, Herman Ladson, Edward E. Darby, A. D. Weakley and Wilson B. Nairn, William Payne, a nephew, and Robert W. Knadler, of Baltimore, husband of a granddaughter, will act as pallbearers.

Mrs. Emma Smith, Capital Native, Dies

District Woman Survived by Son, Two Sisters.

Mrs. Emma Quigley Smith, of 2401 Calvert street northwest, died at her home at 5 p. m. yesterday after a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Smith was a native of Washington.

She is survived by a son, Emmons Smith, jr., and two sisters, Mrs. Frederick Price and Mrs. Charles Grace, all of Washington.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Rural Institute At Winchester Cites Leaders

Dr. C. M. Newman, of V. P. I., spoke on "Bits of American Humor."

Byrd was cited for his constructive work with orchard interests and his service as president of the Virginia State Horticultural Society.

Mrs. Atkinson was cited for her contribution to "wholesome rural life and the example which she has set in her zealous and unselfish leadership." For 25 years Mrs. Atkinson has taken an active interest in educational work and in more recent years has taken a leading part in Dinwiddie County in home demonstration work.

. . . . Mrs. Roop named President of the Virginia Homemakers Associatio at today's session. Mrs. Everett Ackers, of Franklin County, was named corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. W. Franklin, of Fieldale; Mrs. E. G. Curring, of Meredithville; Mrs. Frank Jones, of Augusta County and Mrs. Malcolm Peck, of Fincastle, vice presidents.

Approval of motion picture censorship was voted, along with plans for the year's program, which includes work in citizenship, library advancement, health work with rural women and highway beautification.

The name of the association was change to the Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs.

Board Reelects Beck.

The agricultural conference board, representing agricultural associations and cooperatives in the State, reelected C. Nelson Beck, of Charlottesville, president; D. E. Shank, of Harrisonburg, vice president; W. L. Kirby, of Richmond, treasurer, and Dr. Gordon Ward, of V. P. T., secretary.

J. S. Agnew, chairman of the Virginia Milk Commission, Richmond, discussed the milk control law. Robin Hood, Washington, D. C., discussed cooperatives and the National council under the New Deal. W. S. Green, of Baltimore, spoke on the relations of the cooperatives to the production credit associations; Dr. F. B. Bomberger, of Baltimore, on Virginia cooperatives and the Baltimore bank or cooperatives, and Nelson Beck, of Charlottesville, on the farm debt situation in Virginia and the Frazier-Lemke law.

More than 800 registered for the institute.

Tuberculosis Hospital Urged For Colored

Ward at Gallinger Asked as Alternate of Separate Unit.

Development of a separate unit for the care of colored persons suffering from tuberculosis in the District was urged on the Commissioners yesterday by a committee representing the District Federation of Civic Associations.

The present children's tuberculosis sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md., should be developed as a separate unit for the care of colored sufferers from the disease if the District purchases another site for construction of a new sanatorium out of funds to be borrowed from the Public Works Administration, it was urged.

Establishment of a tuberculosis ward at Gallinger Hospital was suggested as an alternative if the Glenn Dale proposal was not acceptable.

More than 500 colored infants died in the District last year and the ratio of deaths from tuberculosis was six colored to one white sufferer, the Commissioners were told.

There should be set up eight well-baby stations for colored children and three of these should be equipped as clinics, the committee said. Complaint was made that the District Health Department was not meeting colored needs.

George W. Beasley, president of the federation, headed the committee, the other members of which were Dr. Ioni R. Whipper, William J. Thompkins, recorder of deeds; Solomon Lightfoot Michaud, Mrs. Alma J. Scott, who is in charge of the Southwest Community House; Mrs. Julia West Hamilton, president of the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A.; Dr. Charles W. Wade, Dr. F. O. Williston, Mrs. Aura W. Spidey and Woolsey W. Hall.

Inspection of proposed sites for the new PWA loan sanatorium was continued yesterday by the special District committee headed by Edward Dent, District surveyor. The committee is expected to submit a preferential list of six for inspection by the Commissioners.

N. & W. Carloadings 3,861 Under 1933

Roanoke, Va., July 31 (AP).—Freight carloadings handled by the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. last week totaled 20,880 cars, an increase of 68 cars over the previous week but a decrease of 3,681 compared with loadings in the corresponding week of 1933.

Cars received from connecting lines last week totaled 3,507 compared with 3,588 the previous week and 3,751 in the like week of last year.

Oklahoma Bond Vote Set.

Oklahoma City, July 31 (U.P.). The Oklahoma City council today voted to call an election October 2 on a bond issue to operate a municipal gas plant.

Mutual Banks Get Separate Guaranty

Crowley to Create New Insurance Fund.

Creation of a separate insurance fund for mutual savings banks was announced yesterday by Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The fund will protect 1,397,619 depositors in 68 mutual savings banks, involving a total deposit liability of $1,382,350,396.

Although the insurance for mutual savings banks will be operated apart from the existing fund for commercial banks, Crowley pointed out that the entire resources of the corporation will back both funds. Mutual savings banks have the choice of either $2,500 or $5,000 as the maximum individual protection.

The division of funds, provided in an amendment to the banking act of 1933, was prompted by fundamental differences in the organization and operation of mutual savings banks, Mr. Crowley said. The same officers will administer the new fund.

Air Express Rates Cut.

Reductions in air express rates effective August 15 were announced yesterday by the air express division of Railway Express Agency. Flat rates of 85 cents for ¾ of a pound or less, and $1 for 1-pound packages supersede the old schedule, which ranged from $1 to $1.80.

A Romance Of Washington

Carolyn Cox.

"POTOMAC PARK"

By Carolyn Cox

A Government worker herself, in the War Department, office of the Chief of Engineers, Carolyn Cox has chosen the Capital as the setting for her latest novel.

Wanda Mallory, the heroine, finds a job in a Government office when her purse is so slim that she dares not spend a dime on a sandwich, though she is faint with hunger. She meets romance in a chance encounter in Potomac Park with David Randall, also a Government employee.

The friends Wanda makes in the story are drawn from types of men and women in Federal employ. Their conversation is the chatter of Government offices. They struggle with the problem of living on $1,440 a year, "basic, subject to 15 per cent deduction under the Economy Act and 3 1-2 per cent for retirement deductions."

Every Washingtonian, in Government circles or not, will want to read this charming story of a plain girl who found romance. Fiction, but with a familiar background that gives it the ring of truth and makes it poignantly real and compelling.

Miss Cox's first novel, "Stand By," met with wide success. Her second has not yet been published in book form. It is offered in the growing list of first-run serials presented in this newspaper.

Marcum Gives Six Blows, A's Trimming Nats, 8-2; Cronin Is Injured

Coleman Hits Homer, Nets 3 Tallies

McColl, Crowder Yield Five Bingles and Four Markers Each.

By Lewis F. Atchison,
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—The Nats are still losing ball games, but they varied the act today by scoring a couple of runs and by losing to Philadelphia instead of Boston. Tabulation of all returns showed Mr. Mack's employes to have an 8-2 toehold after one hour and 54 minutes of work.

Washington not only lost the game but it came dangerously close to losing its manager, 'Frisco Cronin. 'Frisco intercepted a terrific drive off Higgins' bat in the seventh with his chin instead of his glove and went down for the count.

A cursory examination of the injury revealed nothing serious, however. The ball merely scraped a yard or so of stubble off the Irishman's ample chin and he is expected to be back in action tomorrow. Ossie Bluege replaced him at shortstop.

Coleman's Homer Scores Three.

Another terrific clout, powerful enough to clear the right field wall, gave Ed Coleman a free ride on the merry-go-round in the sixth. Two mates rode with him and the runs they scored were sufficient to stop the Nats though Philadelphia added in the seventh and another in the eighth just for the hell of it.

Another reason Washington lost is Johnny Marcum, of Old Kaintucky, suh, one of the few Kentuckians who is not a colonel. But young Johnny is a pitcher in every sense of the word and he pitched the Nats into their second straight defeat, allowing them only six hits.

Meanwhile, the Macks were wrecking ancient Alec McColl's frame with a continual and at times prolonged din of base hits that added up to seven before Al Crowder lumbered into the box in the seventh and finished the game.

For exactly five innings the Nats were sitting pretty with a 2-to-1 lead and fair prospects of holding it. But beauty is only skin deep up against a squad of robust axswingers like the Mackmen.

Washington scored in the second inning on Schulte's double to left and Kress' single, but the Athletics evened things with a mild batting rally of two walks, an infield out and a wild heave by Buddy Myer.

McColl passed Foxx and Coleman, with Higgins' pop to Cronin separating the two. McNair tapped a double play ball at Travis, who whipped it to Myer at second. But Buddy was out of line and Sewell almost threw an arm out of joint reaching for the latter's peg, while Foxx rounded third and slid over the rubber for the tying run.

But the Nats forged ahead again in the third and assumed a 2-to-1 lead on Myer's pass, with two out, and Cronin's double. Frisco's smash was a well-timed, well-delivered blow that caught Coleman and Cramer flat-footed on the extreme edges of the right center sector.

McColl Falters in Sixth.

McColl was doing very well for himself and Washington until the sixth, and even then it was not entirely his fault. Johnson had been retired when Foxx drew his second pass. Then Higgins drilled a sharp ground ball past Cronin for a double. That set the stage for Coleman's home run and he delivered it, a long, high fly over the wall.

Cronin's injury in the seventh was directly responsible for two of the Philadelphia runs in the seventh. Cramer, Warstler and Johnson were on base when Higgins fired his cannon ball at the Nat pilot and Cronin was in position for a play at the plate.

The sphere suddenly zoomed upward and landed dully on the southeast corner of Cronin's chin, then ricocheted into left field as Cramer and Warstler scored and Johnson went to third. Joe was assisted from the field and after a brief delay the game was resumed.

Legion Bouts Off; Arena Suspends

Tonight's Sarron - Diaz Fight Canceled; Recent Shows Failed.

THE American Legion Arena yesterday became the first local fight club to take the count from public indifference to mediocre bouts when its sponsors notified the Boxing Commission that their card featuring Pete Sarron and Angelo Diaz, scheduled for tonight, would not be presented. It is understood that the sponsors of the shows being held at the recently constructed plant at Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast were unable to obtain the financial backing necessary since their last two cards proved financial failures.

It was learned by The Post that bidding to take over control of the punch plant was waxing exceedingly brisk, with many qualified and embryonic promoters seeking to assume control of the arena because of its small overhead. The arena is located on Government property for which only $5 a month rental is paid and other incidental expenses—rental of stands, lights, personnel, &c.—runs not more than $150 for each program.

Ryan Seeks Stadium.

Charles (Buzzer) Ryan, local sportsman, is understood to have offered to take over the punch bowl, but it is reported that he had not been able to come to terms with the legion in time to run tonight. Ryan, who was for a time financial backer for Portner's Arena in Alexandria, is reported to have offered to assume complete control of the project and turn over 10 per cent of the gross to the legion officials, who are considering the offer.

Three shows have been operated by the legion, none of them proving overwhelming successes. The opening show, featuring Joe Knight and Henry Firpo, drew only about $1,000 through the gate, although estimates as to the attendance ranged from 2,000 to 3,500 people. The second show at the legion arena was not only a financial failure but an artistic one as well.

Ruth's 17th in Second; Is Margin of Victory; Murphy Weakens.

NEW YORK, July 31 (AP).—The combination of fine pitching and timely hitting swept the New York Yankees back into first place in the American League today as they defeated the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 2 and 2 to 1, in the first games of their current home stand.

With Lou Gehrig hitting his thirty-first and thirty-second home runs of the season, the Yankees jumped on the offerings of Henry Johnson and Rube Walberg for eight runs in the first inning of the opening game and then breezed to victory behind the three-hit pitching of Lefty Gomez.

In turning in his seventeenth triumph of the season, Gomez pitched perfect ball for six innings, not a rival batsman getting to first. Bill Cissell connected with the first hit, a single, but was forced by Bill Werber. Roy Johnson then came through with a home run to account for both of the Sox's runs.

Saltzgaver Hits One.

Gehrig hit his first circuit drive in the big first inning and connected with his second in the eighth. Jack Saltzgaver also hit his homer in the first and drove out a single the second time at bat in the frame to send four of the eight runs across the plate.

The second game saw Johnny Murphy pitch shut-out ball for seven innings and then weaken to allow the Sox to score a run. With two men on base, Jimmy Deshong was called to the rescue, and he hurled fine relief ball. The margin of victory was furnished by Babe Ruth, who connected with his seventeenth homer in the seventh inning.

Cubs Humble Reds, 7 to 2, Cut Lead

Complete Protested Game to Win, 7-1; Warneke Effective in Both.

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP).—Lon Warneke, ace Cub right-hander, today hurled a double victory over St. Louis, pitching two scoreless innings in the playoff of the Cardinals' protest of the Cubs' July 2 victory to retain that win by an amended score of 7 to 1, and then continuing on to defeat the Redbirds, 7 to 2, in the scheduled game.

A crowd of 25,000 fans was attracted by the novel "game and a half."

Although the protest playoff did not affect the league standings, inasmuch as the Chicagoans' original victory never had been removed from the records, the Cubs' victory in the regulation game enabled them to take advantage of the Giants' defeat to cut the league-leaders' margin to 2½ games.

Six Hits in Final.

Warneke, who was touched for three unearned runs in the eighth inning July 2 when the Cubs won, 7 to 4, allowed only one hit in the playoff. His mates picked up two runs at Jim Mooney's expense in the eighth. Lon then went through the regular game on a six-hit allowance.

Manager Charlie Grimm hit a home run with one on off Bill Walker in the eighth inning of the full game to drive the southpaw off the mound after he had allowed 12 hits.

Finishing Fast, Open Range Triumphs

SARATOGA RACE TRACK, July 31 (AP).—Open Range, the little 3-year-old gelding in the silks of W. Graham, regained his winning form in the 6 furlongs of the historic Seneca, a claiming stakes, which headed the sports here this afternoon. Coming from just behind the pace in the stretch, the son of Phalaros—Mazetta swept away from the field to register easily by three lengths. William Woodward's Vicar Nose nosed out Mr. Nightingale's Maine Chance for the place, although many onlookers believed the latter had earned the runner-up position.

Captain Argo, the 6-to-5 choice in the field of six 3-year-olds, appeared sore going to the post. He tired after showing a lot of speed and finished fourth. Open Range receded to 7 to 2 in the betting. He covered the distance in 1:12 1-5 and enriched his owner $1,845 by his victory.

Weather Is Ideal.

Ideal weather prevailed and a fair-sized crowd viewed the sport.

Eddie Litzenberger had the leg up on Open Range, which was starting in a claiming event for the first time this season. The diminutive Canadian pilot made no mistakes.

First Baseman Signed by Nats

PETE SUSKO, veteran minor league first-sacker, who has been hitting the cover off the ball this season while with Albany, of the International League, and Knoxville, of the Southern, yesterday was purchased by the Nats. He reported to Manager Joe Cronin at Philadelphia last night and probably will start against the Athletics in today's game.

Susko comes to the Nats from Albany via Knoxville. His batting record of .360 in the Southern and of .334 in the International made him look like an excellent stopgap at first for the Nats while Joe Kuhel's broken ankle is healing. Should he continue his hitting with the Nats, Manager Cronin may keep Susko permanently. He is 28 years old.

The addition of Susko means that another Nat must be dropped from the payroll and Cronin stated last night over long-distance telephone that he had not decided what player he would cut loose and would not do so until today.

Tribe, Tigers Divide Bill; Myatt Out

Indians Win First, 9-7, Lose Second, 4-2, as Detroit Rallies.

Catcher's Ankle Broken; Is Lost for Season; 25,000 Look On.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 31 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians lost the services of their first-string catcher, Glenn Myatt, today as they knocked the Detroit Tigers out of first place in the American League race by splitting a double-header. They won the first, 9-7, and lost the second, 4-2.

Myatt received a broken right ankle when his spikes caught as he slid into home plate in the third inning of the second bame. He will be unable to play again this season, and his injury leaves the Indians with but one catcher, Frankie Pytlak. Manager Walter Johnson tonight was seeking a minor leaguer to fill Myatt's place.

A record week-day crowd of 25,000 cheering fans saw the Tribe pound three Tiger pitchers for 15 hits to win a see-saw first game. Vosmik hit a home run in the fifth. The Indians also used three pitchers.

Tigers' Rally Wins.

The Indians had an early lead in the second game when Myatt's double scored Knickerbocker and Averill's single brought in Myatt in the third inning, but the Tigers came back to score three runs in the fourth on doubles by Fox and Doljack, singles by Rogell and Goslin, a sacrifice and an Indian error. They added another in the fifth when Owen doubled and then was hit by Trosky's throw to third after Burnett threw out Heyworth. Owen was allowed to score on the error, although he was knocked out for a moment. Bridges held the Indians scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Public Links Team of D. C. Is Routed

None of Five Qualifies; National Field Led by Campbell's 144.

SOUTH PARK GOLF COURSE, Pittsburgh, Pa., July 31 (AP).—The wind, the greens, the hills and a bit of bad luck kept any of Washington's five golfers from qualifying for match play today in the National public links championship which witnessed the 36-hole medal triumph of Albert (Scotty) Campbell, Seattle department store clerk.

While Campbell added a 73 to his 71 of the first day to win the medal by a four-stroke margin, the District's hopefuls failed to show any appreciable improvement in their scoring. John Baer, jr., whose 77 yesterday put him in a good position to land one of the 64 qualifying berths, blew up like a load of T. N. T., scoring an 88 for a 165 total. Harlan Will scored an 82 and wound up with 165. Claude Rippy shot an 82 for a 166 total, and Harry Saunders finished with 84—84—168.

Connelly Withdraws.

John Connelly, captain of the District Harding Cup team, who shot an 83 yesterday, encountered difficulties and withdrew today. Saunders scored a commendable 38 on the back nine after going out in 46, and Rippy staged a spirited but futile rally on the homeward journey for a 39 after his first nine 43.

The medalist, Campbell, holder of the Canadian Amateur championship, refused to crack after pacing the field the first day, and his 144 match par for the 36 holes. Four strokes back of Campbell was John M. Ross, of Los Angeles, and one shot back of him came Don Erickson, of the circulation department of a Los Angeles newspaper.

Defending Champ Qualifies.

Defending Champion Charlie Ferrera, of San Francisco, barely qualified with his 77-82—159. Carl Kauffman, of Pittsburgh, three time winner, also made the grade with his 156.

The day was a complete rout for entrants from the South, only one of whom, Gordon Denny, of Louisville, qualified for match play with his 150.

Hirsch Horse Victorious By Length

Spanish Babe, Favorite, Disappoints Backers, Finishnig Third.

CHICAGO, July 31 (AP).—The colors of Max Hirsch, of New York, were carried to victory in the top race at Hawthorne this afternoon, when Roman Soldier, in a thrilling stretch drive, conquered the Audley Farm's Marcella Miss by a length. Spanish Babe was third.

Jockey A. Richard was in the saddle on the winner. There was a plunge on Spanish Babe which went to the post odds on, while Roman Soldier's price soared to 5 to 1.

Roman Soldier returned $11.44 in the $2 straight mutuels, and ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:05 3-5.

Detroit, July 31 (AP).—Safe and Sound, an outsider carrying the colors of H. W. and W. J. Young, came from behind to outgame No Doubt in the stretch today and win the featured fifth race at the Detroit Fair Grounds track by three-quarters of a length.

No Doubt led most of the way, while Safe and Sound moved up gradually, closing with a driving and irresistible finish. Would Dare, another outsider in the betting, finished third, while Terrain, the favorite, was out of the money. Win tickets on Safe and Sound were worth $13.40.

Kearneysville Victor.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The Middleway ball club proved no match for the Kearneysville Juniors on the Leetown diamond, and the former club was swamped by an 18-to-0 score. J. Miller held the losers to three hits, while his teammates collected a total of 20 hits. Score by innings:

Damascus, Md., July 31 (Spl.). Damascus easily defeated Frederick in the Tricounty league 11 to 3. The home team took the lead in the first inning when three runs were put across and clinched the fray on a batting rally in the fourth frame. Frederick used three pitchers. Poole held Frederick to nine scattered hits and struck out 12.

Marines Lose Finale To Baltimore Nine

Quantico, July 31 (Spl.).—Ringing down the curtain on a spotty campaign, the Quantico Marines lost their final game of the season here this afternoon, 7 to 3, to the fast McCormick Athletic Club of Baltimore.

Tommy Taylor, visiting mound artist, showed the Marines a string of goose eggs that extended up to the eighth inning, when hits by Barnette Rippy and Albis collaborated to give the Leathernecks their trio of tallies.

Horses Imported For Whitney Farm

4 Percheron Mares From France Arrive Today.

Norfolk, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Ten percheron mares and a colt will arrive here tomorrow from France on the City of Newport News. They are the property of Mrs. John Hay Whitney. Four of the horses will go to Mrs. Whitney's Virginia stock farm, near Middleburg, in Loudoun County.

The others of this stock go to an apple grower in Waynesboro, Pa., according to P. E. McIntyre, general freight agent of the Baltimore Mail Line, who was in this city today. The percherons are famous farm horses, Mr. McIntyre said, strong sturdy animals, with broad backs and heavy quarters, their legs seemingly short because of the massiveness of the animals. They have thick manes and tails. The horses will not be taken off the ship here, but will be carried to Baltimore, unless a change is made in the arrangements.

Midland Nine Wins, 1-0, In League's Play-Off

Cumberland, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Pat Corrigan's airtight pitching with runners on bases, coupled with a timely single by Olin McCutcheon, which sent "Rough" Yates across the plate in the fifth inning with the only run of the game, gave Midland's Indians a 1-to-0 triumph over the Eckhart A. A. at Community Park, Frostburg, and also the championship of the first half race of the Cumberland and Georges Creek League.

A crowd of approximately 5,000 persons was on hand to see the teams that tied for first place at the close of the first half campaign battle it out in the play-off contest. William "Boots" Miller, southpaw ace of the A's, let the Indians down with four hits and fanned seven.

Woodstock Clashes With Harrisonburg

Woodstock, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Woodstock will face the Harrisonburg nine in its next Valley League game, meeting the champions at the local park Thursday.

"Lefty Childes" Bradley has returned to the local line-up and will get the mound. He will oppose Lefty Keister.

Alexandria, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Alexandria Police remained in the running for second half honors in the Commercial Loop by taking the Gazette All Stars in tow, 12 to 2. Shout Taylor, stingy as usual with base hits, allowed the All Stars three blows, all in the sixth, when the losers scored their two runs.

Jack Tulloch, the Gazette's starting hurler, gave up the mound duties in the fourth after the Coppers socked his shoots for all of their 12 runs and the same number of runs. Lee Fones relieved Tulloch and kept the winners out of the hit-and-run column for teh balance of the route.

Kid Chocolate Is Signed for Bout Here

August 14 Date Is Asked; Griffith, Turner Deny Park Available.

THE Lincoln Athletic Club announced last night taat Kid Chocolate, former featherweight champion, had been signed for a ten-round bout with Andy Sarilla, of Cuba, for August 14. The bout was announced for Griffith Stadium, but both President Clark Griffith, who controls the stadium, and Promoter Joe Turner, who controls boxing and wrestling there, denied permission had been granted to stage the show in the ball park on that date.

From the Boxing Commission it was learned that the Lincoln Club had applied for the August 14 date, but that final sanction was being withheld pending naming of participants in the main bout, as required by the commission's rules and regulatoins. Pete Sarron and Benny Bass, featherweights, are scheduled to perform for Turner on August 14 in the stadium and Turner also has a wrestling show scheduled for the 16th. Should the American Legion resume operatoin, it will operate on Wednesday, August 15.

Miles River Regatta Scheduled This Week

Easton, Md., July 31 (Spl.).—Yachts from a half-dozen States are converging on the Miles River today, in preparation for the start of the annual Miles River Yacht Club regatta tomorrow. The most elaborate program of racing events ever scheduled by the club will be staged.

Starting with a dance and reception tomorrow night at the club's headquarters at St. Michaels, the racing events will begin Friday, with contests for sailing boats, work boats, power boats, canoes, and all manner of craft. The races will continue Saturday, ending with a dance that night.

On Sunday, however, an auxiliary regatta is to be held by the Chesapeake Bay Log Canoe Association, which was established only last year, with William H. Green, of St. Michaels as president.

Thirty-two events are on the program of the Miles River Yacht Club, and a half-dozen will be run on Sunday by the Log Canoe group.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Hawthorne Race Track, July 31.

I hope that you did not weaken today. My first three choices ran second, but Roman Soldier was there with his salute as predicted, a nice price, too. Legal Gamble, my best bet, won, and Kuevera sent all home happy by winning the last race.

I still contend that it is a tough game here, so many mediocre boys riding, and it is impossible to get the jocks the night before.

I am hoping that the boss will have a change of heart and send me over to Narragansett to hob nob with the "400." A 30-day meeting opens there tomorrow, with all the old Rockingham favorites in action. I hear that the Whitney entry is all primed for the $5,000 stake event which is to be run as the sixth race.

Clocker Mike showed up today with some yarn about having been kidnaped while taking in the World's Fair. I suppose they had him in the "Believe It Or Not" zoo as the guy that had never in his life done anything right. If it were not for Bill's fondness for the little shrimp I would throw him in the lake. He is sporting an owners' badge, issued for Arlington, but seems to be getting by. However, it is only a question of time. Yours, JOE.

First race—The opener has 18 maiden 2-year-old fillies carded. It is an even bet half of them will die maidens. Miss Quick has worked as fast as any. Sun Chance and Tahira may get a part of the money.

Second race—Miss Flip prefers 6 furlongs, but may last the distance. I like Claido and Pantaloons for place and show.

Third race—Old Infinity was closing like a house afire in his last outing. I understand Keester will ride tomorrow. If so, should win. Gunfire and Monk's Bela have outside chances.

Fourth race—No Saint is fainthearted. Will open up a long lead and may last. Wise Player and Love Sick are the contenders.

Fifth race—Hoops, Gilbert Elston and Charleigh all figure close together. I like them in the order named, especially as I understand Charley Landoldt will be in the pilot house for Hoops.

Sixth race—Going to the Corsicana Stable entry in spite of the weight on Bien Fait. New Deal is the one to beat with Ding Bin for show.

Seventh race—Here's one for the book. Just a toss-up. Your guess is as good as mine. Probably better. You will know the jocks before wagering. Jay Vee may defeat Will Reigh and it would not surprise me to see Trahison, a sprinter, go to the front and stay there.

Eighth race—Uncommon Gold ran such a nice race his last that I am picking him to repeat. Habernero is the one to beat, while the consistent Miss Corinne may show.

Khan's Horse Victor.

Goodwood, England, July 31 (AP).—Aga Khan's Umidwar, betting favorite at odds of 3 to 10, today defeated J. A. Dewar's Lo Zingaroby four lengths in the Gratwicke Stakes for £300 with extras. They were the only starters in the 1½-mile race.

Expert Villains On Mat Card Tomorrow

Marshall and Blackstock to Appear Again for More Boos.

THERE is no question but that the featured Ed (Don) George-Sandor Szabo rassle bout will be the magnet to attract the cash customers at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night, but there are two other fracases listed on the card which are bound to add to the pleasure and enjoyment of the evening for those who pay.

The brawls referred to will be those which call into action two scions of the house of Marshall—Floyd Marshall, who takes on Gino Garibaldi in the semifinal, and Marshall Blackstock, who in some unexplained manner got the "Marshall" on the wrong end of his name. The latter mingles with Charles (Pretty Boy) Allen, a newcomer here.

Top-Notch Villains.

Both of these Marshalls are among the top-notch villains of the game. They rarely ever win, practice every "don't" in the rassle book, and yet have a following. And that there are many who enjoy seeing them do their mat tricks just goes to show one peculiar angle of the many which promoters have recognized and cater to.

Primarily, followers of these Marshalls apparently despise them and their tactics so greatly that they do not want to miss seeing them mauled and mistreated by their foes. It is the old melodrama replayed on the rassle mat, with the villain getting his just deserts and the hero winning out in the end.

But there is still another entertainment angle to Marshall Blackstock's work. It is his ability to make better facial expressions than Clark Gable ever dreamed of. His assumption of injured innocence after he has kneed a fellow in the stomach and been called down for it by the referee is so real that women and children faint and strong men weep—in derision. His helpless appeals to the gallery bring out more raspberries than Florida produces in ten years.

Gets What's Coming.

And when it is all over and Blackstock has been given what is coming to him and has been hooted out of the ring, the fans, who have suffered and agonized with the hero, begin asking each other when Blackstock will be brought back for another local beating.

Culpeper Wins, 3 to 1, To Add to Valley Lead

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31 (Spl.). Walter Beall held Harrisonburg to three hits today as Culpeper took a 3-to-1 decision over the home club in a fast Valley League contest. The victory gives the league-leading Culpeper Club a 2½ game lead over Harrisonburg and virtually makes the across-the-mountain club a sure shot for the pennant.

Johnny Keister, Harrisonburg's undefeated southpaw, dropped his first game in nine starts. He was touched for eights hits, but was invincible in the pinches, 11 Culpeper runners being left stranded. Errors accounted for two of the runs. Goldie Lowery was the big gun in the Culpeper attack.

Wes Ferrell Lauds Red Sox's Handling of Pitchers; Asserts He'll Win 15 Games

Hurler Happy In Revived Star Role

Officials Make You Want to Take Every Game, He Declares.

Tom Yawkey Satisfied Former Tribe Pitcher Is Still Great.

By Jack Cuddy.

NEW YORK, July 31 (U.P.).—"You may attribute my success to Boston beans," said Wes Ferrell, the big blond right-hander who is staging a brilliant pitching comeback this season with the Red Sox.

"Boston beans?" we inquired, considerably puzzled.

"That's right," replied the former stormy petrel of the Cleveland Indians, grinning broadly. "I don't mean the kind you eat, I mean the kind people wear hats on. In other words, the chaps who run the Boston Club use their beans. They know how to handle players."

Mr. Ferrell exploded his theory at Yankee Stadium in the Sox dressing room where the spirit of horse play prevailed despite the fact that the Yanks had just clipped them, 11 to 2, in the opener of their double-header.

All in Good Humor.

Everyone was in excellent humor and loaded with wise cracks, particularly Mr. Ferrell, who was a changed man indeed from the doleful fellow who used to sit in the Indians' dugout last season bemoaning his lame shoulder and the lack of understanding among Cleveland officials.

"This is one happy family," explained Wesley. "If a fellow can't pitch or play ball with this outfit, he can't do it anywhere. Tom Yawkey, Eddie Collins and Bucky Harris certainly know how to run a club. And, believe me, they know how to handle pitchers. They make you feel like going out there and winning every game. That's why I've wone nine and lost only one since I came to the club in May. I figure to win at least 15 before the season ends."

Believes in Psychology.

Wes is a firm believer in psychology. He insists that the proper mental condition is almost as important as physical conditoin in pitching. He believes that continued aggravation wit hthe Indians caused arthritis to settle in his throwing shoulder last season.

This arthritis and his dissatisfaction in his fifth season with the Indians resulted in a slump that pared his string of victories in 1933 to only 11. He had wone at least 20 each of the four previous seasons at Cleveland. Last winter treatments cured arthritis.

When offered a sizeable salary slice this spring, Ferrell proclaimed he would quit baseball before accepting. His hold-out campaign continued until he was suspended. n May 25 he was reinstated and traded to the Red Sox.

"Another factor that's helping me this season," Wesley continued, "is the fact that my brother, Rick, is catching for this club. He is a wonderful receiver and inspires a lot of confidence in a pitcher."

Yawkey Satisfied.

Tow Yawkey, young millionaire owner of the club, was over in a corner of the room cheering a wrestling match between elongated Lefty Grove and a chap in white linen civies, named Phil. We weaned Yawkey away from the grappling and asked him about Ferrell.

"ne of the best baseball deals we've made yet," said Yawkey. "We took a gamble on Wes and we seem to have won out in a big way. He's a fine pitcher. The way Collins and I figured on Ferrell was this: If he could win 11 games last season with a lame shoulder and under other unfavorable conditions, he certainly should do well withour club if his shoulder limbered up and if we could get along with him. Well, his shoulder is in good shape and Wes seems to like up fine."

Aided by Miscues, Braves Top Giants

Betts Wins Third Victory Over Champions, 4-1.

Boston, July 31 (AP).—With Pinkey Whitney hitting a home run and the New York Giants making a trio of inopportune errors, the Boston Braves today defeated the world champions, 4 to 1.

All of the Giants' mistakes figured in the Boston scoring. Whitney cracked out his home run with the bases empty in the fourth. Phil Weintraub, recalled from Nashville, made the first error, letting Les Mallon score from second.

Huck Betts was touched for ten hits, but kept them well scattered to register his third victory of the season over the Giants.

Al Houghton Off For Canada Open

Will Be Lone D. C. Entry; to Also Play in Hagen Event.

With high hopes, Al Houghton, Kenwood's sharpshooting professional, left last night by train for Toronto to compete in the historic Canadian Open, a 72-hole medal championship starting tomorrow.

Houghton will be Washington's lone entry, since Walter Cunningham, stocky Burning Tree pro, who was to have accompanied Houghton by auto; Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, and Leo Walper, driving range instructor, decided not to make the trip.

Houghton captured fifth prize money in the 1933 Canadian won by Joe Kirkwood. He definitely has canceled plans to defend his title in the 36-hole open event at Bedford Springs next Sunday and Monday. Instead, he said he would journey from Toronto to Rochester to play in the "Walter Hagen Open" scheduled for Tuesday.

Gallagher Busy In Mountains For Galento

Drills for Labor Day Bout; Burns to Face Heintz in Eight-Rounder.

MARTY GALLAGHER, Washington's somewhat dilapidated heavyweight hope, already is undergoing a strenuous conditioning campaign at Saranac Lake, N. Y., for his return 15-round bout at Griffith Stadium Labor Day against Tony Galento, who contributed materially to his dilapidation in a previous engagement. Gallagher has been training at the famed New York mountain resort for the last two weeks in preparation for the contest with the murderous punching New Jersey heavyweight that either will project him back into the local top-spot picture or prove his Swan song.

The committee in charge of arranging the Labor Day card, which will be held to raise funds for the Annual Convention of Police Chiefs here late in September, attempted yesterday to sign Bob Tow, recent conqueror of Galento, and Natie Brown, District heavyweight champion, for a 10-round semifinal.

Burns, Heintz Signed.

Tow, who was decisioned by Brown in a bout at Portner's last winter, agreed to meet Brown, but the local lad who is expected to play an important part in the forthcoming heavyweight elimination tournament in New York, demurred at playing second fiddle to two fighters over whom he holds decisions. An eight-rounder between Clarence (K. O.) Burns, Baltimore and Freddy Heintz, Saginaw, Mich., was arranged in its stead.

Otto Kushmer will meet Henry Irving, and Pete Bevans is scheduled to do battle with Al Parks in a duo of sixes. Three four rounders, one featuring colored fighters and in one of which Joe Green will participate, will wind up the regular boxing card. A battle royal, comedy bouts and other features to be announced later will bolster the program.

Pirates Win Finale, 7-5, To Gain Split With Reds

Cincinnati, July 31 (AP).—Though Lombardi clouted a home run with the bases loaded in the sixth, the Cincinnati Reds dropped an 11-inning contest, 7 to 5, to Pittsburgh in the second game of a double-header today after winning the first game, 6 to 4.

Dettweiler's 73 Sets Pace in Field Day

BILLY DETTWEIER, 16-year-old Congressional golfer, reeled off a 73, one above par, yesterday over his home course, to set the pace for a field of 20 youngsters from ten golf clubs in the first of a series of weekly "field days" for junior players of the District.

Scoring 15 pars and 2 birdies, Dettweiler negotiated the outgoing 9 in 38, and matched par for the incoming side with a 35, after finishing with a brilliant 3 on the home hole.

Shea Cards 41-34.

It remained for 16-year-old Billy Shea, of the host club, to score one of the finest competitive nine-hole rounds of the season at Congressional. After soaring to a 41 on the first nine, the curly-haired kid broke out with a rash of sub-par golf to traverse the incoming side in 34, one below par. Shea's 75 tied him for second medal honors with Maury Nee, of Columbia, who had 40-35—75.

Only three cracked 80.

In addition to the 18-hole tournament, Professional Roland Mackenzie, who conducted the "field day" and awarded 11 prizes, staged a team match, pitting nine golfers captained by Dettweiler against nine led by Nee. Dettweiler's team triumphed, 5½ to 3½, and all members of the winning team were awarded prizes.

Another field day will be held next Tuesday, possibly at Columbia.

Browns Bow to Jones As Chisox Even Series

St. Louis, July 31 (AP).—Sam Jones limited the Browns to eight well-scattered hits here today, and the White Sox won, 5 to 2, to even the series.

Chicago was held scoreless by Blaeholder, seeking his eleventh victory of the season, until the seventh, when the Sox, led by Jimmy Dykes, who collected his third hit of the game, counted three times. The visitors added another score in each of the last two innings.

Montgomery Loop Bat Lead to Lynch

Douglass Lynch, one of the chief reasons for Cabin John's first-place position in the Montgomery County league, is showing the way to the hitters with an average of .610, representing 11 hits in 18 times at bat. Harry Best, Bethesda's star swatsman, and Daniels, North Washington's hard-hitting catcher, are also in the thick of the race for batting laurels. Cranston Howard, Cabin John's ace, is the leading pitcher.

Two Birdies on One Hole.

Denver (AP).—Dr. A. C. Kline, Denver dentist, bagged two birdies on the par 5 fifth hole at the Wellshire Club. His second shot, a brassie, nailed a meadowlark on the fly. Playing the ball from where it lay, Kline dropped it onto the green and ran down his first putt.

Flanagan, U. S. Olympic Hero, To Swim Here Against Ruddy

Miami Flash, 16, to Enter 3-Mile Swim Aug. 22 on Potomac.

THE most attractive swimming race in Washington's history loomed yesterday when it was made known that Ralph Flanagan, Miami, Fla., sensation, was almost certain to contest for the President's Cup and the National title in the 3-mile swim on the Potomac August 22.

Flanagan rocketed into swimming fame in 1932 and 19333 with triumphs in virtually every important distance race and his match in the President's Cup race here against Ray Ruddy, youthful New Yorker, who has won the event annually for the past six years, is eagerly anticipated by the Washington Canoe Club which sponsors the race.

Flannagan was in Washington over the past week-end, training at the Maryland Club Gardens pool after competing in the Meadowbrook Club's meet, at Baltimore, Saturday, where he broke the Maryland 440-yard record by a wide margin.

On '32 Olympic Team.

Flanagan, though only 16, has an international reputation in the swimming world. In 1932 he was the mainstay of the American Olympic team and until this summer when Jack Medica, the Seattle wonder, splashed sensational swimming history into the books in the National championships, Flanagan held every American record from the 880-yard event up through the mile, including the 1,500-meter swim and the three-quarter mile test.

But for a case of water on the knee, the Florida star's performance in the nationals last month would perhaps have equalled Medica's. As it was, Ralph finished second to the University of Washington lad in every race, pressing Medica to new records in some instances.

Flanagan still hodls the American individual 150-yard medley championship and his extreme youth makes him the greatest possibility of America's regaining and holding its Olympic swimming championship which the Japanese carried off last year.

Other Stars to Compete.

While the Flanagan- Ruddy duel would make this year's race the best in the history of the event, the presence of a number of the country's other distance stars must be considered, including that of Eddie Lee, national 10-mile champion, of the N. Y. A. C. The team championship struggle for the honors, won last year by the N. Y. A. C., aso affords another inviting angle to the race.

If We Could Do It Over

By Paul Gallico.

WRIGLEY FIELD, Chicago, July 31 (Special).—If you had a certain hour of your life to live over again, would you be able to profit by your mistakes of the time before? But no one ever lives his life over, that is, no one, except on rare occasions, the ball players. And so at 2 o'clock here this afternoon, I looked down upon the amazing sight of eighteen men turning back the written pages of time elapsed out of their lives and replaying a part of a ball game that had been passed into baseball limbo. It was the famous game between the Cubs and Cardinals played hre last July 2, when Umpire Bill Klem made the only error of his life. At least, the only error in which he was caught. In this case, the league president ruled for the protesting player, Frank Frisch, manager of the Cards, and against the umpire.

Game Ordered Replayed.

You will remember that on that day Klem failed to call an infield fly with two on base, the Cards protested, and the game which the Cubs won, 7 to 4, was ordered replayed from the point just before the error occurred.

And so at 2 p. m. this afternoon, the two teams took the field exactly as they had on that afternoon of July 2. English was on second base, Bill Herman was on third, Babe Herman was at bat and Paul Dean was pitching for St. Louis. I wonder whether Dean felt the import of the situation? Or whether Frisch did? Because never was fate and the sequence of things so deliberately thwarted as this afternoon. Because in the original game Babe Herman smashed a single, scoring Billy and Woody. This afternoon, Dean, lazily and with complete deliberation, threw four wide, high balls and Babe Herman trotted to first base with a walk instead of a hit. The Cardinals took no chances that Herman would repeat his single. The Babe couldn't have reached the ball with a broom.

I liked that. I thought it was a thrilling moment in sport. Here were the Cards with a chance to do something over again that they wished they hadn't done. They tok no chances. They might be making a new mistake by passing Herman, but the point was that they weren't making the same mistake over again.

Now in the original game, after Herman singled, Mooney replaced Paul Dean on the mound and Durocher went to second base for St. Louis. Cuyler was purposely passed filling the bases, Hartnett flied to Rothrock and so did Hurst.

In the replay, the setup was different only to the point that two were out instead of one. With the bases full, Dean pitched to Cuyler and got him on an easy grounder and three were out with the score still 5 to 1 instead of 7 to 1 as it had been in the original game when the Cubs scored four runs in the disputed inning.

That much, at least, the little maggots who crawl the face of this globe were permitted to tamper with the cosmic design. It struck me as a great concession and momentous event.

How About Tunney Replay?

What wouldn't you give to have a boxing commission rule that he must place himself against the ropes hands down and let Dempsey hit him eight punches, lefts and rights to the chin and have the count begun immediately his pants hit the deck?

Both sides thereafter played fate for even money. It is the sheerest bumptiousness to imagine that the director of the scheme of things was sufficiently interested in maintaining at least a part of the original score of that game. But the final score of the replayed game DID end up at 7 to 1.

Chance at Furr Fight Stake Monday

ABOUT with Phil Furr, Washington's first officially crowned champion, yesterday was dangled before Bob Wilson and Cary Wright as a reward for winning their eight-round welterweight match at the Riding and Hunt Club Monday.

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn, of the Hunt Club did the dangling, announcing that the winner of this co-feature would be given a chance to push Furr from under his recently acquired welterweight crown, but closer investigation developed that the dangling could be effective only if Wilson were the winner.

Wright fights for Harry Groves, as does Furr, and it is doubtful if the Boxing Commission would sanction a match between two stablemates. Even should the Commission permit Ahearn to match the two boys who fight for the same boss, their manager, Harry Groves stated yesterday that he would not consider such a thing.

"It looks like Goldie expects Wilson to win," Harry grinned. "I wouldn't let Wright and Furr fight, and I think Wright's gonna win, so I guess Goldie'll have to look around for another match for Furr."

The Wright-Wilson bout is one of three eight-rounders that will head the Hunt Club's boxing card. In the others, Carl Guggenia will make passes at Al Rigonne and Joey Zoda tangles with Roddy Davis. Jack Dempsey, erstwhile heavyweight champion of the world, will referee the Guggenia-Rigonne match.

Wheat Slumps Again Under Profit-Taking

Speculative Buying Light as All Grains Drop to Lower Levels.

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—Unable to absorb extensive profit-taking sales wheat and corn today imitated Jack and Jill.

Wheat fell nearly 2 cents and corn came following after almost 1½ cents. A conspicuous reason was notable shrinkage in the volume of speculative trade, and this in turn was more or less associated with uncertainty as to the market effects of August unofficial crop estimates due tomorrow from most Chicago statisticians.

These estimates had been preceded by a single radically bullish report which was put out yesterday in advance of others.

Wheat Closes Shakily.

Wheat closed shaky at the day's bottom level, 1⅛ to 1⅞ under yesterday5's finish; corn, ¼ to ¾ down; oats ⅛ to 1⅛ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

For at least the time being a pronounced falling-off in speculative buying power was apparent in all the grain pits. Exhaustion of new speculative demand, together with a general disposition to realize profits on holdings, was largely ascribed to the fact that yesterday's advances had hoisted corn to fresh high price records for the season.

Besides, moderate temperatures in the corn belt today, as well as predictions of showers, served to restrain fears of further immediate damage to the corn crop.

Canada Rain Prospects.

Likelihood of moisture relief for wheat crops in Canada did much to push wheat values downhill, and so likewise did unexpectedness of the Liverpool market, a circumstance attributed to heavy liquidation abroad.

Another unsettling factor was liberal arrivals of wheat in Chicago, 643,000 bushels today, although this was partly offset by curtailment of receipts Southwest and West. Winnipeg reports said a period of heavy rainfall in Canada would be of the utmost importance at this time to wheat crops of the prairie provinces.

Corn and oats showed better rallying power than was the case in wheat. The difference was a good deal due to late announcement that vessel room to the east had been chartered for the shipment of 1,200,000 bushels of corn.

Wheat Slumps Again Under Profit-Taking

Speculative Buying Light as All Grains Drop to Lower Levels.

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—Unable to absorb extensive profit-taking sales wheat and corn today imitated Jack and Jill.

Wheat fell nearly 2 cents and corn came following after almost 1½ cents. A conspicuous reason was notable shrinkage in the volume of speculative trade, and this in turn was more or less associated with uncertainty as to the market effects of August unofficial crop estimates due tomorrow from most Chicago statisticians.

Wheat Closes Shakily.

Wheat closed shaky at the day's bottom level, 1⅛ to 1⅞ under yesterday5's finish; corn, ¼ to ¾ down; oats ⅛ to 1⅛ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

Likelihood of moisture relief for wheat crops in Canada did much to push wheat values downhill, and so likewise did unexpectedness of the Liverpool market, a circumstance attributed to heavy liquidation abroad.

Another unsettling factor was liberal arrivals of wheat in Chicago, 643,000 bushels today, although this was partly offset by curtailment of receipts Southwest and West. Winnipeg reports said a period of heavy rainfall in Canada would be of the utmost importance at this time to wheat crops of the prairie provinces.

Corn and oats showed better rallying power than was the case in wheat. The difference was a good deal due to late announcement that vessel room to the east had been chartered for the shipment of 1,200,000 bushels of corn.

Walt Mason, Himself

Toil and Trouble.

My neighbor, John G. Sleazy, holds down a worth-while job, and yet he seems uneasy, I've sometimes heard him sob. I sometimes hear him walking athwart his bedroom floor, and to himself he's talking, as though his heart were sore. I asked him why these rages, I asked him what was wrong, since he was drawing wages and had been all along. A million hapless critters had long been out of work, they had to take their bitters, however much they'd irk. A man who's earning money, perhaps three bucks a day, should wear a smile so sunny 'twould dazzle every jay. I asked this John G. Sleazy what worry bothered him; "You should be brisk and breezy, with pep in every limb." "I'm in a sad condition," he said, in mournful tones; "I'll lose my good position—I feel it in my bones. Because of the depression I fear I'll soon be fired; good men in my profession no longer are required. And so you see me fretting, it is my nightfly stunt; in vain I try forgetting the perils I confront." "You are a locoed duffer," I said; "by grief oppressed, your work is bound to suffer, you cannot do your best. You should be strongly striving to make a mark so tall that you will be surviving whoever else may fall. Dispel this fretful fever, get down to old brass tacks, and you'll avoid the cleaver, and you will dodge the ax."

Roberts Asks New Power for Utility Board

Communications Group Told I. C. C. Methods Balked Action.

The District and State utilities commissions are entitled to a greater voice than was permitted them by the Interstate Commerce Commission in determining accounting methods for interstate telephone companies, William A. Roberts, people's counsel, urged in a brief filed with the new Federal Communications Commission and made public yesterday.

Accounting rules set forth in an opinion by the Interstate Commerce Commission after it had been deprived of jurisdiction should not be accepted by the communications commission, Mr. Roberts said. He asked the new body to reopen the entire question and give the District and State commissions opportunity to present their objections to the Interstate Commerce Commission rules.

The fight between the telephone companies and the Interstate Commerce Commission on the one hand and the State commissions on the other has been going on for some time. Mr. Roberts represented the District and the State commissions at hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Before the fight was settled authority over the telephone companies was taken from the interstate commission.

Telephone companies, Mr. Roberts told the Communications Commission, made use of the requirement of law that they follow I. C. C. accounting rules, to resist State commissions seeking information in valuation and rate cases.

The report of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for the month of June filed yesterday with the District Utilities Commission shows there were 182,723 telephones in service in the National Capital on June 30. This was an increase of 3,962 during the last six months. There was an increase of 1,381,000 in the number of telephone calls during June, as compared with the number in June last year.

Revenues reported by the company for the six-month period ended with June amounted to $4,907,914, and expenses, including interest, amounted to $3,918,501. The company claims a book cost of its plant of $35,359,319.

Prisoner Escapes On Last Term Day

Danville, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—James Capes, hitch-hiker and alleged instigator of a strike of a group of eight prisoners, escaped from the city farm today.

It was the last day of a 90-day term which he was serving for obtaining an ambulance ride from Farmville to Danville under false pretense. He feigned a broken neck, but was jailed when X-rays showed no fracture. He had been admitted to the Farmville Hospital as an automobile accident victim, and asked to be sent here.

He was accused by C. L. Scott, jr., director of public works in charge of the city farm, as being the instigator of a strike in which eight prisoners refused to work after complaining that it was too hot and that they were not getting enough to eat.

He was working in a corn field today when he escaped.

Court Rules Tax Affects Sales in State Only

Charleston, W. Va., July 31 (Spl.).—The State Supreme Court today held that the State consumers sales tax is limited to sales within the State.

The ruling came in the case of R. B. Vaught, of Mercer County, against Ernest L. Bailey, State road commissioner, who had declared Vaught must pay a tax on an automobile bought in another State in order to secure a license for the car.

Culbertson on Bridge

Extra Fancy.

Good, bad and indifferent players alike have for the past few years indulged in the slightly sane pastime of bidding a worthless suit to stop the lead of that suit against an eventual three notrump contract. Naturally, an alert defensive player is always aware of the possibility that his opponents' bids (particularly in minor suits) may not be entirely honest, and accordingly these psychic bids frequently prove a boomerang.

On today's hand the South player arbitrarily decided that he and his partner could make three notrump if a certain Opening lead were stopped. He further decided, however, that the mere fact that he opened the bidding with one of that suit would not prevent either of his opponents from opening it if they had any desirable holding in it. He accordingly adopted the most unusual procedure of not only rebidding a worthless doubleton suit, but making a Jump Rebid.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K 5 ♡ J 7 2 ◇ Q J 10 4 3 ♣ J 9 2
♠ J 9 6 3 ♡ Q 9 8 ◇ 9 6 5 ♣ A Q 6	N W E S	♠ 8 7 4 ♡ K 4 3 ◇ 8 2 ♣ K 8 5 4 3
	♠ A Q 10 2 ♡ A 10 6 5 ◇ A K 7 ♣ 10 7

South	West	North	East
1♣(1)	Pass	1◇(2)	Pass
3♣(3)	Pass	3NT(4)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—As mentioned above, South decided that his hand offered a very fine chance for a game at notrump only assuming his partner held some scattered strength, if the opponents could be stopped from opening their best suit. From South's own hand the only really dangerous suit seemed to be the club suit, and South therefore opened the bidding with one club. He realized, of course, that the chances of his partner's passing to one club were very remote.

2—The correct response.

3—South is now more certain than ever that there is a game in notrump without a club lead. Knowing that his partner will take a Jump Rebid in the same suit as practically a Force, he decides to take added precautions against the club suit's being opened. South knows that even if his partner does not bid three notrumps as he hopes, he, South, can always return to diamonds over four or five clubs.

4—Although North has a pretty weak hand he decides to respect his partner's semi-Force. He naturally makes the minimum response of three notrump.

East, of course, had a natural Opening lead available to him of his fourth-best club. He might have made this lead even despite South's Opening club bid, knowing that the South player quite frequently took great liberties in bidding minor suits. However, the Jump Rebid in clubs took East in completely, and he made the waiting lead of the eight of spades. Obviously, with any Opening but a club there are nine cold tricks for North and South at notrump, and thus with the spade Opening North and South made their game.

Call it what you will—highway robbery or good Bridge—at any rate it worked in this instance. Another time, this type of bidding might get the South player into considerable trouble.

Faculty Shifts Are Announced By Dr. Nevils

Dr. Sohon Named Dean of Graduate School, Arts and Sciences.

Several faculty changes at Georgetown University were announced yesterday by President Coleman Nevils, S. J.

The most important change is the appointment of Dr. Frederick Wyatt Sohon, S. J., as dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and the transfer of the Rev. John A. Dixon, S. J. Father Dixon, who has been assistant to rectors at Georgetown and a member of the board of regents for the last 12 years, is to take up parish work in Philadelphia. His assistant, the Rev. John Berriliat, will succeed him.

Dr. Sohon has been director of the Seismological Observatory at Georgetown since the death of the Rev. Francis J. Tondorf several years ago and will continue in that capacity and as professor of mathematics in the graduate school.

The Rev. Edmond P. Cerrute, S. J., who has been director of athletics at Loyola College in Baltimore for several years, has been named to fill the new post of assistant to the director of athletics and to the prefect of discipline. The Rev. John J. Kehoe, S. J., director of athletics, long has favored this step.

The orders, issued yesterday from the headquarters of the New York-Maryland province of the Jesuit Order, continue the Rev. Lawrence D. Gorman, S. J., as acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, a post he has held since the death of the Rev. George F. Strohaver, S. J.

The Rev. George C. Macauley, S. J., of Brooklyn College, and the Rev. Ferdinand H. Scherberg, S. J., of Fordham University, were added to the faculty as teachers of philosophy. The Jesuit scholastics who are preparing for the priesthood also were named faculty members. They are Prof. Albert A. Beckwith, S. J., who will teach sophomore English, and Prof. William H. Dowling, S. J., who will serve as assistant in the chemistry department. Both have been on the faculty at Weston College, Mass.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Mrs. Man Really Cooks for Blackie

How in the world would the Creek Folks get along without Jay Bird?

He goes just wherever he pleases, sees and hears everything, and yet nobody ever pays any attention to him. People don't even bother him when he goes in a cherry tree or grape vine to get his dinner. He is just a bird—that's all, so far as Mr. Man and Uncle Joe can see. But to Blackie and the boys he is a lot more than a bird. He is a mail carrier, a telephone, a radio—everything that carries news or messages, and they simply wouldn't know how to get along without him.

You remember that for the past week or two, Mrs. Man has been canning vegetables and fruit, and drying apples and fixing up lots of wintertime things. Of course, Jay Bird has been watching her while she has been doing all of this, and has been telling Blackie about it. Did any of you children ever eat fried "turnovers" made of dried apples? Certainly you have and nobody needs to ask you whether you like them.

It was Saturday and tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Man were going to church. There were to be two sermons—one in the morning and one in the afternoon, and everybody was going to carry their dinner and it was going to be the very best dinner they could fix.

Mrs. Man certainly did fix up a lot of good things to take along, and you may be sure that she had a big pile of those dried-apple turnovers.

She was at the window piling them up in a basket, all criss-crossing each other so they could cool and dry, when Jay Bird came up.

Lots of people in the country have what they call a "spring house" out in the yard under a big tree. They use it in the place of a refrigerator, and they keep milk and butter and other things that they want to keep cool in it.

Well, Mrs. Man wanted those turnovers to keep nice and cool for the Sunday meeting dinner, so she took the basket out and put it on a shelf in the spring house. And Jay Bird just "happened" to see her do it.

You had just as well know that Jocko liked turnovers about as well as Mr. Man did, and Jay Bird had heard him talk about the way his Mistress used to make them. It wasn't long before Jocko knew all about what was in the spring house.

But now what about getting the dogs out of the way that night? Any time that Who-Who Owl would fly down close to Mr. Man's chicken house and say "who-who," the dogs would run out after him and would follow him out in the woods. Jocko sent Jay Bird over for Who-Who, and they fixed it all up. That night after Mr. Man and his wife got to sleep, Who-Who flew down near the chicken house and made about the worst noise any owl ever did make. In a minute Rover Dog and his wife were out of their house and right after Who-Who, and were making more noise than he was. And where was Jocko? No use to tell you; you already know. He was right up in the spring house grabbing that basket of turnovers, and doing some fast running back to Blackie's house with his good Sunday dinner.
